WALKER EARNS DRAW IN BOUT WITH SHARKEY

MICKEY'S EYE INJURED; BOSTONIAN'S TARGET

Walker Jumps to Feet After Only Knockdown; 30,000 Witness Battle.

By DIXON STEWART.

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, July 22 (U. P.).—Jack Sharkey and Mickey Walker fought to a fifteen-round draw here tonight before some 30,000 customers in their battle for the Milk Fund.

Sharkey, using his size and boxing skill to good advantage, appeared to have the edge in seven rounds, wth Walker wnnng three and five even.

Bostonan Better Boxer.

For once in his life Sharkey did not blow up. He has no alibi of an "off" night. He fought perhaps as well as at any time in his career, but he wats unable to land a knockout punch. He staggered the comparatively diminutive Walker on several occasions, particularly in the twelfth round, when he made his bid for victory, but Walker was too rugged and too game to go down.

Sharkey's efforts were enough to win him the vote of Judge Kelley, but Referee Donovan gave the decision to Walker and Judge Charles F. Mathison called the contest a draw.

Donovan's vote doubtless was influenced by the low blows which Sharkey resorted to on several occasions. None of the blows were damaging, and they probably were unintention, but the New York commission rules penalize a low blow by the loss of the round and by this count Sharkey would have to be deprived of at least three rounds in which he had a clear margin over his opponent, but for the low punches.

Sharkey forced the action throughout the early stages of the bout, but Walker was far from reluctant and he usually stopped Sharkey's rush with stiff left hooks to the head and body.

No Real Knockdowns.

Neither boxer scored anything like a knockout blow and there were no knockdowns. Walker appeared to slip to the canvas during an infighting exchange in the fifth round.

But it was more from the effect of his own missed blow, than from the light punches Sharkey was landing.

Walker was especially impressive in the manner in which he rolled and ducked under Sharkey's hard right-hand punches. Sharkey let fly with dozens of right-hand blows, which appeared to carry enough force to stop any opponent, but Walker always was either under the blow or "rode" away with the punch.

Mickey's best, and almost only successful punch, was his left hook. He rammed many of these blows to Sharkey's body and frequently scored to the head with the same punch. The blows lacked the force to stop Sharkey, but frequently they made him cease his attack and back away to cover.

Sharkey easily was the better boxer, jabbing Mickey with long lefts to the face and effectively tieing up the little Irishman in the clinches, but his showing was pitiful for a man who outweighed his opponent by nearly 30 pounds, and who had such a wide advantage in reach, height, strength and speed.

Jack started well and took the first two rounds by nailing Walker with hard rights and keeping him off balance with left jabs. Mickey, who had been playing for the head, changed his tactics in the third round and took the lead. He rocked Jack once with a stiff left to the nose and followed with a hard right uppercut.

Fourth Round Slow.

The fourth was even and slow, but Sharkey had a clear margin in the fifth and sixth. He cut Mickey's eye in the fifth and kept pecking away at the injury for the rest of the contest. Walker rallied again to hold Sharkey on even terms in the seventh and eighth and won the ninth when he got in under Jack's guard and gave the "American heavyweight boo champion" a severe beating to the body.

Both fighters appeared to be tiring in the tenth, and it was a slow round, with honors even. Walker tore after Sharkey throughout the eleventh and won by a wide margin. He caught Sharkey on the ropes and gave him a bad lacing. The punishment to the body had Jack "dogging" it for the balance of the session.

Warned by his seconds that he must make a fast finish to win, Sharkey threw caution to the winds and rushed out at the start of the twelfth, trying for a knockout. He nailed Walker with a stiff right to the head and pounded him to the

INQUEST CONSIDERS ENGINEERS' DEATHS

Keeper Says Gates Were Not to Be Raised "Under Any Circumstances."

A coroner's jury late last night was still considering the accident which cost the death of J. Albert Ward and L. R. Walters when the train on which they were engineers struck a car trapped on a grade crossing at Berwyn, Md.

H. F. Lorenz, the gatekeeper, said on the stand that he could not release the auto from the tracks, because instructions had been issued that the gates were not to be raised "under any circumstances" once they were down. Lorenz, who has been on this crossing only one month, said that he did not see the car on the tracks until after both gates had been lowered.

He also stated that one of the barriers was all the way down when the other was still high enough to allow the passage of an automobile. He was recalled to the witness stand to say that he had never handled railroad gates before being put on the Berwyn crossing.

Miss Thomas, driver of the car which sprayed the locomotive with flaming gasoline, said that she did not hear the gong at the crossing and did not see the gate which barred her way until she was actually on the tracks. She said that she approached the tracks at a sped of about 20 miles an hour.

When she found her car blocked on the rails, she said, the engine

Two Dry Agents Slain by Suspect

Another Pair Wounded as Alleged Bootlegger Evades Capture. . . .

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 22 (A.P.).—Two Federal prohibition agents were shot and killed and two others wounded a mile south of Fort Wayne tonight in an attempt to arrest George Adams, alleged Fort Wayne bootlegger, on parole from a Federal penitentiary, where he was sentenced in 1930 on a liquor charge.

The dead men are John I. Wilson, of the Indianapolis office of the prohibition enforcement bureau, and Walter M. Gilbert, 33, whose home office is in Cincinnati, Ohio. The wounded men are C. E. Green, Portland, Ind., and Oliver J. Gettle, Indianapolis, working with the officers. Green and Gettle said Adams drove away in his automobile. A search was started for him immediately.

The officers working had planned to capture Adams, believing he carried a load of liquor. One detachment stopped in front of Adams' car while another came up from behind. Adams began firing immediately. After Wilson had fallen from three bullet wounds, Green and Gettle said, Adams ran to him and fired five more shots into his body.

WOMAN, 75, KILLED BY STUDENT'S AUTO

J. W. Gessford, of Gonzaga College, Is Released Pending Inquest.

An automobile driven by a 17-year-old student at Gonzaga College struck and almost instantly killed Mrs. Margaret Robinson, 75, last night as the elderly woman was trying to cross Georgia avenue near Shepherd street northwest.

James W. Gessford, of 502 Randolph street northwest, was at the wheel of the machine which struck the elderly woman, according to police. He was released in custody of his attorney pending outcome of an inquest today.

Witnesses said Mrs. Robinson walked in front of an automobile, which had stopped in the middle of the block that she might cross, and into the path of young Gessford's car. The victim was pronounced dead by Dr. Thomas J. Kennedy, who lives a few blocks from the scene of the tragedy.

The youthful driver was taken to the Tenth Precinct station and detained for a short while until released for appearance at the inquest at the morgue at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Robinson lived with her son, Walter Robinson, at 810 Taylor street northwest. Another son, Myron A. Robinson, of 3033 Sixteenth street nor[illegible] also survives. She was the widow of John K. Robinson and a lifelong resident of Washington.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Chinese, Japanese Ministers Bombed

Four Bystanders Injured by Missiles Hurled at Shanghai.

Shanghai (Thursday), July 23 (A. P.).—Four bystanders were wounded at the Shanghai North Station today when two bombs, thrown at T. V. Soong, minister of finance, and the Japanese minister, Mamoru Shigemitsu, missed their markes. Neither of the two ministers was injured. Soong and Shigemitsu had just arrived by train from Nanking. No arrests were made immediately.

Soong and Shigemitsu, having just left the night express from the capital, were entering motor cars at the station exit when the bombs were thrown.

Several shots were fired, but by whom was not determined. The attack was believed aimed at Soong, whose escape was narrow. His life previously has been attempted and he always carries a revolver.

KELLOGG FIGHT ON HENDERSON WILL PLANNED

STATUS COMPLICATED BY SIXTH INSTRUMENT

Latest Document Tells of "Repugnance" Felt by Dowager.

While attorneys for Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean awaited definite word from her that she would attempt to break the will made by Mrs. John Brooks Henderson, which cut her off from a share in the Henderson millions, Dr. John Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich., announced his intentions yesterday of starting court action to protect his interests under the various Henderson wills.

A second development in the battle over the huge estate was the presentation of a sixth will, drawn by the dowager last November, which further complicated the legal situation.

This instrument explains in detail the rift that made Mrs. Wholean and her husband "repugnant" to Mrs. Henderson, before her death in Bar Harbor, Me., last week.

One Will Gives $100.

The will, presented yesterday in District Supreme Court by Norman Landrau, attorney for Harry Seay, former secretary of Mrs. Wholean, contains a clause bequeathing Mrs. Wholean the sum of $100. The later will, filed Tuesday, cut her off without any inheritance.

"Having already provided for Beatrice Wholean by trust agreement and the gift after her marriage of securities with a value of about $300,000 out of my personal estate, I therefore leave her the nominal sum of $100, and desire that no further part of my estate be given her," read this document.

The will filed yesterday revoked a previous testament making Dr. John H. Kellogg and the Battle Creek Sanitarium chief beneficiary. She explained she had already given Dr. Kellogg $200,000 in securities, as well as 6,000 acres of land in Missouri, adding that "such a gift is all I wish them to have."

Attitude Explained.

In explanation of the breach between herself and the Wholeans, which it is now clear antedated Mrs. Wholean's suit to stop Mrs. Henderson from giving a Vice President's mansion to the Government, the mistress of Henderson Castle said:

"I wish to say that for several years I have refused to receive either Beatrice Wholean or her husband at my home, as, though instrumental in securing an appointment to a foreign post from the Commerce Department for Wholean, he resigned same and returned to this country, when, refusing a gift from me of 6,000 acres of land in Missouri (afterward given to Dr. Kellogg), demanded that I give instead the Bar Harbor property.

"Of course I refused and afterwards sold same to John D. Rockefeller, jr.,

FRANCE'S ARMS NOTE IS CALLED BLOW TO PLANS

AMERICANS DECLARE MOVE BARS U. S. AID

(United Press.)

President Hoover's proposals to stabilize German finances were promised speedy application last night when a meeting of finance ministers in London recommended their adoption.

The proposals will be presented today to a plenary session of the governmental heads meeting to consider the finances of Germany and other central European countries.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, chief American delegate at London, telephoned Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle, jr., of the finance ministers' recommendations.

Recommendations Satisfactory.

Castle said the recommendations were satisfactory, and he predicted the conference would adjourn today. Though they were not announced here, pending their presentation to the plenary session for approval, it was understood the recommendations were:

1. Prolongation of a $100,000,000 credit granted to Germany. This credit was granted by four banks, including the new York Federal Reserve Bank. It originally expired July 15, but was renewed for one month just before that date. The ministers recommend extension for three months more.

2. Recommendation by governments to their central banks that every means be used to prevent withdrawal of the $1,200,000,000 of commercial short-term credits now outstanding against Germany. Of these about one-half are held by American banks.

3. Appointment of a committee, as proposed by Mr. Hoover, to study the need for further short-term credits and the possibility of converting short-term credits into long-term ones.

Two Plans Within Month.

Thus within a month the United States has offered two plans to strengthen the finances of Germany, and with her central Europe, and aid the world out of depression.

The satisfaction that President Hoover might be expected to feel at the prospective fruition of his second plan, made necessary by a worsening of German finances despite his debt postponement plan, was tempered by the French disarmament note sent to the League of Nations Tuesday.

It was recalled that in announcing his debt plan, the President said that while it had no bearing on next February's disarmament conference at Geneva, "inasmuch as the burden of competitive armaments has contributed to bring about this depression we trust that by this evidence of our desire to assist we shall have con-

District's Drop in Divorces At Highest Rate in Country

Severance Granted 0.19 Persons Per 1,000, Compared With 28.67 in Nevada; Marriages Decrease 8.5 Per Cent in Nation During 1930.

(Associated Press.)

Marriages decreased 8.5 per cent and divorces 4.2 per cent in the United States during 1930.

The Census Bureau, completing compilations three months more quickly than in any previous year, yesterday tallied 1,126,180 marriages in 1930, as compared with 1,232,559 in 1929. The 1930 divorces numbered 191,630, as against 201,468 in 1929.

Experts attributed the falling off to the business depression.

The marriage market fell with a particularly heavy thud, since marriages increased 4.2 per cent from 1928 to 1929.

In addition to the usual computations the Census Bureau included the relative number of marriages to each divorce. For the United States as a whole, 5.9 marriages were reported for each divorce as against 6.1 in 1929.

Nevada had but 2.3 marriages to each divorce, but even then it led all the States in rate of marriages per 1,000 population with 67, as against rate of 9.2 for the United States.

New York and the District of Columbia, each with only one cause for absolute divorce, reported respectively 57.5 and 24.5 marriages to each divorce, thus leading the list.

South Carolina, allowing no divorces, could not be included in the comparison.

On an estimated population of 123,191,000 for July 1, 1930, marriages tallied 9.2 per 1,000 population, divorces 1.56.

Texas with a recent law requiring advance posting of intentions to marry, showed the heaviest falling off —28.5 per cent. Texas marriages in 1929 numbered 63,173; in 1930 they totaled only 45,158.

Texas' loss proved New Mexico's gain. Marriages increased in New Mexico by 29.5 per cent, 8,711 in 1930, as against 6,727 in 1929, by far the most marked increase of any of the States.

Only nine States reported marriage increases—Maine, Nebraska, Virginia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada.

Seven of the nine lie next to States in which recent changes in the marriage laws require from three to five days to elapse between application for a marriage license and its issuance.

Divorces decreased most rapidly in the District of Columbia, falling off 19.1 per cent. Highest increase in divorce was in Delaware, 21.8 per cent. Increased rates for divorce were reported for Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Arizona, Utah, Nevada and California.

Ratio of divorces per 1,000 population ranged from 0.19 in the District of Columbia to 28.67 in Nevada.

Census Director William M. Steuart emphasized the 1930 figures were preliminary and subject to correction.

Martial Law Evoked In Spain's Strike War

Cabinet Near Crisis Over Snydicalist Decree; Riots in Seville.

Seville, Spain, Thursday, July 23 (A.P.).—Martial law was proclaimed in Seville this morning to deal with a strike situation which up to last night had resulted in seventeen known fatalities as the result of fighting between syndicalists and Government forces.

Despite the belief of the Government at Madrid that military authorities should not take control, Gov. Jose Bastos made the decision in favor of martial law, after a conference with Gen. Ruiz Trillo, district military commander at Seville.

Two Cavalry squadrons and one Infantry company marched into the streets, announcing the proclamation.

Occasional cases of sniping from rooftops were reported, but, generally speaking, order was restored, even in the suburb of Triana. Troops continued vigilant, however, and some of them stationed themselves on rooftops, adopting the snipers' tactics.

A soldier and three civilians were killed in trinana last night. Wit-

LAMONT, DOAK SEEK JOINT MINE PARLEY

Letter to Coal Owners Asks Their Willingness to Meet Workers.

(Associated Press.)

Continuing their study of the depressed bituminous coal industry, the Secretaries of Commerce and Labor yesterday asked 125 operators if they would attend a general conference with miners.

The letter, signed by Secretaries Lamont and Doak, was made public shortly after the former had discussed the situation with President Hoover.

It marked the third step in the announced effort of the Government to find some means of bettering conditions in the soft coal industry.

The movement was started June 11 when John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, telegraphed President Hoover, asking a conference between operators and miners. The message was referred to the Secretaries of Commerce and Labor.

Secretary Lamont arranged a meeting with a group of operators and a week later Secretary Doak called a conference of labor representatives.

"Some of the operators attending," said yesterday's letter in outlining the steps already taken, "expressed the view that the coal industry was no worse off relatively than other industries at the present time, and a majority of them declared that nothing could be gained by a nation-wide joint conference of operators and miners. A minority of operators considered that progress could be made by such a conference.

"A few days later a similar meeting was held in the Department of Labor with Mr. Lewis and members of the executive committee of the United Mine Workers. The point was raised in this session that, at the meeting of operators the previous week, the industry was not effectively

The wedding itself will take place Sunday.

Archduke Anton's sister, the Archduchess Margarita, and his father, Archduke Leopold, arrived at Sinaia today. Contrary to public expectation, King Alexander of Jugoslavia, brother-in-law of Princess Ileana, will not attend the ceremonies at Sinaia, but Queen Marie of Jugoslavia, Ileana's sister, will be there.

Dawes Cuts Vacation To Return to London

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, who has been on a short leave of absence from his diplomatic duties at the Court of St. James, sailed for England today on the Cunard liner Mauretania. During his stay in this country the ambassador conferred with President Hoover and worked on plans for the coming Chicago Exposition. Mr. Dawes is chairman of the financial committee of the exposition.

The ambassador declined to comment on the present conferences in Europe, although he said he was returning to his post sooner than he had planned.

BERLIN AGAIN LOOKS TO U. S. FOR RELIEF

Germans in London Declare Cash Only Will Prevent Government's Fall.

London, July 22 (A.P.).—Once again tonight German hopes turned to America to stave off the possible fall of the government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, to prevent the assumption of power by Adolf Hitler, German Fascist leader, and to call a halt to growing radicalism.

Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius tonight made an appointment for a meeting tomorrow with the American Secretaries, Henry L. Stimson and Andrew W. Mellon.

Although aware that the odds against them are very great, they hoped to persuade the Americans, at the eleventh hour, that from their viewpoint the suggestions to be presented to the seven-power conference tomorrow by the finance ministers committee, while laudable and fairly appreciated, are nevertheless insufficient unless the chancellor and his foreign minister can return to Germany with cash in their pockets.

The Germans said they were truly grateful that President Hoover is stopping the drain of Germany's economic lifeblood. But, nevertheless, they added, an immediate transfusion is essential to the recovery of the patient.

Disquieting reports came all day from Berlin, stating that radicals of

Obscure Amateur Finds New Comet

Japanese Apologizes for Asking Observatory if "It Can Be So."

Pasadena, Calif., July 22 (U.P.).—An obscure amateur Japanese astronomer, M. Nagata, of Brawley, Calif., has discovered a new comet, it was announced today at the Mount Wilson Observatory.

The comet was described to be in the constellation of Leo, not far from the star, Rho Leoxis, and in the general direction of Mars, although about ten degrees to the right of that planet.

The comet will be named after Nagata, who called it to the attention of the Mount Wilson scientists in an apologetic telegram in which he begged pardon for wasting their time, but asked if it was possible for him to have located a new comet with his small telescope.

PLAN TO COME UP AT LONDON PARLEY TODAY

Question of Whose Idea Was Accepted Placed in Limelight.

EXTENSION OF CREDIT 3 MONTHS PROVIDED

London Conference May End at Noon and Set Speed Mark for Diplomacy.

(Associated Press.)

A prospect for the end of the seven power conference at London, possibly by noon today, eventuated last night when the conference committee of finance ministers approved a plan for German relief.

The financiers' plan is to be presented to the plenary session today for approval.

Secretary of State Stimson telephoned Washington officials that the finance ministers' recommendations were satisfactory to the United States.

The question of whose plan was before the conference overshadowed other developments in Washington. Acting Secretary of State Castle said it was President Hoover's idea. Secretary Stimson, at London, said the proposal was worked out by the Americans and British.

Wall street reluctantly concluded that no dramatic solution would come out of the London conference and share prices sought lower levels in yesterday's stock market.

90-Day Reprieve.

London, July 22 (A.P.).—The committee of finance ministers of the seven-power conference announced tonight that it had decided on a plan for economic and financial aid to Germany and that the plan would be presented tomorrow to what, it was believed here, may be the final plenary session of the conference.

The plan, it was understood, would include measures intended to give Germany at least a 90-day "reprieve" in her struggle against financial and economic difficulties.

It includes a proposal for extending for three months the $100,000,000 credit from the World Bank for International Settlements and other measures chiefly concerned with the prevention of withdrawals of foreign investments in Germany and with general aid for Germany's finances and those of the Reichsbank.

From one quarter close to conference affairs it was learned that four resolutions would be presented at tomorrow's sessions. These, it was stated, would provide—

Credit Would Be Extended.

First, that the central banks and the World Bank for International Settlements extend the $100,000,000 German credit for a further period of three months.

Second, that private banks be urged to leave their credits now in Germany in German hands for the present.

Third, that a world bank committee be appointed to consider the questions of shorter-term loans to Germany and the conversion of existing short-term loans to long-term loans.

Fourth, that the conference "note with satisfaction" the action of German industrialists in creating a reserve of approximately $125,000,000 on the German Gold Discount Bank.

It was considered tonight that the conference, which has been in session only 48 hours, will have set a new speed record for world diplomacy if, as was anticipated in informed quarters tonight, it approves the plan of the finance ministers' committee and decides to make tomorrow's session the last plenary session of the conference.

Based on Hoover's Views.

The proposed plan, it was said, is largely based on President Hoover's views as communicated to Secretaries

Stimson and Mellon at Paris a few days ago, but they have been woven into the general fabric of a European plan for stemming the tide of German collapse.

If present plans are carried through, the conference will end about noon tomorrow, giving the delegates the afternoon and evening for social affairs.

Each nation represented here has had a share in the plan, it was said, but none could forecast whether the measures which probably will be taken will be sufficient to satisfy Germany's requirements. The German reaction tonight was that the proposal to establish a World Bank for International Settlements committee for studying the problem of both long and short term loans for Germany would probably fall short of the expectations of the Bruening government.

Throughout the deliberations France has steadfastly declined to participate in any scheme involving her granting new credits to Germany without adequate guarantees. The French do not underestimate the seriousness of the German situation, but they declare they are powerless to render assistance in any such form as long term credits.

Will Continue Work.

If the conference adjourns tomorrow the committee of experts which has been dealing with the details of the Hoover reparations holiday will continue its work at London, it was said. This committee during the last few days has been overshadowed by the meeting of the international statesmen.

Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, however, will not consider the London conference a complete success, it was said, without a decision on assurances regarding a new long-term loan for Germany, which, it was said, is needed by the present govefnment for political reasons.

Herr Curtius again appealed today to Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, in connection with this issue, and he will confer with Secretaries Stimson and Mellon tomorrow.

Without some such pledge, the German view was, they will be returning to sit on a smoking volcano of economic rest and rising nationalism at home which may explode at any time.

Plan to Leave Friday

Plans were made today by the French and German delegations to leave London Friday morning. With other delegations, they will be guests of King George and Queen Mary at a garden party at Buckingham Palace tomorrow afternoon. The French delegation will go to the palace from the German Embassy, where Premier Laval and his colleagues will be luncheon guests of the Germans.

At this luncheon a new note in Franco-German neighborliness will be sounded and together with the joint declaration urging continental peace which is expected to come from the final plenary session of the conference will greatly increase the significance of the London parleys and mark another step along the road toward international accord.

Today's swift progress was made in an atmosphere that was friendly, courteous and cooperative. Secretary Stimson, reiterating his optimistic note of yesterday, declared that real progress toward a solution of Germany's problems was being made.

The Secretary of State submitted to a barrage of questioning from the newspaper men regarding the apparent confusion which existed last night in regard to the reported new American plan for stabilizing German finances.

The Secretary explained the difficulty was largely one "of definition." He said he had not made any new proposals regarding Germany to the London conference, but simply supported the position he outlined informally last week-end in Paris.

The opening session, he pointed out, was a round-table affair at which each delegate contributed to the pool of ideas and suggestions.

Anglo-American Plan.

In his opening speech to the conference on Monday night Prime Minister MacDonald made suggestions similar to those outlined by Secretary Stimson in Paris and it was for this reason the Secretary did not find it necessary to bring forward President Hoover's proposals as such, because they had already been advanced by the British government.

Instead of an "American plan" for stabilizing Germany, Secretary Stimson suggested that it should be called an "Anglo-American plan," although he said, whatever steps would be taken would be the cooperative effort of the whole conference.

"There has been an entire absence of any acrimonious issues between the countries," he said, "and the feeling has been very good."

From those in closest touch with the French delegation it was learned tonight the French consider a vast improvement has been made in Franco-German relations and this improvement constitutes one of the most striking results of the conference.

While actual results of the seven-power conference, as set down on paper, it was said, may not show that the French and German viewpoints have approached each other as much as some had hoped, yet quietly, and without ceremony, the statesmen of the two nations have had many confidential talks in the hotel where both delegations are staying.

The latest of these conversations took place this afternoon when Foreign Minister Briand and Foreign Minister Curtius took tea together in Curtius' rooms. There was no indication of what they discussed, but it was considered likely that the basis of the discussion was not the weather, or even golf.

(Associated Press.)

Successful conclusion today of the work of the London ministers conference to afford financial relief to Germany was predicted last night by high administration authorities.

Late in the day, Secretary Stimson telephoned Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department in Washington that recommendations to be submitted to the conference today were satisfactory to the United States.

GREEN ASKS LONGER HOLIDAY ON DEBTS

Permanent Moratorium on Reparations Suggested by Labor President.

(Associated Press.)

A permanent holiday in reparations and war debt payments was advocated yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Expressing his individual opinion, Green said he felt the one-year moratorium now in effect would be helpful but added that alone "it would only postpone the evil day of reckoning." He said he did not know the views of the majority of organized labor on cancellation or modification, explaining the subject had never been taken up by the executive council of the federation, or in labor conventions.

Pessimistic over the economic outlook for the coming winter, the federation head said he felt revision of the entire structure of war debts would be a major factor in world business recovery. He added, however, that he believed any downward revision of debts owed the United States should be accompanied by a corresponding cancellation of reparations due from Germany.

"Cancellation or modification, so far as is practicable," he said, "would lift an economic burden from the backs of labor and would free industry from the destroying effect of overtaxation."

He said he urged some reduction in war debts and reparations in the past and that the crisis in Germany, the one-year debt holiday and other developments had convinced him that payments growing out of the war were one of the major obstacles to world economic recovery.

Green asserted he did not know whether the debts would be on the legislative program of the federation for the coming congress. This program will not be formulated until after the federation convention in October.

In the main, Mr. Green said, the larger industries in the United States are maintaining wage scales. He added, however, there had been reductions in the textile, bituminous coal, boot and shoe industries, and that the pay of office workers generally had been cut.

represented. It was asserted that by a representative conference of both operators and miners much could be done to stabilize wages and improve conditions generally within the industry; and it was further asserted that operators would willingly attend such a conference.

"As it is our desire to assist in any workable and practical plan which might offer to contribute substantially to a solution of the difficulties in the coal industry this letter is being sent to a representative number of operators located in the more important producing districts in the country for the purpose of presenting this specific inquiry:

"At a convenient time in the near future, will you be willing to attend a representative joint conference of operators and miners for the purposes stated?

"In your judgment would such a conference bring about the results outlined by Mr. Lewis?"

The letter was accompanied by a copy of Lewis' telegram to President Hoover and the President's reply, stating, "The administration is desirous of lending every possible assistance to any constructive program put forward by operators and miners."

Pittsburgh, July 22 (A.P.).—Benjamin C. Marsh, secretary of the people's lobby, said today that the Federal Government must take over operation of the bituminous and anthracite coal mines promptly "to prevent bloody warfare and to end criminal starvation of children."

Marsh, speaking before the Henry George Club here, outlined the program of the people's lobby, an organization headed by Prof. John Dewey, formerly of Columbia University. He said President Hoover must call a special session of Congress to appropriate $3,500,000,000 for public works, unemployment relief and unemployment insurance.

The recommendations were adoted by the finance ministers attending the conference.

The Secretary's message was the only report received during the day by the American Government from its representatives. Contrary to the usual procedure in such conversations, the Secretary talked with the Acting Secretary who remained in his office at the State Department. Most of the transatlantic calls have been to the White House with the President taking part.

Closely Follow Proposal.

Press dispatches outlining the recommendations showed they closely followed the proposal, which Mr. Castle had said was made to the conference on behalf of the United States.

The first two points of the recommendations providing for an extension of the $100,000,000 central and world banks credit and maintenance of levels of private credits, coincided with the American suggestion as made public here.

The third point, recommending appointment of a committee to consider the question of short-term loans and conversion of short into long-term loans, conincided with the American suggestion that such a committee be selected by the Bank for International Settlements or other authority.

The fourth recommendation, noting with satisfaction the action of German industrialists in creating a reserve of approximately $125,000,000 on the German gold discount bank, was not directly referred to in the American proposal made public here, except that the latter spoke of internal measures in Germany to strengthen the financial situation.

The State Department had before it last night unofficial reports of the French stand on disarmament as outlined in the Paris note to the League of Nations. The effect of heavy armament burdens on the whole economic situation was stressed by President Hoover in announcing his debt moratorium plan.

The London conference disrupted Secretary Stimson's plans to tour the principal European capitals and discuss disarmament and other questions with leading statesmen.

One high administration authority indicated his belief yesterday that the Secretary would not carry out his original itinerary for conferences after the London meeting, but would go to Scotland for a rest.

'Gangster Eat Gangster,' Might Prove Best Policy

By JOHN J. DALY

FOLLOWERS of the cross and of the crescent, the fanatical zeal which animated the Crusaders and the Saracens was ofttimes softened by a feeling of natural generosity and a spirit of chivalry.

Between battles combatants sometimes became friends. Sir Walter Scott, in "The Talisman," tells the story of the Knight of the Couchant Leopard meeting up with a Saracen on the shores of the Dead Sea, called the Lake Asphaltites—where the waves of the Jordon roll.

After the usual setto, a drawn battle, the two horsemen repaired to the shade of a palm tree. Each was desirious to measure the strength and form some estimate of the character of an adversary so formidable. Each, in his heart of hearts, was compelled to acknowledge that, had he fallen in the conflict, it would have been by a noble hand.

Consider the case now of Jack "Legs" Diamond and his rival for racketeer honors, "Dutch" Schultz, the beer-runners of the Catskill Mountains, in the land of Diedrich Knickerbocker.

In the little village where Rip Van Winkle and his dog Wolf whiled away so many happy hours, in the shade through long, lazy summer days, before the inn of Nicholas Vedder, away from the terrors of Dame Van Winkle, the State police swooped down the other day and captured eight heavily armed men—Knights of the Keg.

OF COURSE, Knights of the Keg are nothing new in the Kaatskills, as Washington Irving spelled it. Peter Vanderdonk, descendant of the historian of that name, claims it as a fact, handed down from his forbear, that the Kaatskills Mountains had always been haunted by strange beings. He affirmed that the great Hendrik Hudson, discoverer of the river and country, kept a kind of vigil there every 20 years, with his crew of the Half Moon, and that was how Rip Van Winkle one day met up with a strange little man carrying a stout keg of liquor up a wild mountain.

It was somewhere near where these men waited the other day, on the Road to Acra, to welcome Jack "Legs" Diamond home again to his mountain retreat after standing trial in Troy. Before a jury of his peers—with the evidence against him—the learned statesman from Acra was acquitted. It was strongly hinted that the jury was intimidated. Anyway, the sovereign State of New York, after losing the case, solemnly confessed through its attorney general, John J. Bennett, that "the allies of crime are too strongly entrenched to be defeated."

Mr. Diamond won his bid, was free to go home, unmolested by State troopers; but he had to run the gantlet set up by rival beer runners, led by that valiant Knight of the Keg, Demon Dutch Schultz.

Saracen Schultz and his cohorts, awaiting the Diamond Crusaders, were well-armed. Eight revolvers, four rifles, and two sawed-off shotguns comprised the arsenal, along with 1,500 rounds of ammunition.

But for the intervention of State troopers, the Schultz gang would have "shot it out" with the Diamond racketeers, slaughtered them, and American justice would have been meted out at the hands of outlaws.

* * * *

SINCE the Government declares itself helpless, there is an idea here: Why not let the boys alone, pitting themselves against each other, as in the days of knighthood? It might even be wise to subsidize one gang to annihilate the other.

In days of old, when nights were cold, riders fared forth on horseback—each foeman worthy of his steel.

Now, the beer barons hold their sway in armored motor cars.

There is, of course, no such chivalry as existed in the days of the Saracen Emir and the Western Crusader, who met beneath the burning sun of Syria, in the arid Valley of Siddim. By the Holy Caaba, the Saracens of Palestine and Spain were men; and so were the Crusaders.

Mr. Jack "Legs" Diamond is a sorry sight in comparison with the Knight of the Reclining Leopard. Mr. "Dutch" Schultz—Mrs. Schultz's boy—is rather disreputable shown beside the Saracen. Any mention of Richard Coeur-de-Lion—he of the Lion Heart—in the same breath with these people seems something like sacrilege. Yet they are becoming national heroes! Two Gun Benny, the Yegg; Joe, the Machine Gunner; Big Boy Mulhaffy, the Blood-Letter. Those are their badges of honor.

* * * *

ONE by one, gang by gang, get the gangsters to face each other, and thus annihilate themselves. Since so much hero worship attaches to these glamorous but unromantic figures, Uncle Sam owes something to the youth of America. Rub out the blot on the escutcheon!

The boys of the Nation, where once Diamond Dick and Nick Carter were their models—Buffalo Bill and Young and Old King Brady—have now gone gangster themselves. The new slogan of boyhood is:

"Stick 'Em Up!"

Germany Talks Difficulties Over With Bank Creditors

Berlin Plays Role of Business Man in Financial Trouble; World Institution, Founded Under Young Plan, Takes Place as Aid for Nations.

(This is the third of three dispatches prepared by Charles D. Watkins, who covers the United States Treasury for the Associated Press, dealing with the various aspects of world finance involved in the present international negotiations.)

By CHARLES D. WATKINS.

(Associated Press.)

When an important business man finds himself deeply involved in financial difficulties, his first step is to talk things over with his banker and his creditors. That is what Germany is doing today. Its bank is the Bank for International Settlements. That institution is expected to have an important part in carrying out whatever decisions may be reached at the present London conference.

The bank was organized under the Young plan, a program of German reparations payments named for Owen D. Young, New York financier, who took the leadership in the committee of financial experts which devised it.

The fundamental function of the bank is to handle payments from Germany to her creditor nations, to facilitate the transfers and prevent them from disrupting European financial markets.

The Young plan, formulated in 1929, replaced the Dawes plan of 1924 and reduced the total of German reparations payments from $33,000,000,000 to $26,000,000,0000. Under the Young plan, Germany was to pay $450,000,000 annually for 37 years, $408,000,000 annually for the following 21 years and then make one payment of $216,000,000.

The Bank for International Settlements receives the payments and credits them to the recipient governments. It serves as banker for the nations, just as a bank in a community serves its business men.

The stockholders of the World Bank were originally the important central banks of the principal nations—England, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Japan. Members of the Federal Reserve System participated for the United States. Sixteen other nations, whose monetary system is based on gold, later took shares in the World Bank.

The bank enjoys practically all the privileges of an ordinary bank, with authority to receive deposits, buy and sell gold and exchange, make discounts and issue certain categories of bonds and short-term securities. It began business with deposits of approximately $55,000,000 from the central banks of the allied nations and Germany. It finished the first year with deposits of $356,000,000 and total assets and liabilitie of $380,000,000.

At the close of the year, there were outstanding 165,100 shares of stock as compared with 112,000 subscribed by the central banks which founded the institution. The bank has authority to make loans to banks or nations.

In stepping into the shaky German situation last month and approving an advance of $100,000,000 to the Reichsbank, the World Bank lived up to the hopes of its originators that it would prove to be a quieting influence when financial difficulties threaten a nation the right and left were already gloating over what they branded the "failure" of the German ministers' mission.

BERLIN AGAIN LOOKS TO U. S. FOR PREVENTION OF CRISIS

Nationalist correspondents in the lobbies of the hotel seriously told their foreign colleagues they were in a quandary whether to remain in London until tomorrow, for they "might be needed in Berlin in connection with rapidly moving events there."

On the other hand, Liberal and Socialist correspondents made no secret of the fact that they found themselves in the difficult position of "having to disillusion their readers on the 'success' of the conference," about which they have been writing up to now.

But, pessimistic as was the general attitude in the German delegation tonight, it was authoritatively cautioned this must not be interpreted as meaning that Chancellor Bruening is ready to throw up the sponge.

The chancellor has been through one difficult situation after another since he assumed office, and it was emphasized tonight he will continue his dogged course no matter whether he returns to Berlin with much or little.

His friends, however, were insisting there is a limit to his powers of endurance. It is little known, perhaps, that shortly after his return from Chequers, in June, he had a heart attack.

"If the Americans, British and French like Chancellor Bruening so well," one member of the German delegation said tonight, "and consider him Germany's greatest asset since Stresemann's day, why don't they give him another lift?"

"Why repair his motor, but refuse to give him gasoline?"

For these reasons members of the German delegation at their hotel tonight were still clinging to the hope that Secretaries Stimson and Mellon tomorrow might work another miracle and fill the chancellor's pockets with cash.

One group of optimists in the German camp said they saw a ray of light in the French attitude. Premier Laval, these optimists pointed out, is irritated at the pressure under which he believes the Americans and the British are trying to place him.

This irritation, the German optimists said, was shared not only by the rest of the French delegation but by the French newspaper correspondents and members of the French colony in London.

According to the theory held by these, Premier Laval is only waiting for the conference to adjourn before he takes Chancellor Bruening by the arm and say: "It's up to you and me to fix this matter up. Soon I will come to Berlin, cement the Franco-German friendship, and then the road will be clear for France to send her gold to Germany's aid."

Premier Laval, they say, has no thought of desiring to humiliate Germany, but they add that France does not want to be "school-mastered" by the Anglo-Saxon world.

FRANCE, GERMANY CLOSER TO ACCORD

Improvement in Relations Is Counted Striking Result of Parleys.

London, July 22 (A.P.).—The French delegation to the seven-power conference, it was learned tonight, considers the vast improvement in Franco-German relations as one of the most striking results of the parleys.

Those in close touch with French official circles here insisted that even if the actual results of the conference, on paper, do not show that the French and German viewpoints have drawn closer to each other, the conferences held between the statesmen of the two nations have brought about the removal of much misunderstanding.

Foreign Minister Briand of France and Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany had tea together this afternoon in Curtius' rooms at the hotel, and this was cited as one instance of the friendly spirit that has grown up.

Long-Term Plans Dropped.

There was no attempt to say that the French position regarding any such a proposition as the granting of long-term loans to Germany has changed in the slightest. However, much as some individual French statesmen might be prepared to envisage such a possibility—and those in a position to know say that not all of them are convinced the German crisis is without a menace to France—it is asserted they have adopted the point of view that, in the present circumstances, long-term loans are entirely impossible.

They are pinning their faith more, it is said, on the general betterment from such cooperation as may be possible in the near future and this cooperation, it is confidently asserted, has been materially forwarded in the developments of the last three days.

Such proposals as prolonging the credit of $100,000,000 with the central banks and the World Bank for International Settlements for another three months, it is said, is in a totally different category, according to the French view, from a flat grant of new credits.

Was Original Proposal.

At the hotel where the French delegation is staying it was being pointed out that the French themselves originally proposed a measure of this nature at Basel while the British showed themselves less enthusiastic.

It was believed the French delegation takes the view that Germany should be able to pull through her immediate crisis with the help of measures which will be announced at the plenary session of the conference tomorrow. France, it was pointed out, has weathered a financial crisis during and since the war which differed little in its outward aspects from that which Germany is now facing. But Frenchmen, it was said, "tightened their belts" and came through and they now too expect Germany to do no less.

SESSION IN LONDON BACKS HOOVER PLAN

tributed to the good will which is so necessary in the solution of this major question."

Arms Talk Understood.

When Secretary Stimson sailed for Europe, during the debt negotiations, it was announced he would talk disarmament abroad. But now, France, pushed aside in the London negotiations to aid Germany, has sent her preliminary report on her armaments to the League of Nations.

Taken at its face value, the French note, if insisted upon, would prevent the slightest progress at the February meeting. Not only does it refuse in present circumstances to reduce French military strength but it demands:

1—Agreements for mutual protection in event of war.

2—Recognition of France's need for an army not only big enough to protect her normally, but to offset the effect of stronger navies of other nations.

3—Recognition of France's responsibility toward her lesser allies in Europe, and of her need even if disarmament comes of a big army to protect them.

Move Called Handicap.

It was learned authoritatively that in the American view such proposals would prevent United States participation in any disarmament treaty based upon them, or incorporating them. It was believed here that the note would mean that Stimson could get nowhere if he talked disarmament at present.

There was one hope as expressed in authoritative quarters here that France might be talking for effect and, knowing the obvious inacceptibility of her proposals to this country and to Great Britain, might not make a serious effort to obtain their adoption. This was but a pious hope, and based on no information.

On the surface, the French note puts the disarmament situation back where it started ten years ago, when Article 10 of the League of Nations' covenant was a nightmare to the Wilson administration. That article only hinted at physical enforcement of peace by this country as part of a super army raised by the league to protect its members against aggression. The French note goes farther by proposng France herself as a sort of guardian mother of smaller European nations with whom she has special treaties.

Rangers' reply to "Alfalfa Bill's" remark that "all the Rangers can do is cuss and shoot craps." And his threat to proced against them.

Ranger Goss opened the show by splitting a playing card at 20 yards, while firing his pistol upside down.

Capt. Tom Hickman demonstrated some shooting from the hip, hitting eighteen matches out of twenty at 50 feet.

Other rangers fired rifles from the hip, shattering bottles tossed in the air.

Machine gun practice was held in the river bottoms.

Witnesses declared if straight shooting had anything to do with maintaining the barrier at the bridge, which Gov. Ross S. Sterling ordered guarded in line with a Federal Court injunction obtained by owners of a nearby toll bridge, the Rangers had the situation well in hand.

Gov. Murray declared that old Spanish treaties gave Oklahoma jurisdiction over the Texas bank of the Red River. He said:

"If they put anything else in the way of an obstruction of the bridge, I will remove it in the face of the Texas Rangers and other military authority of the State."

He previously had announced he would send Oklahoma National Guardsmen to the river if anybody tried to interfere with his action in closing the Oklahoma end of the toll bridge.

stalled and she pressed on the starter, but the engine of her auto did not start. She then sat in the machine until she heard men shouting at her to get out.

Two others testified that they had been trapped on the tracks by the gates within the pats month. Henry Meyer said that on July 15 he had started across the tracks after a train had passed and the gates had started to rise. When on the tracks, the barrier in front of him dropped on his radiator, preventing further movement of his auto.

Kenenth Heinbuch said that the same thing happened to him on June 25, and that, at this time the bell did not ring at the approach of the train.

Edward Yost, one of the bystanders who saw the crash, said that Miss Thomas was going about 30 to 35 miles per hour as she reached the crossing. He didn't hear the bell, but added that his whole attention was centered on the auto. A. A. Mothershead, who followed Yost on the stand, said he shouted to the woman to jump, and cried out again when she hesitated.

Dr. W. Allen Griffith, of Berwyn, testified that Walters probably died from concussion of the brain, while Ward's death was probably due to internal injuries. He said that both men had fractures of left ankle, and that Ward was not burned, although Walters was burned about the face.

JAPANESE WAR HELD NATIONALISTS' AIM

Rebels Say They Asked Aid in Fight on Nippon to Avert Civil Strife.

Hongkong, July 22 (A.P.).—Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Nationalist government of China, was said by the Cantonese insurgent government today to have asked the rebels to join in a war upon Japan in consequence of Korean outrages upon Chinese.

Harassed by new rebellious alignments against the Nationalist regime, Chiang was asserted to have offered to resign the presidency and take command of a force of 500,000 men to be raised in various provinces and thrown against Japan at the Korean border.

The Nationalist president was said to have viewed the recent killing of 100 Chinese in Korea by native mobs as a ground for making war upon Japan, which rules Korea. The Korean riots grew out of an attack by 500 Chinese upon 200 Korean irrigation laborers in Manchuria.

End of Civil Strife Sought.

Although Japanese police stations were refuges of hunted Chinese and Japanese police killed Korean attackers, Chiang was reported to seek hostilities against Japan as a means of ending factional strife in China, in a struggle against a common enemy.

The Canton government, however, was represented as not disposed to fight Japan, and it had not replied to Chiang's proposals. These were announced as having been transmitted through Chang Hueh-Liang, Governor of Manchuria and ally of the Nationalist government.

Professing friendship toward Japan, the Canton insurgents sent Eugene Chen, their foreign minister to Japan, to negotiate with Baron Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister. Japan, having recognized the Chinese nationalist government, agreed to receive Chen only as a foreigner making "a special inspection tour."

Resignation Rumor Denied.

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—The Kuo Min News Agency today said it had received a Nanking dispatch in which an unidentified high official of the Nanking government declared the report that President Chiang Kai-Shek had offered to resign if the Canton government would unite in warfare against Japan was "absolutely unfounded and preposterous."

The official was quoted further as saying the part of the report describing the Canton government as unfavorable to such a project was "evidence of the intentions of the Cantonese to make it appear that Nanking is rash while Canton is cool and clear thinking."

The spokesman concluded by saying, "Any dispute or difference of opinion between China and Japan will be duly taken care of through the proper diplomatic channels."

Narcotic Robbers Thought Those Who Held Up Capital Drug Store.

Dispatches received here late last night from Richmond, Va., indicate that bandits responsible for three drug store robberies in the Virginia city are probably the same men who last Sunday night bound Dr. Lony T. Queen in his drug store at 3704 Fourteenth street northwest and robbed his shelves of a quantity of narcotics. A box containing narcotics with the labels of the Richmond stores, as well as one with Dr. Queen's paster on it, was found by workmen yesterday under the North Anna Bridge on the Washington Highway, near the Virginia city.

One of the Richmond pharmacies was held up on Wednesday of last week and the second one on Thursday, while on Tuesday of this week the former drug store was again robbed by the same men. A description of the men has been sent here by Richmond police for comparison with that given by Dr. Queen of the men who victimized him.

The men who robbed Dr. Queen forced him at the point of a pistol into his prescription room where they tied him up, and proceeded to bundle up the bottles of narcotics, warning him that they would 'blow his brains out" if he gave the alarm in less than 30 minutes after they left. When they first made their robbery intentions known to the pharmacist he indicated the cash register, but they disdained the money, saying they wanted only drugs.

Story of Capturing Python In Bay Doubted by Ohioans

One of Cincinnati Men Says He Whacked Snake Over Head With Oar, But Curator Finds No Signs of Blow Sufficient to Stun It.

Sandusky, Ohio, July 22 (A.P.).—Snakes are snakes, and regardless of Sandusky's opinion of the "great sea serpent mystery," there was no doubt tonight about the captivity of "python moluius."

The snake—18 feet of it, alive and wriggling and more commonly known as an Indian python—was safely crated up, but how it was captured and where it came from was a mystery as big as the snake.

For weeks Sanduskians have been hearing fishermen relate stories of a huge serpent in the lake, but serpent or no serpent, they were hardly prepared for "Molly."

"Molly," two Cincinnati men stoutly insist, was captured in the waters of Sandusky Bay, yesterday. The captors, Clifford Wilson and Francis Bagenstose, maintained they were fishing from a rowboat when "Molly" hove alongside. Wilson gave her a whack over the head with his oar, he maintained and with his companion pulled her aboard. Ashore, they speedily nailed her in a box when she showed signs of returning to activity.

Newspapermen were told by Fire Chief Al Nice, of Columbus, that he has a nephew named Clifford Wilson, who, he said, is connected with a carnival company which showed in Cleveland during last week's international Shrine convention.

Identification of Python Molulius was made by Dr. Harold L. Madison, curator of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History. Dr. Madison declined to enter into any controversy as to where the snake came from, but said that it showed no signs of having been hit on the head with such force as to stun it.

The Indian python, he said, is imported in large numbers, principally by carnivals. It is nonpoisonous, affectionate, and has to be treated like a baby. The Sandusky snake, he said, by its tameness, evidently had been reared in captivity.

It showed no signs of being excited by its capture. A carnival at present is playing in Cleveland, but the management declared all its snakes were accounted for.

Attendants of the carnival said such snakes are slothful and easily managed when in water, although sometimes irritable on land.

The only theory advanced for the snake's presence in Lake Erie, aside from the one that it may have escaped from a carnival, was prompted by an account of a python becoming loose in a mail car en route from Barberton, Ohio, to Chicago some time ago. The mail clerk thought two pythons were loose; but when the train arrived in Chicago, only one was found. If there was a second snake that escaped, it would have had to crawl a long distance to the lake.

To all that, Wilson has only to say, "I am a reputable man." He proudly exhibited the discovery to newspapermen and patiently repeated his story to the skeptical. Tomorrow, he will take it to Cedar Point for exhibition.

Wilson and Bagenstose represented themselves as cement salesmen for a Cincinnati firm. They were not listed in the Cincinnati directory, but Mrs. Fred Meir, of that city, said her husband had employed them until this spring as cement workers.

Meanwhile, Python Molius went hungry today. There was no one who cared to open the box. Curator Madison said such snakes are fed two small chickens every ten days and have to be wrapped up at night like a baby. Wilson and Bagenstose had nothing to say about that.

U. S. OFFICIAL SEEKS POLICE COOPERATION

J. Edgar Hoover Declares His Office Should Have All Fingerprints.

Rochester, N. Y., July 22 (A.P.).—Emphasizing the necessity at all times for cooperation in all law enforcement work, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the United States Bureau of Identification, today urged delegates to the convention of the International Association for Identification to combine their forces to prevent the criminal and gangster from gaining ascendancy over law and order.

"No collection of individuals depends so completely and wholly upon mutual assistance and support as the law enforcement officer," said Mr. Hoover. "In effecting the apprehension of the vast army of criminals who ply throughout this and other countries, some cooperative system must be evolved which will solve the problem of these roving enemies of society."

Mr. Hoover said the work of his bureau would reach full efficiency only when every fingerprint taken in the country is forwarded for the files of his office.

Dr. Walter M. Thayer, jr., New York State commissioner of correction, criticized the current school methods. He said it is assumed that children are nearly equal in mental endowments, that grades have been fixed for passing. If the boy fails, he must try again until he becomes known in school as a dunce, with the result that he longs to get away from it, becoming a trunt, delinquent and finally a criminal.

Street Aid Decision Delayed.

The town council of Hyattsville, Md., met last night to receive a petition signed by nine of the eighteen property owners on Ellaville street asking that the thoroughfare be improved. Action was postponed, however, until August 10, to give the town engineer time to report on grades.

HEAT CONTRIBUTES TO WOMAN'S DEATH

Treasury Typist Falls Dead at Desk; Forecast Is Continued Warm.

Intense heat, concentrating in some sections of the city, contributed to the death of a Government worker yesterday and prostrated two laborers.

In general, the weather was more comfortable than it has been for several days, the official high mark being 88 degrees. At the kiosk, on Pennsylvania avenue, however, the thermometer attained a surprising maximum of 98, which accounted for the higher temperatures in downtown sections. Fair and continued warm weather is predicted for today.

Miss Myrtle Walker, 32 years old, of 1330 Ingraham street northwest, while typing in the division of loans and currency of the Treasury Department, Fourteenth and C streets southwest, fell to the floor and was pronounced dead a few minutes later. Physicians attributed the young woman's death to myocarditis, a disease of the heart, but the heat is believed to have hastened her demise. Fellow workers said that she had been troubled by the warm weather.

While working on the demolition of the Potomac Electric Power Building, Fourteenth and C streets northwest, Clarence Helpenstein, 25 years old, of 1006 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, was stricken by the heat and taken to Emergency Hospital in the hospital ambulance. He was removed to his home after receiving treatment.

Unsheltered from the beating rays of the sun, Sylvester Jackson, 22 years old, colored, working on a flatboat near the navy yard, was prostrated and taken to Emergency Hospital.

The maximum temperature was reached yesterday at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The lowest temperature was 69 at 6 o'clock in the morning. The lowest at the kiosk was 73. The humidity, registered at the Weather Bureau, was 67 at 8 o'clock in the morning, reaching a maximum of 44 per cent later in the day.

DEATHS REACH 17 IN SPAIN AS STRIKE WAR CONTINUES

nesses said that during the earlier riots at Triana the strikers placed women at the head of their columns in an effort to avoid fire from the troops and it was also said a woman was wounded when she was caught sniping from a rooftop during the fighting.

A Spanish warship was reported on its way to Seville. According to one version of the report, the ship is to serve as a temporary jail, but another version said it was coming to deport syndicalists.

Madrid, Spain, July 22 (A.P.).—A cabinet crisis seemed likely tonight, after the assembly had denied the government's right to enforce Minister of Interior Maura's decree suppressing syndicalist disorders without the assembly's sanction.

Minority leaders joined forces and blocked a motion for a vote of confidence for the government. As a result, cabinet members were disgruntled and it was understood the socialists, at least, may resign.

Finance Minister Prieto said, "Perhaps I will be a minister only a few more minutes."

Reports were current that republican forces already were rallying under Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux for the purpose of forming a new government.

Minister Maura, however, was optimistic that the cabinet difficulties would be solved. He said the government of President Alcala Zamora held the assembly's confidence and therefore did not need the assembly's approval much in the present situation.

Ramon Franco, aviator and assembly member, said the provisional cabinet must understand "the real aims of the republican revolution have not been completed."

He predicted that if the Cabinet refused to take stock of this, "a new violent revolution will surge from beneath." The minority group of the assembly insisted that the government explained the reasons for extraordinary measures taken.

The first day of the Government's new iron-fisted policy saw little improvement in the troubled labor situation, although some think the Government's order to troops to shoot first and investigate afterward may restore order shortly.

In Madrid, Director of Safety Galarza announced that bombs had been found in syndicalist quarters similar to those exploded in the streets last night and also plans indicating where telephone lines were to be cut.

In connection with the disturbances some observers recall the republic's benignant policy at the beginning of the regime, when it released some thousands of prisoners from jails and penitentiaries. In some cases former convicts who hailed the republic are supposed to have reverted to type as confirmed malcontents and violent agitators.

Whether the new-born republican government will fall under the assault of a "syndicalist revolution" seemed to be postponed until Monday or Tuesday, when the Parliament will complete its formation. Cabinet ministers met minority leaders of the Assembly in a secret conference of an hour and a half.

After the conference it was announced the Assembly would be constituted Monday or Tuesday, depending on when a majority of the deputies' credentials are approved.

This then will put the Assembly in a formal condition to deal with impending problems. It generally was interpreted as meaning Provisional President Alcala Zamora would resign. Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux and Minister of War Manuel Azana were mentioned prominently in connection with the post of premier.

Minister of War Miguel Maura, whose decree for the suppression of syndicalist disorders was an issue, said today he did not want the civil authorities in Seville, where fatal riots have occurred, to turn over the situation to the military for solution. "The civil authorities have sufficient power to defeat the syndicalists," he said.

Meanwhile police announced the arrest of 47 syndicalist leaders in a Madrid round-up, alleging they were attempting a plot against the capital. Several new bombs were found in various parts of the capital. Former Monarchist Governor Fuentes of Madrid was among those arrested.

Officer Is Sought In Garrison Revolt

Pomar Reported Fugitive in Paraguay After Argentine Outbreak.

Buenos Aires, July 22 (A.P.).—Lieut. Col. Gregorio Pomar, alleged leader of an uprising in Corrientes, was reported a fugitive in Paraguay tonight.

Sought for the death of Lieut. Col. Lino Montiel, commander of the Corrientes garrison, in a revolt Monday, Pomar and a band of fellow fugitives were reported to have crossed the frontier into Paraguay at Humaita.

Asked to give them asylum, the Paraguayan authorities admitted them, say dispatches from Asuncion. They disarmed the party of 6 cannon, 6 machine guns and 200 rifles. Although early reports said 80 men had fled with Lieut. Col. Pomar, Asuncion dispatches placed the number at 200.

Church Plans to Ignore Order Governor Issued

Mexico City, July 22 (A.P.).—The apostolic delegate, Archbishop Ruiz y Flores, said today the bishops in Vera Cruz would ignore an edict of Gov. Adalberto Tejeda that the church appoint thirteen priests in that state. The bishops, he said, "have no intention of recognizing the Tejeda law by appointing the limited number of priests allowed under the law."

A Vera Cruz dispatch said the governor had notified all Catholic priests they must comply by Saturday with the recently enacted state law, which allows one priest for every 100,000 persons. There are two bishops in the state, which has a population of about 1,300,000.

Two true bills charging murder were returned by a special grand jury against R. A. Bridges, who was said to have hurled the dynamite bomb; Burge Gilpin, alleged driver of the bomb-transporting automobile; Mabel Cline and Mildred Chambers, alias Cline. Eldridge McCord, former city fireman, also said to have been in the car from which the bomb was hurled, was indicted on one murder count.

Railways Will Lose Freights If Rates Rise, Expert Says

Dr. Edward Mead, University of Pennsylvania, Declares Roads' Request for 15 Per Cent Increase Stirs Menace of Greater Competition.

America's railroads, and many investors in their bonds, believe the railroads must have a 15 per cent increase in freight rates to preserve bond values, but, if the Interstate Commerce Commission grants the rate, can it be collected? Dr. Edward S. Mead, professor of finance of the University of Pennsylvania, gives his opinion in this the last of three interviews on the railroads with J. R. Brackett, Associated Press business writer.

By J. R. BRACKETT.

Philadelphia, July 22 (A.P.).—The users of the railroads will make every effort to evade the 15 per cent advance in freight rates, if the Interstate Commerce Commission grants them the increase, Dr. Edward S. Mead, of the University of Pennsylvania, said today.

And that policy of evasion, Dr. Mead said, will in some cases cost the railroads not merely the 15 per cent advance, but, where the evasion is successful, all of certain freight revenue.

The railroads and representatives of their millions of security holders have appeared before the commission asking for the rise on the ground that an emergency affecting more than 50,000,000 investors now impends, unless earnings are increased.

"It is one thing to advance rates," said Dr. Mead. "It is a very difficult and different thing to collect the advance on all traffic. Every effort will be made to evade the advance by employing some other method of transportation.

"The advance will be paid generally on farm products, and in general on the products of mines, except that the tonnage of the inland waterways, which have grown rapidly lately, will be increased.

"In the transportation of forest products, the railroads have a definite advantage. In animal products, cattle, hogs, poultry, sheep, eggs and butter, even wool, the railroads are suffering competition from trucks. The advance will increase that competition. It is possible the rails may lose more than the 15 per cent in reduced traffic.

"In manufactures and miscellaneous traffic, the largest revenue producing class, the situation is mixed. On some articles, such as heavy iron and steel pipe—although this has been recently going to the river—fertilizers, heavy machinery and boilers, canned goods, sugar, scrap iron, steel furniture, newsprint and other paper products, the railroads have too great an advantage to lose this traffic.

"Certain other large items will not apparently produce the expected revenue. Gasoline will, within a few years, be largely shipped by pipe line and truck. Gasoline, in 1929, yielded $273,000,000 freight revenue. Passenger automobiles are leaving the railroads. The increase will make them leave faster. They produced $126,000,000 of freight revenue. Cement with $67,000,000 will be greatly burdened; here the tendency will be to favor the location of plants near the market and the shipment of the product by boat or truck."

Giant DO-X May Leave Next Week for Miami

Rio de Janeiro, July 22 (A.P.).—The giant German seaplane DO-X will probably leave here at the end of next week for Miami, Fla., it was said today. The trip is expected to take eight or nine days. The DO-X is still being overhauled, but it was expected it would leave the drydock Saturday. Plans call for taking 40 passengers on the trip to the United States, as well as special mail. The flight will be made over the regular route of the Pan-American Airways, along which refueling arrangements have been made.

3 Convicted Bankers Bonded in New York

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—Bernard K. Marcus and Saul and Herbert Singer, officials of the closed Bank of United States, convicted of misusing bank funds, were released from Tombs Prison under heavy bail today after obtaining a certificate of reasonable doubt.

Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullan granted the certificate and fixed bail for Marcus and the elder Singer, president and vice president, respectively, of the closed bank, at $100,000 each. Bond for Herbert Singer was fixed at $50,000.

Pennsylvania Plans Radio to Fight Fires

Harrisburg, Pa., July 22 (U.P.).—The Pennsylvania Forestry Department is now experimenting with short wave radio sets to ascertain their adaptability for use in forest fire prevention work.

Officials said radio sets at fire observation towers instead of telephones would save huge expenditures for telephone line construction and increase efficiency in reporting fires.

100-Year-Old Turtle Caught.

Franklin, Pa. July 22 (U.P.).—A turtle which has lived more than a century—if the date carved on its shell is authentic—was captured here.

GUARD TROOPS JOIN FOREST-FIRE FIGHT

Blaze Sweeps Through 45,000 Acres, Endangering Ranches in Wyoming.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 22 (A.P.).—Wyoming National Guard troops were called out today to fight forest and grass fires in northeastern Wyoming while in the western section of the State 1,000 dude ranch guests, forest rangers, tourists and ranch hands were battling flames that have swept more than 45,000 acres of timber.

The C. M. Ranch, near Dubois, was threatened by fires, and ranch guests and others were fighting desperately to halt the flames. Several other smaller ranches also were in the path of the conflagration.

The guard troops were called out at Newcastle in northeastern Wyoming to fight a fire in the Black Hills, 15 miles from there, that had burned 1,200 acres of timber and grass lands.

The fires spread so rapidly in the exteremely dry forests that much game was believed to have perished. Officials were investigating reports that a pyromaniac had started eight fires in the Teton National Forest and near Lander.

The most disastrous fire was in Yellowstone National Park, where 25,000 acres on Basin Creek were burned over. Dude ranches were threatened by a fire on Jockey's Fork, a stream near Dubois. Forest officials believed, however, that the flames could be prevented from causing heavy property damage.

Four thousand acres were burned on Jockeys Fork and on Whiskey Mountain and forest officials described it as the worst fire ever to occur in that region.

Rapid City, S. Dak., July 22 (U.P.).—One of South Dakota's most disastrous forest fires sent residents fleeing for their lives tonight. It burned over a 5-mile front on the outskirts of Rapid City and defied efforts of hundreds of fire fighters to quench it.

A high northwest wind sent the red flames leaping through canyons, not far from the favorite fishing hole of Calvin Coolidge. The fire forced dwellers in summer cabins to run to safety in the city or upon the hills nearby.

Horse Tail Docker Is Sought by Police

Dixon, Ill, Man Has Mania for Shortening Fly Switches.

Dixon, Ill., July 22 (U.P.).—Search for a man said to have a mania for docking horses' tails was revived recently after a lapse of two years when it was discovered that he had again taken to satisfying his craze by snipping the tails of three horses on the farm of Charles Moyer.

There were six horses in Moyer's barn and the man docked the tails of three, leaving the others undisturbed.

Report of the incident served to recall that two years ago tails of horses, belonging to a farmer near here, were shortened as they were caught in a pasture during the night. Three years ago a pair of fine horses belonging to a lumber company at Franklin Grove had their tails docked. The same man is believed to have been the offender in all instances.

MRS WHOLEAN. GETS $100 BY LATE WILL

for all cash. Both of them have since been very repugnant to me."

The will directed her executors under the document, Henry Arnold, a nephew, and Harry Seay, her former secretary, to sell all of her property on her death. The bulk of the estate was to be divided between Mr. Arnold, his sister and Mrs. Henderson's niece, Frances Arnold; Jesse S. Shima, her Japanese secretary; Mr. Seay, the former secretary; C. K. Hasegawa and William Carter, members of her household staff.

Might Invalidate Will.

Mrs. Henderson noted that Valeria Novard was specifically omitted "due to the fact that she made it very unpleasant for me in many ways which I resented, and caused great mental anguish."

It was learned last night that Dr. Kellogg has communicated with a local law firm to protect his interests under the earlier wills.

The wills of Mrs. Henderson's husband and son both named Mrs. Wholean as an heir of the family. In some legal circles it is believed a contest over the estate, which is valued at between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, might result in invalidation of all wills executed by Mrs. Henderson. The division of the estate would then be under the laws of descent, and in this case Mrs. Wholean would receive a share.

Bakery Started to Aid Henderson Memorial

A bakery which will sell its output to finance a building for the J. B. Henderson Memorial Bible Institute, has been started by members of that organization, according to an announcement made yesterday. Proceeds will also be used to install brass tablets in the proposed institute building, which will honor the late Senator John B. Henderson, for whom the institute was named, and Mrs. Henderson, who died last week.

The object of the institute, according to officials of the movement, is to teach Christianity, morality, truthfulness, sobriety and cleanliness, and to train men as missionaries. All persons who apply for training are admitted without regard to race, creed, or color.

A skillet was found and greased, and with several outsiders drafted to witness the affair, the egg was fried on the roof of the company's warehouse.

Part Played by Secretary In Henderson Home Is Told

Kansas City Paper Says Japanese Protested Dowager's Acts.

Kansas City, Mo., July 22 (U.P.).—J. S. Shima, the Japanese manservant "secretary" to whom Mrs. John B. Henderson, Washington dowager, willed a large sum from her estate, was very much a factor in Mrs. Henderson's life—directing her replies to questions put by an interviewer, answering for her occasionally, protesting various of her actions, and even directing her signing of her name in autographing a book—the Kansas City Star has revealed.

Last February, while Mrs. Henderson was engaged in her legal battle with Mrs. Beatrice Wholean, a member of the Star's staff visited the huge Henderson home. The impressions contained in the story he wrote after that interview are of even greater interest now than then, in view of Mrs. Henderson's will.

Mrs. Henderson was napping, the writer says, when he presented himself, and Shima escorted him through the huge house, showing him the adjacent embassy properties either owned by Mrs. Henderson or sold by her to foreign governments.

"'We own that building, we own that lot,'" Shima is quoted as saying, and the writer adds:

"Occasionally he corrected himself to explain that the properties belonged now, or had belonged in the past to Mrs. Henderson."

Then Mrs. Henderson appeared. The writer continues:

"She returned with three black memoranda books. * * * Mrs. Henderson opened one of the little black books. 'Read that,' she commanded. 'Read it aloud.'

"We read an amazing charge that a woman, a former maid, aided by a prominent Washington banker, had broken into the safe at the old Henderson Castle, taking valuable documents and leases relating to the Henderson holdings here.

"'Is that true, Mrs. Henderson?'

"She nodded, and glanced toward Shima.

"'All I know is that Mrs. Henderson sent me to get some papers from the vault in Henderson Castle, and they were all gone,' he said.

"'* * * Read this,' the little old lady commanded again.

"This contained a charge that this same woman had cast a mystic spell over her, causing reptiles to crawl over her as she lay in bed.

"Again the secretary broke in: 'You know there are none in Washington outside of the zoo,' he asserted, indignantly.

"'* * * You should burn up those "goozee" books,' the secretary broke in again, scowling. 'You dreamed about those things. She calls those things in her head "goozees,"' he said, turning to us.

"'* * * She walked from room to room, telling of her plans.

"'What am I going to do with that lot?' she asked Shima, indicating one nearby.

"'You are negotiating with the Chinese Ambassador for the construction of the Chinese Embassy,' he said.

"'Yes,' she assented. 'That is what I am going to do with that.'"

At the conclusion of the interview, the writer says, he asked Mrs. Henderson to autograph for him a copy of a book she had written, which Shima had given him.

"Shima had returned with pen and ink," he says. "He opened the book at the fly leaf, laid it upon her lap, and handed her the pen. 'Sign Mary F. Henderson,' he commanded.

"She signed 'Mary F. Henderson.'"

LAKE OF THE OZARKS IS CREATED BY DAM

Midwest Looks Forward to Water Resort of First Magnitude.

Bagnell, Mo., July 22 (U.P.).—Out here in Missouri, about as far away from a large natural body of water as it is possible to get and still stay in the United States, the people are looking forward to a lake resort of first magnitude.

The site of this new vacation land is the Lake of the Ozarks, the largest artificial lake on the North American continent, which is filling up behind Bagnell Dam.

To engineers Bagnell dam means one of the leading hydroelectric projects in the country, built to supply power for St. Louis and for the lead mines of southeastern Missouri. But to the rest of the Middle West it is the obstruction in the Osage River which will make it possible to spend a lake-side vacation near home.

One glance at the string of cars on any of the roads leading up to the lake will be proof enough that Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Illinois and the other States hereabout regard the Lake of the Ozarks as something more than another industrial project. As many as 12,000 cars have gone through the gates on one of the highways near here in a single afternoon.

When the lake is finally filled, probably by the latter part of July, it will have a shoreline of something over 1,000 miles—enough shoreline to take care of a lot of camps and cabins and beaches and docks, as the folks around here figure it.

Whole towns and territory from three counties were sacrificed to this inland lake.

Gain in Longevity Laid To Short Hair, Clothes

Chicago, Ill., July 22 (A.P.).—Bobbed hair, lighter clothing and new freedom have added years to modern woman's life, in the opinion of Dr. A. F. Beddoe, of Dallas, Tex.

Speaking before the international convention of the Women's Benefit Association, attended by 11,000 delegates, Dr. Beddoe said woman's average death rate is now 55 years, higher than man's.

"The principal reason for the extension of the life span," he said, "is woman's new freedom. They have new hope, new zest in life. Bobbed hair did away with the encumbrance of long locks, and is healthful. Lighter clothes have been of inestimable value as a health agent."

Mrs. Hannah Caystile, 96, of Racine, Wis., who boasts of fifteen grandchildren, ten great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren, and is the oldest delegate, thinks, however, that woman attained the freedom at the expense of domesticity.

Banker, of Boston, 75, Commutes 60 Years

Boston, July 22 (U.P.).—George F. Lord, 75, Boston banker, has been commuting continuously for 60 years between his Lynn home and this city, a distance of about ten miles. Throughout that period he has travelled over the same railroad—the Boston & Maine.

More Swedish Roads.

Stockholm, July 22 (U.P.).—The combined length of Sweden's highways is now 75,864 kilometers (about 47,110 miles), according to a report of the Swedish Roads Association.

CUSTOMS PACT HELD TRADE PARTNERSHIP

Austrian Tells World Court Union Not to Violate Independence.

The Hague, Holland, July 22 (A.P.). From Plato, Woodrow Wilson and Karl Marx, Dr. Erich Kaufmann, Austrian attorney, drew precepts today before the permanent court for international justice in his argument on behalf of the projected Austro-German customs union.

His manner was one of dogged, stolid exposition as he sought to prove that the customs agreement would in no wise violate Austria's independence as safeguarded by the League of Nations under the various post-war treaties.

"There is nothing in those treaties," he said, "which justified an interpretation which would amount to creating an Austrian protectorate to the point of annihilation."

In the post-war negotiations, he said, it was decided only that Germany should recognize Austrian independence, and no rigid restrictions were placed on intercourse between the two nations.

The right to make one's own choice is the cornerstone of liberty, he told the distinguished judges, demanding, "can you forbid business partnerships if the owners of the business wish to create them?"

Wedded Woman Best Teacher.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 22 (U.P.). Married women make better school teachers than single ones, Everett Davis, head of the Woodrow Wilson junior high school at Des Moines, Iowa, told his class in educational methods at the University of Chattanooga summer school.

... Demand a "YES" ... TO these 5 QUESTIONS

Before you decide on any refrigerator

These five questions are vital to any refrigerator buyer. Promise nothing until you have a definite "YES" to each question.

1. Will it pay liberal dividends in food saving and lessened operation cost?

2. Does it have a modern hermetically sealed unit in the top out of sight that insures trouble-free performance?

3. Will it operate efficiently in "Dog Days," under pantry shelves, in wall recesses and other places where there is little natural air circulation?

4. Will it not only stop but start up automatically when unusual conditions interrupt operation?

5. Is it good looking, and does it offer such conveniences as a usable flat buffet top, broom-high legs, maximum shelf space, temperature selector in the right place, etc.?

Westinghouse answers all five questions with an emphatic "YES." Not even the smallest detail has been overlooked by this great engineering organization in designing this "Completely Balanced" Westinghouse Refrigerator. No feature has been overdeveloped for spectacular effect at the expense of another. Food preservation, fast freezing, operating mechanism, storage capacity are all perfectly balanced with each other. That explains its impressive success.

Learn about the distinctive features of the Westinghouse before you choose any refrigerator.

COFFEE TAX TO AID ISLAND SUGGESTED

Tariff Barrier Would Help Porto Rico to Replace Sugar, Is Plan.

(United Press.)

A tariff tax on the Nation's breakfast cup, which might divert Porto Rico and other United States colonies from sugar to coffee growing, was suggested yesterday in a report by the Catholic Association for International Peace.

As the United States now imports all its coffee, mostly from Brazil and Colombia, and all of it duty-free, such a tariff would amount, the report said, "to a bonus to Porto Rican growers paid out of the pockets of American coffee drinkers."

It would raise United States coffee prices. Goods shipped from Porto Rico to the United States, like those from the Philippines and Hawaii, pay no tariff.

The survey, made by the association's committee on colonial dependencies, is the first organized presentation of this possibility. Most United States observers believe the Porto Rican situation is desperate from an economic viewpoint. The island is overcrowded and devoted chiefly to sugar-growing. Wages are very low, and the price of sugar is way down. "Depressed" is a mild word for the island's plight.

Economic Aid Needed.

But new agitation for independence has sprung up in Porto Rico, and some such economic aid as embodied in this proposal is believed by many to be needed.

Aid may come for such a tariff plan from American sources, for Porto Rico's great flood of sugar, like the similarly duty-free shipments from the Philippines and Hawaii, does much to hold down sugar prices and depress the sugar producers of the beet regions of the West and the cane section in the South.

The Northwestern farmers have already given a strong impetus to the Philippine independence movement, because they want a tariff wall against the coconut products which compete with their dairy products, and it appears now that this conflict will be pressed to a decision this winter.

Coffee to Replace Sugar.

A tariff on coffee might tend to transpose the sugar cane fields of the Philippines and Hawaii into coffee plantations and reduce their flood of sugar shipments.

The association's survey was emphatic in asserting that the present United States policy toward Porto Rico, described as "negligence," must change.

Congress, it was stated, must decide whether Porto Rico is to be given independence eventually, whether it is to be made a State of the Union, or whether it is to be a self-governing dominion owned by the United States. If the third alternative is accepted, Congress must take steps, such as the coffee tax, to build up the island economically, the report said.

Other economic measures suggested as possibilities were: Reduction in the United States tariff on sugar from other countries, which would lead to some diversified farming by further depressing the Porto Rican sugar industry; introduction of factories; encouraging emigration of laborers from the overpopulated island.

Woodcock Scouts Charges by Agent

Chief Sees No Substance in Northern New York Rum Protest.

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition Director Woodcock said yesterday investigators thus far had found "no substance" in charges made by Charles W. Kress, former senior investigator in northern New York, who resigned after protesting against enforcement conditions there.

The bulk of Kress' charges, Woodcock said, was against Lowell D. Smith, deputy prohibition administrator for northern New York. Smith was charged by Kress with "collusion with local dry law violators," Woodcock said.

Asked whether the charges involved persons politically prominent in New York, the Federal dry chief said some of Kress' statement apparently "harked back to old stuff concerning incidents before the Justice Department took over prohibition enforcement."

THE GIRL ABOUT TOWN

I MET Vera Bloom, daughter of the associate director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, in Brentano's yesterday, and she told me about the tea the Blooms are giving for the newspaper women of Washington on Sunday at the Harry New home in Edgemoor, which they have taken for the summer. Vera, who is a friend of Mussolini and other European notables, told of her experiences in being presented at court in London this spring. The Blooms have found, among their duties as tenants at the News' menage, the task of caring for thousands of birds which have adopted this hospitable mansion for their home. To date, Daddy Bloom is winning out in keeping another associate director from being appointed. Such power in a Republican administration for a Tammany Democrat from the sidewalks of New York!

As I passed the French Embassy in upper Sixteenth street—the Avenue of the Presidents, according to the recently departed grande dame of Henderson Castle—I caught a fleeting glimpse of His Excellency Paul Claudel, comfortably arrayed in white flannel trousers and a soft shirt with neck tucked in and sleeves rolled up, busily writing away on a new sonnet, or epic, or what have you.

The joys of other diplomats at North Shore resorts are not for this poet-philosopher-diplomat, whose vacation has been slaughtered to make a debt holiday. Tell it not in Gath, whisper it not in the Metropolitan Club, but I hear on good authority that Ambassador Paul is slated for the Berlin post, sooner or later. Of course, there is that little matter of the reception given to his "Columbus" by an operawise Berlin audience, and some adjustment is needed in regard to certain uncomplimentary lines penned by M. Claudel during the late unpleasantness. Meantime the ambassador passes his time waiting for cables and planning his part in that French book club to be launched before long. My, I have given away another secret!

THE popping of corks from grape concentrate bottles smote my ears pleasantly as I strolled by the attractive Georgetown home of Mabel Walker Willebrandt, the great apostle of that new remedy for the thirsty. You know Mabel. So do I. But I did not feel like calling just then to see if a little party was on or if the corks were just bursting out with joy and excitement as the result of a little sugar and yeast inadvertently placed in them by naughty wets.

What a change from the days when Mabel found her old-fashioned garden one morning piled high with "empties" thrown in by irreverent neighbors! Of course, Senator Tydings lives near by, but no senator, even from Maryland where the eighteenth amendment is more honored in the breach than the observance, would forget his constitutional oath and have liquor of any kind on his premises—save for medicinal purposes. So where could he have gotten an "empty" with which to point a moral or adorn a tale for Mabel, then the lady high executioner of the prohibition enforcement army?

It was only a league or so away to the Daisy Harriman estate, so on I marched to see if that disputed dirt was still there. It was, and Daisy and her hosts are standing guard over it lest they lose their evidence in that $20,000 damage suit against Ray Baker, former Director of the Mint and Beau Brummel of Washington's Upper Ten Thousand. Ray had better compromise, for he will find Daisy is a determined lady and will not stand for dirt in the wrong place.

Few recall it, but in Ray's salad days before political fortune smiled on him and he met the heiress of headache millions he was warden of a Western prison, where the refrain "digging dirty ditches all day long" was the convicts' theme song. These brethren of the stripes didn't care where they threw the dirt, nor did any one else, so long as "hard labor" was enforced. Ray has the best-looking pink and blue shirts in Washington, and his gray hair is the final charm for femininity. However, he may have met his Waterloo now—even though he is a fellow Democrat!

Saw Paul Anderson in the Press Club dining room denying lustily that he was the author of the new anonymous volume "Washington Merry-Go-Round." Well, anyway, he's getting a lot of advertisement out of the suspicion. But his calling list may be cut down considerably this winter. Spent most of the afternoon looking for something that was true in that book!

WOMAN SAYS CLERIC IS FATHER OF CHILD

Former Choir Girl on Stand in Minister's Suit for Divorce.

Camden, N. J., July 22 (U.P.).—Dr. Camille Estornelle, former rector of fashionable St. John's Episcopal Church, whose wife accuses him of leading the life of an "Elmer Gantry" among the young women of his parish, was named today by Miss Anne McKenna, former choir girl, as the father of her 2-year-old son.

Miss McKenna testified during trial of the minister's suit for divorce, in which he accuses his wife of desertion. In a counter suit she has charged him with intimate association with several young women during the years of their wedded life.

The former choir singer, who is 23, came into court with her son, Robert D. McKenna.

"Who is the father of your child?" she was asked point-blank after she had identified herself.

"Dr. Estornelle," she answered.

Asked Doctor's Advice.

Before she testified, Dr. Robert S. Gamon, of Camden, told the court she had visited him before the child was born and had asked for advice about an illegal operation. He persuaded her to abandon this idea and the baby was born in a Camden hospital in December, 1928, he said.

Dr. Gamon said Miss McKenna, in his presence, voluntarily signed a paper in which she declared she wanted to relieve Dr. Estornelle from all responsibility for the child "for the good of the church."

Miss McKenna's testimony, hysterical at one stage, climaxed a series of startling revelations made by Mrs. Estornelle's counsel. The minister's wife, in her testimony yesterday and today, told of several instances in which her minister-husband had pursued other women. On frequent occasions, she declared, Dr. Estornelle took his field glasses into the back yard at night in order to spy on a young woman undressing in a nearby house.

Told Unsavory Jokes.

And today Dr. Alfred E. Jones, a Leonardstown (Md.) minister, testified that when he attended a party in 1926, Dr. Estornelle "put too much gin in his ginger ale and told unsavory jokes."

At this party, Dr. Jones said, the Camden clergyman "made improper advances" to Mrs. Jones and had another woman—neither Mrs. Jones nor Mrs. Estornelle—sitting on his lap part of the time.

Miss McKenna, during her testimony, broke down once and cried:

"I'm wild about him! I love him, but it is a crazy love! I was so wild about him that I did anything for him and would again!"

She said she met the minister in 1927 while singing in the St. John's choir, and that she first had relations with him in the vestry of the church inn.

When he learned of her condition, she said, he offered her $40 or $50 to pay for an illegal operation. When Dr. Gamon advised her against the operation, she declared, Dr. Estornelle met her with a lawyer and pleaded with her not to disgrace him.

Dry Drive at Election Is Forecast by Leader

Westerville, Ohio, July 22 (A.P.).—The dry forces of the Nation will unite immediately and launch a campaign to overthrow any attempt to write a wet plank into the political platforms and nominate wet candidates, Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, said here today.

The temperance forces will not wait a year to see who is nominated for President and what the platforms say about prohibition, Dr. Cherrington said. As chairman of the strategy board of a union of dry forces, he urged "that the temperance forces begin immediately a general educative and informative program which would have its effect on the kind of delegates to be selected for each of the national political conventions."

Former Premier Denies Concern Paid Hotel Bill

Ottawa, July 22 (A.P.).—A denial that his hotel bills, while on a trip to Bermuda, were paid by the Beauharnois Power Co. was made in the House of Commons today by W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal opposition and former premier.

Mr. King said some newspapers had interpreted evidence given before the Beauharnois committee of the House of Commons by Senator Wilfred Laurier McDougald as signifying that the bills were paid by the company. Such an interpretation is absolutely incorrect, he declared.

Hudson Is Accused On Bigamy Charge

Warrant Issued for Arrest of New Husband of "Ma" Kennedy.

Longview, Wash., July 22 (A.P.).—A charge of bigamy was filed by County Prosecutor Cecil C. Hollin today against G. Edward Hudson, who married Mrs. Minnie ("Ma") Kennedy here June 28, and a warrant for Hudson's arrest immediately issued.

The prosecutor charged Hudson was not divorced from Mrs. L. Margaret Newton-Hudson at the time he married the mother of Aimee McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, here.

Mrs. Kennedy filed suit in Los Angeles last week seeking annulment of her marriage to Hudson. Mrs. Newton-Hudson has filed suit for divorce and yesterday a $250,000 breach of promise suit was filed against Hudson by Mrs. Ethel Lee Parker Harbert. She charged Hudson had refused to marry her after taking her on a prenuptial trip in 1929.

Sleeping Sickness Hits U. S. Teacher in Canada

Montreal, July 22 (A.P.).—Dr. Edward Sisson, educator of Reed College, Portland, Oreg., is ill in a hospital here with sleeping sickness in a minor form. He was brought here from Quebec on his return from a lecture tour in England.

Dr. W. F. Hamilton said today his condition was "very satisfactory," although his convalescence will last about two weeks more.

Hall Fails to Cut Air Mark of Hawks

Makes Montreal-New York Flight in 14 Minutes More Than Record.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 22 (A.P.).—James Goodwin Hall failed by 14 minutes today to attain a record for a flight from Montreal to New York, held by Capt. Frank M. Hawks. He made the dash in his big monoplane Crusader in 1 hour and 59 minutes, while Hawks' time was 1.45.

Hall, a New York stock broker, challenging the birdman, who to date has gathered more speed marks than any other American pilot, had set what he believed to be a record for the flight to Montreal, covering the 350 miles in two minutes less than it took him to return.

Going north, he carried a passenger, Jules R. Timmins, also a stock broker, whom he left in the Canadian city to lighten his homeward load.

In addition, he said, 150,000 head of live stock will have to be taken from the drought areas of Saskatchewan to places where feed is more plentiful.

A CHECKING LIST

OF VITAL IMPORTANCE

To Everyone Thinking of AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATION

When you buy an automatic refrigerator, you rightly expect it to give untold satisfaction for years to come. Therefore, TAKE TIME BEFORE YOU BUY TO MAKE SURE YOU ARE GETTING EVERYTHING YOU EXPECT. Here is an invaluable checking list. Tear it out and actually use. Use it to compare the FACTS about the Gas Refrigerator—Electrolux—with ANY other automatic refrigerator anywhere.

	ELECTROLUX	ALL OTHER AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATORS
1. Noise	Electrolux is permanently silent—not simply quiet but SILENT, because there are no moving parts to make noise.	All other automatic refrigerators operate by a mechanical principle and so cannot help but cause some noise some time. However, investigate for yourself—check with your friends—and put down your own findings here.
2. Cost of Operation	Electrolux is the most economical cold-maker in the world. Its average cost for most families is about 6 cents a day for both gas and water. And since there is nothing to wear out and become inefficient, this cost will never increase.	Cost of ice——cents per day or Cost of other makes——cents per day.
3. Service	If for any reason your refrigerator ever needs any work done on it you will never have to pay one cent for labor.	Motors, fans, pumps, condensers, and such mechanical contrivances must wear out in time. What will your refrigerator cost then, in labor alone, to operate?
4. Payments	You have 24 months to pay for an Electrolux, and NOT A CENT for finance charges.	Payments over——months. Finance charges——.
5. First Cost	This is approximately the same for all leading automatic refrigerators. However, what you actually pay is first cost plus financing charges and so Electrolux actually costs you less since we do not add a single cent for financing.

A BLOW TO DISARMAMENT.

A pall of gloom is cast over the general disarmament conference scheduled for Geneva next February by the French memorandum to the League of Nations. Without mincing words France informs all the other powers that further reduction of her armed forces will not be considered unless France is given definite security against invasion. In view of the present "state of Europe and the world" France believes that her army and navy have been reduced to the lowest point consistent with national security.

Of course, France does not wish to be put into a position of blocking disarmament. Premier Laval's government is ready to "collaborate unqualifiedly in any system for the general organization of world peace based on definite pledges of common assistance." The memorandum suggests, therefore, that the task of the forthcoming conference should be to seek a political rather than a technical solution of the problem. France is willing to maintain fewer arms if other nations will agree to use their arms in defense of France. But so long as there remains a German menace across the Rhine, France will not go unprotected.

France refused to sign the London naval treaty because of a conviction that it did not allow sufficient security. The differences between France and Italy have not yet been settled and both countries remain outside of that agreement. Backed up by strong public sentiment, the French government is adamant in its demands. There is every reason to believe that France will allow the general disarmament conference to go on the rocks rather than budge from the position she has just taken.

Premier MacDonald has likewise announced that Britain has gone the limit in disarming. Through the use of misleading budget figures he tried to make it appear that Britain alone among the great powers has reduced its military and naval strength. His error has been effectively corrected, but the fact remains that the British government is not disposed to curtail its fighting forces. Great Britain would not think of another trimming down unless France reduced proportionately.

What nation, then, is to reduce? The United States Army has been emasculated ever since the war, and the American Navy is far below the limits fixed by international treaty. In a recent address President Hoover called attention to the fact that the United States' forces have been demobilized more than all others. It is well known that this country is anxious to go as far as any other in the reduction of armed forces, but the United States will never consent to be made a pacifistic example to the world.

It appears that the general disarmament conference will have scant material to work upon. France will do her utmost to put the question of disarmament on a political basis. Attempts were made at the London naval conference to secure guarantees for France. The price of French cooperation was the entanglement of the United States in European politics. France wants the other great powers of the world to agree to use their armed forces against the aggressor in any future international conflict, the aggressor to be designated by the League of Nations. Such a sacrifice of independence is, for the United States, out of the question. The American people will not permit this country to be drawn into the political squabbles of Europe. If that is the only basis on which disarmament at Geneva can be considered by the leading military and naval powers, participation in the conference by the American Government appears to be useless.

CALENDAR REVISION.

The movement for the revision of the calendar will culminate in the international conference to be held in Geneva next October. Not since 1582 has there been any change in the Christian calendar. At that time Pope Gregory dropped ten dates from the Julian reckoning so as to restore the vernal equinox to March 21.

The purpose of the present movement is to fix week days to perpetual dates, keep the seven-day week as a time unit and establish uniform months commensurate with the weeks. By so doing Sunday would always come on the first, eighth, fifteenth and twenty-second of each month. Of the many schedules suggested, the plan of Moses B. Cotsworth seems to combine the most satisfactory principles of the new idea with the fewest changes of established customs.

Mr. Cotsworth proposes thirteen months of four weeks each, which would fill out the years except for one day. This one day he suggests calling "Year Day" and making it a holiday, falling on December 29. There would still be the extra day we now have every four years as February 29. This day would be retained as "Leap Day" and would fall on June 29. The extra month, for which the name "Sol" is suggested, would follow June, and would not thereby change the position of the other months in the seasons. This reckoning, it is claimed, would offer distinct advantages to many types of private as well as public affairs.

The Geneva conference will consider the value of simplification of the calendar with regard to economic and social advantages. The discussion, however, will be influenced by the views of religious bodies, insofar as any change may affect their creeds and traditions. Protestant leaders in this country, who have been approached for opinions with regard to the change, have registered no objections in 82 per cent of the cases. The only protest received so far has been from the Jews. Speaking for British Jewry, the chief rabbi stated that it was of vital importance to Judaism that there would be no interruption of a seven-day week; that is, that regular sequence for the weeks should not be broken by the blank or "year" day.

FASTER AND SAFER.

Leaders in aviation from all parts of the United States will assemble in Washington today for the first session of the National Aeronautic Association. They will find the Capital abreast of the times and vitally interested in the advancement of flying. Commercial lines centering in this city provide the best service in the world, and intelligent encouragement for every branch of this great new industry is afforded by many Government agencies. The Departments of Commerce and Postoffice and Army and Navy officials are doing fine, practical work for the advancement of aviation.

When the association delegates conclude their sessions with a trip to Langley Field they will see evidences of progress in scientific experimentation as well as efficiency in practice. The life-size wind tunnel now in operation there is developing most interesting results. The visitors will learn more while here of the marvelous expansion of the air mail service. They will find that the postal authorities are alive to the ever-increasing demand, not only for air mail facilities, but for still more rapid service. They are contemplating the early necessity of mail planes with speeds 50 to 70 per cent greater than at present.

The aviation enthusiasts who are Capital guests today will regret that their country is not to be represented at the forthcoming Schneider Cup races in England. But they will also be interested to learn more of the Navy plans to build a special plane and develop a superspeed motor that may be expected to take part in subsequent contests. Indications are that this engine will have a liquid-cooled power plant, that it will be stream-lined, equipped with a supercharger and capable of producing more than 1,000-horsepower.

This is but a part of the important work that will be undertaken in the three-year program of high-speed aircraft research that has been inaugurated by the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy. Gearing propellers and the broad questions involved in the most satisfactory type of construction of the plane itself will be fully studied, while among the immediate practical investigations will be thorough tests of the safety advantage of the autogiro. The Navy's new two-place Pitcairn machine will be sent to Langley Field, where structural features and performance characteristics may be defined and compared with conventional designs.

Washington welcomes the American sponsors of aviation to the aeronautical convention. They will find the Capital conversant with their good work and hearty in its support of their aspiration to make transportation by air ever faster and safer.

THE COST OF LIVING.

One of the few bright spots in the depression is the decreasing cost of living. Economists lament the falling of commodity prices, but the family which has a stable income can only rejoice over the fact that it costs about 10 per cent less than a year ago to maintain the same standard of living.

According to the calculations of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the cost of living is still 50 per cent higher than it was in 1913, but it is more than 30 per cent below the apex reached in June, 1920. Food prices have led in the decline. In the last half year 14 per cent was trimmed from the average cost of foodstuffs. Clothing, house furnishings, fuel and light have fallen off somewhat. Rents lag behind with only slight decreases.

This readjustment of prices is an inevitable result of the current economic situation. Large surpluses and weak demands automatically bring prices down. The economic structure is seeking a new level. When prices are low enough to stimulate new buying business should begin to gain momentum and gradually attain its former pace whether or not previous price levels are restored.

Farmers are distressed because there is not a good market for some of their products at any price above the cost of production and distribution. The public has not received the full benefits of the 38 per cent decline in the prices of farm products since the depression began. Many other factors enter into the price of finished food products, so that there is a wide spread between farm and retail market values. The result is demoralization of agriculture far out of proportion to the slump in food prices.

A commodity index prepared by the Department of Commerce, based on 550 commodity prices and quotations, shows a decline of 20 per cent in the last year. This includes the whole field of products that enter into the cost of living. Yet the actual cost of living has shrunk only half that much. Retail prices are much slower to respond to the depression than is either production or wholesale prices. Middlemen, who stand between the producer and the consumer, appear to be reaping richer harvests than before hard times set in.

Falling commodity prices are deplorable because they lead to demoralization of the agencies of production. But lower costs of living can be welcomed, because they tend to reduce the wide margin between production costs and consumption prices, and thus stimulate buying. A broad gulf between what the manufacturer and the grower receive and what the consumer pays can only accentuate the economic derangement.

A rise in commodity prices would be a hopeful sign, because it would indicate that industry had again struck a balance between supply and demand. But there is no reason why the cost of living should not continue to fall. A narrower margin for the middleman would be a stimulating influence.

DEFUNCT MOTOR CARS.

The Legislature of New York during its recent session enacted legislation which gives to the board of supervisors in each county authority to prescribe regulations for the disposal of defunct motor vehicles. The first county in the State to take advantage of this authority is Rensselaer, which has ordained that dead motor cars may not be abandoned along the highways. Instead, all such vehicles must be hidden behind high board fences erected at least 250 feet away from the highways. Furthermore, the owners of all such trash must separate it into two divisions. Metal parts may be disposed of as junk, and everything about the wreck which will burn must be at once consumed by fire. A fine of $50 or 30 days in jail, or both, is provided for the violators of the regulations.

The citizens of Troy, the county seat of Rensselaer, have risen in arms, so to speak, against the creation of "automobile graveyards" in their back doors. Fortified by the action taken by the supervisors, it is the purpose of the Trojans to see that the authorities take immediate steps to notify those people who maintain the dumps, which have destroyed so much of the beauty of the surrounding landscape, that they must obey the mandate immediately or prepare to suffer the consequences.

Nearly every city in the country is suffering from the same cause which has aroused the people of northern New York. The disposition of played-out motor cars is a problem confronting every municipality. The Legislature of New York is to be commended for paving the way toward that solution, and Troy is to be congratulated upon being the first city to benefit by the act.

Senator Fletcher does not object to turning Washington from brick to marble, but he does object to any delay.

"Capone's aid given two years in prison," says a headline. A rare gift indeed for Chicago!

THE RAILROAD PROBLEM

From the Journal of Commerce.

A study of the statistical exhibits presented at the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the railroads' freight rate increase application leads to one basic conclusion. What was known ten years ago as the "railroad problem," which appeared to be solved for a time by the transportation act of 1920, is with us again, and in full force. The period of prosperity which culminated in 1929 provided sufficient stimulus to general business to obscure this problem for a while by providing a specially large volume of freight traffic to bolster up carrier earnings. With the coming of the business depression the problem has returned and the blanket freight rate increase now sought is the inevitable result.

The truth of the matter is that, with the evolution of new media of transportation, the railroads' prospects of increasing their traffic further is dimmed. Even with a resumption of active business and after making allowance for the steady growth of the country and a corresponding increase in the total volume of traffic carried, motor vehicles, pipes lines, electric transmission lines and waterways may be expected to gain sufficient new traffic to keep the business of the railroads on a fairly even keel. This leads to the necessity of higher rates, which in turn lead to friction with shipping interests, especially in depressed industries.

Without alluding to the merits of the present rate rise case, which under the rate-making clause of the transportation act will doubtless have to be granted, at least in part, the need for a reconsideration of the whole railroad problem in relation to other media of transportation can not be overemphasized. After having been run down badly during and immediately after the war period, the carriers have been rehabilitated physically and have made important progress in efficiency during a period of general business stimulation. It is not certain when fortuitous circumstances will again permit a major temporary expansion of railroad traffic, but meanwhile the question of whether the railroad system can be made a more economical transportation machine under the circumstances may well be studied. Raising freight rates may do for once or as an emergency measure, but it obviously can not be relied upon as a permanent cure. Abandonment of unprofitable mileage and unnecessary stations, coordination of railroad and motor vehicles, control of pipe lines, reduction in labor costs—these are some of the more enduring sources of relief for the carriers that should be taken up.

Commissioner Eastman, in cross-examining witnesses at the hearings on the blanket freight rate increase application, gave some evidence that he had in mind some such more thorough and permanent cure for the carriers. The course of action indicated for the Interstate Commerce Commission is to grant at least some measure of relief through rate increases as soon as possible under the present application, and then to make a thorough and courageous investigation into the matter of the future of railroad transportation in the United States in relation to the needs of shippers, and with due regard to the interests of present and prospective investors in railroad securities. The commission can not afford to muddle along without a program much longer, for the situation is too serious to warrant a Fabian policy. By boldly gauging the place which the railway network will have to retain in the transportation scheme of the country over the coming years, and taking steps to permit it to do this work as cheaply and efficiently as possible, our system of railroad regulation may catch up with developments instead of constantly lagging sadly behind them.

THE EMPTY PURSE.

Empty is the pocketbook,
Let us take another look.
What could that small wallet hold
More than silver coins and gold?
Can it possibly be true
That it held our courage, too?
Was all beauty carried there?
What about the friends who care?
Did that little leather case
Hold each bright and smiling face
That we loved to look upon?
Can we say that all is gone?

Did it hold the morning sun,
And the silver brooks that run
Laughing gayly to the sea?
Were the blooms of plant and tree
And the songs of summer birds
And the neighbor's cheery words
Held together by a strap
And that little leather flap?
Was the children's laughter glad Bought with dollars we have had,
That we fear to carry on
Just because the money's gone?

Empty is the pocketbook,
Let us take another look.
What if fortune is no more,
All things else are as before.
Roses bloom and skies are blue,
And the good friends' howdy-do
Falls as sweetly on the ear:
After dusk the stars appear.
Rich or poor, there still is much
Fair to see and good to touch.
We have treasures manifold
Which no pocketbook could hold.

You Invite Loss When You Befriend a Neighbor Whose Children Are Taught to Steal.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN America, for all of our boasted equality, there is class prejudice.

You may call it poverty's envy of riches, or the country's envy of town, but the fact remains than one class, even in early childhood, feels a deep-rooted enmity for the other.

It is a bitter, unreasoning, heartless feeling, easily aroused to violence, and those who are not aware of it either close their eyes to the truth or else live too far from the world of sour shirts to be aware of it.

In other times, race prejudice was the chief support of war. Class prejudice can be equally prolific of butchery if it is encouraged.

And the encouragement of it is the chief present concern of Russia.

Travelers whose word is dependable have visited the children's theaters in Russia and found them little more than implements of propaganda.

Boys and girls who are conscious of being "low class" are shown pictures of aristocratic Red Cross nurses refusing to give common soldiers a drink and thus permitting them to die in agony.

From dramas and from motion pictures they learn that none but foolish people easily tricked by sharpers believe in a God; that the church everywhere is a tyrant that taxes the poor and teaches them to be slaves of capital; that property owners in all lands are cruel, unjust and vicious masters who thrive by robbing the poor.

Were you poor in childhood? Did you ever resent the superior airs and the jibes of some spoiled brat too early aware of the powers of wealth? If so, you can realize how such propaganda affects the minds of Russian children.

They believe what they are taught, as American children believe that two times two is four. And as the mind of the American child is affected for life by stories of valor and honor and the triumph of decency, so the mind of the Russian child is filled with class-conscious hatred of everything America holds dear.

It is Russia's right to train her youth to believe in communism, but no nation has the right to poison a generation with falsehood and groundless prejudice.

It is a policy that must inevitably lead to the most brutal of warfare and pillage.

To befriend Russia now, however praiseworthy her economic progress, is to befriend a policy of deliberate falsehood, envy, hatred and all uncharitableness.

To praise those who fill young minds with untruth is to serve the father of lies.

A Costly Failure.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

For a long time, as wheat prices continued to fall, the Farm Board had one shaky leg to stand on. It claimed that had it not been for governmental stabilization the market would have been much worse than it was. Now that prop is gone. The wheat market is worse than it ever has been in the history of the country. And the Farm Board, peering about for excuses, lays most of the blame to raids by professional short sellers.

Why not admit that the entire program has failed, take the loss, and move on to a sensible, unpaternalistic system of handling wheat? The board has failed miserably to enlist the cooperation of wheat growers in curtailing production. Its purchase of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat, which is now held as it were over the heads of people who deal in the commodity, has demoralized rather than stabilized the market, as virtually every sane economist predicted when the scheme was begun.

Davis Rebukes Hawes.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Governor General Dwight F. Davis, at the opening of the insular legislature, indirectly but cleverly and convincingly answered and rebuked the campaign arguments of Senators Hawes and Pittman for immediate independence of the Philippines.

In his message he advised the Filipinos to drop politics and devote themselves to the extremely backward economic development of the islands. For 30 years, he said, politics, not economics, has held public attention. In the present critical condition, economics must dominate politics. He called attention to the success of neighboring competitors who had gone far beyond the Filipinos in economic development, and added:

"As a result we are today incapable of competing in the world markets. The continuation of this condition will ultimately result in untold misery."

Begging From Uncle Sam.

Milwaukee Journal.

The old belief that the Federal Government must not lend to States, counties, cities and towns is archaic, says Senator J. Ham Lewis, of Illinois. It became archaic, one gathers, when Chicago didn't pay any taxes in 1929, paid only three-quarters of its 1929 taxes in 1930, and this year is in default something over three-fifths of its last year's taxes. So Senator Lewis urges Federal loans for cities bankrupt because of inadequate borrowing facilities. Go down into Uncle Sam's sock, get the money, and the prodigal won't have to repent.

What size borrowing facilities would be adequate for a city that strikes on paying taxes? The banks are holding Chicago's paper now up to something like $300,000,000. Down there, it appears, the banks and the municipal workers take the paper and Al Capone takes the cash. Relief is asked for the unemployed because they can not get work. Relief is asked for Chicago so it can hold a world's fair in 1933.

But let us not ride Chicago too hard. Senator Lewis says there are eleven other cities in Illinois in a similarly bad fix. It is not just Chicago that he would ask Uncle Sam to help out. His whole State appears to be helpless. If it could just get some help from forty-seven other States, it could pay still less taxes—and spend still more on racketeers.

But why should Senator Lewis publish the humiliation of his State?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Jack Daly Strikes Responsive Chord in His Appeal to the Public to Eat Wheat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much interested and entertained by the article by John J. Daly in The Sunday Post in regard to Kansas wheat. Mr. Daly's suggestion for an Eat Wheat Week, while made in a spirit of good, clean fun, could well be taken seriously by Charlie Curtis, William Allen White, or any others interested in saving the Kansas wheat farmer.

Instead of an Eat Wheat Week, why not educate the people to eat wheat as a cereal every day. We have an example from our illustrious former President, Mr. Coolidge, who, rumor has it, partakes of this cheap and wholesome breakfast food every day, and did so while in the White House. My family uses it regularly and it is preferred to any other breakfast food.

We American people use wheat in many forms, but the cheapest and best way to use it is to cook the whole grain and use it as a cereal. Rome's ancient legions were sustained in their long marches by munching whole wheat grains. And as John J. Daly would say, men were men in those days.

As regards the cost: I have been buying cleaned wheat in small lots at 5 cents a pound. This makes $3 a bushel, and it seems exorbitant with wheat at 25 to 50 cents a bushel, but when compared to the prices paid for prepared wheat breakfast foods, it is trifling. For instance, we had recently a package of so-called wheat flakes which retails at 20 cents. The package contained eight ounces of breakfast fodder. This is at the rate of $24 per bushel for wheat. We can understand how the manufacturer of this food can well afford to pay for the tremendous advertising which accompanies its distribution.

I think it would be a good plan for the newspapers, especially the wheat belt newspapers, to start a campaign to educate the American public as to the benefits of using the whole wheat grain as a cereal, getting in this way the whole nutriment of the grain at low cost rather than paying such enormous prices for "processed" wheat, the actual food value of which is at least doubtful.

Mr. Welch Says Mr. Mellon and Other Hoover Supporters Block Tariff on Venezuelan Oil.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in the issue of the 14th calls for drastic action against the oil producers in Texas because of their practice of "flooding the market." While there might be merit in the contention that this practice on the part of the producers in Texas is very poor business, to say the least, it would seem that criticism of that policy does not come with good grace from either The Post or any other supporter of the present administration.

This charge is made against you and others who so blindly support the present administration for the reason that when, during the sessions of Congress of 1930 and 1931, efforts were made to place a tariff upon Venezuelan oil, to prevent the "flooding" of the American market, neither you nor any other person having influence with the administration gave the slightest assistance to those who were laboring to assist the stabilization of the home market. The difference is that the Venezuelan oil is owned by Mr. Mellon and other important supporters of the Hoover administration, while the oil from the new Texas fields is owned by individuals and organizations which are not allied with the "G. O. P." It makes quite a difference whose ox is gored, doesn't it, Mr. Editor?

JAMES E. WELCH.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that the duty of every conscientious American student in Mexico is to inform you that the alleged reprisals against students from the United States in retaliation for the Ardmore, Okla., tragedy have not been committed, either to my knowledge or to the knowledge of the many to whom I have spoken.

Though I have been in Mexico only a few weeks, every courtesy has been extended to me. In fact, I marvel at the difference one finds here and in the United States. People here go out of their way to make every visitor happy and to help him make his trip a joyous one.

It is my sincere hope that no articles unfriendly to Mexicans will find their way into the papers of the United States.

In Helping Europe, President Hoover Is Helping the United States.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many people have been making it their policy to criticize President Hoover on his moratorium of the international debts. They assert that the President is more willing to help Europeans than he is his own countrymen. They quote figures and statistics to show how great and pressing our need is. Our need is great, but these people fail to see that Hoover by helping Europe is directly helping us.

The only way for this country to regain its strength and cut down the unemployment is to find enlarged markets and outlets for its productions. Europe has been in the past and will continue to be our greatest consumer just so long as we give it a chance.

As soon as the agriculturists realize that the welfare of the United States depends to a great extent on the welfare of Europe, they will stop bucking Hoover's policy and support it.

CHILEAN STUDENTS STRIKE IN REVOLT

Declare Uprising Will Last Until Government Is Changed.

Santiago, Chile, July 22 (A.P.).—A group of students seized the main downtown buildings of the University of Chile tonight, peacefully occupied them and declared a strike for an indefinite period.

The buildings were seized after the students had made attempts to parade which were impossible because of heavy rain. Blocking the doors and barricading them, they declared the strike would last until "Chile gets the type of government we favor."

It was assumed they desired the resignation of President Ibanez.

The number of students was estimated at between 100 and 200. Only a small supply of provisions was available inside the building, and they rigged up basket conveyors, dropping them from the roof by ropes to get more food and cigarettes in spite of the watchfulness of the police.

Reserves were called out, but all was quiet and no further trouble was expected tonight because of the continuing downpour.

Francisco Garces Gana, who became premier yesterday on the resignation of Pedro Blanquier, will follow his predecessor's policies to alleviate Chile's economic distress, he announced today, but his methods of operation will be different.

He is to retain the presidency of the Central Bank, serving as head of the government without pay. The change in government brought some minor clashes in the streets last night, but on the whole it is expected that the new premier's known ability as a diplomat will insure greater support from the people than Blanquier received.

That his regime is to be liberal is indicated by publication in today's newspapers of accounts of last night's demonstration, a freedom which the press never before had been granted since Col. Carlos Ibanez became president.

The American Government yesterday demanded that Chinese authorities who are holding Dr. Francis P. Tucker, an American missionary, surrender him to United States officials in accordance with provisions of the extraterritoriality treaty.

Dr. Tucker, member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, is under arrest at Tsinanfu for fatally shooting a Chinese employe of the Mission Hospital at Techow.

Under the extraterritoriality treaty between the United States and China, Americans can be arrested by Chinese authorities, but must be turned over to this Government for trial in the United States Court in China.

The State Department instructed American Minister Johnson at Peiping to insure a thorough investigation by competent American authorities and the handling of the case in accordance with treaty provisions relating to jurisdiction over Americans in China.

The Department's action was based upon a report from Johnson. Chinese authorities are said to have demanded the missionary's execution, an apology from the American Minister, and the payment of an indemnity.

Johnson said the American consul at Tsinanfu had requested that Dr. Tucker be surrendered to him.

The shooting for which Dr. Tucker is held occurred July 11. According to his own statement, a resume of which was forwarded to the department yesterday by the American Legation, Dr. Tucker believed the Chinese to be a burglar.

He was a janitor employed at the hospital. He died shortly afterward and Dr. Tucker said he at once notified local Chinese authorities.

Boys Who Never Flew Build Plane That Can

Hornell, N. Y., July 22 (U.P.).—Two youths who had never flown a plane built one here that flew.

The midget plane is a single-seater sport model with a wing spread of only 22 feet.

After Clinton Gilletten, 22, and Devere Palmer, 22, had dragged their production onto the local airport they remembered neither could pilot it. An aviation student, Donald Coleman, offered to risk a trial flight. He started down the field, took off neatly—and completed a nonstop 100-mile flight.

Boa Constrictor Rides To U. S. in Bananas

Philadelphia, July 22 (U.P.).—A young emperor boa constrictor is making his home in the Philadelphia Zoo after a journey from the jungles of tropical Brazil in a bunch of bananas.

The snake caused a near panic when Philip Braverman, who operates a fruit store, unwrapped the cover from a bunch of bananas he had purchased from Brazil. The snake dropped to the floor and police were summoned who captured it and turned it over to C. Emerson Brown, director of the zoo. Brown said that it was a rare specimen and that he had never heard of a boa constrictor making the trip from Brazil in a bunch of bananas.

Only three copies of this work are known to the present date, one of them belonging to the British Museum and another to the Bayrische Staats Bibliotek at Munich.

Miss Mary Hammond Will Be Bride of Count Roberti.

They are both tall and attractive, and expert horsewomen.

Miss Mary Hammond, the bride-elect, attended Foxcroft School, Middleburg, Va., and was presented at court in Madrid while her father was ambassador there. Her mother, the late Mrs. Mary Stevens Hammond, was lost on the Lusitania. On the maternal side Miss Hammond is a member of the Stevens family of Castle Point, Hoboken, N. J. She is the niece of John Henry Hammond and of Mrs. Hammond Starr. On the paternal side she is the granddaughter of the late Gen. LINDBERGHS LEAVE ON HOP NEXT WEEK

Will Come to Washington Before Taking Air for Flight to Orient.

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh announced tonight that he and his wife would take-off next week on their flight to the Orient.

Col. Lindbergh said he was not ready to name the day of his departure, because it had not been determined upon.

His route lies over Canada, the Hudson Bay district and through northern Alaska down the eastern coast of Siberia to Tokyo. He will then fly to China, but the itinerary in that area has not been fixed.

Trip to Washington.

Before starting for the Orient Col. Lindbergh said he will go to Washington for a final conference with State Department officials and to obtain clearance papers.

Whether he will head for Canada from Washington or return first to New York is to be decided.

Eleven refueling stops have been arranged on Lindbergh's route and fuel depots completed.

The remodeled Lockheed Sirius low-wing monoplane Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh will use is now at a pontoon factory at College Point, Long Island, undergoing final adjustments. It will be ready in two or three days. It is equipped with wireless and both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh recently passed regular examinations for commercial third class licenses to send and receive messages during the flight.

The Lindberghs' first stop will be Ottawa, where he has informed United States Minister Hanford MacNider they will spend the night.

Col. Lindbergh has emphasized that the flight is in the nature of a vacation and no definite schedule will be maintained.

Nearly 7,000 Miles.

The route to Tokyo, via Point Barrow in the Arctic Circle, will cover nearly 7,000 miles computed by rough draft maps on an air line. This is almost half the distance flown by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in their recent trip around the world.

The first hop from New York to Ottawa is some 550 miles over well-established airways, and thence to Moose Factory, in the lower southwest corner of James Bay is about 480 miles.

The colonel and his wife will then enter the wilderness of northwest territory of Canada, but their route is peppered with outposts of the Royal Canadian mounted police. From Moose Factory it is approximately 750 miles to Churchill, along the shore line of Hudson Bay.

From Churchill the flying pair will enter the Canadian "Big Lake" region, turning northward to Baker Lake, which is some 390 miles from Churchill.

Longest Jump of Flight.

Next comes the longest jump of the flight, northwestward across the Arctic Circle and within easy reach of Great Bear Lake or the Beaufort Sea, according to which the colonel favors. If he chooses to cross Great Bear Lake his flight to Aklavik will be slightly over 1,100 miles. Aklavik is a river town near the junction of the Husky and Moose Rivers.

Thence the route lies across the northern coast of Alaska, 550 miles to Point Barrow and a similar jump to Nome.

Probably the most dangerous flight of the trip lies 900 miles ahead from Nome to Karaginsk, Siberia, which may be flown along the Siberian coast line or straight over water.

From Karaginsk to Petropavlosk, both of which are in Russian territory and on the eastern coast of Kamchatka Peninsula, it is 370 miles. Thence the flight will lead along the Kurile Islands of Japan to the northmost large island of the Oriental group, the Nemuro. It is approximately 650 miles from Petropavlosk to Nemuro, Japan. Along the eastern edge of the Japanese island to Tokyo is the last hop, and it is 470 miles long.

MRS. FALL LEAVES HUSBAND IN PRISON

Wife Pays Farewell Visit to Former Official Before Going to Ranch.

Santa Fe, N. Mex., July 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Albert B. Fall entered the New Mexico Penitentiary today for a short visit with her husband, the former Secretary of the Interior, now Federal prisoner No. 6991.

Tomorrow Mrs. Fall and her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase, will return to their ranch at Three Rivers, N. Mex.

Another daughter, Mrs. Jouett Elliott, will remain in Santa Fe. The visit today was one of farewell, Mrs. Fall and her daughters having accompanied the ambulance in which the former Cabinet member was brought to the prison late Monday.

Fall, under sentence of a year and a day for acceptance of a $100,000 bribe from E. L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, was reported in good spirits.

Expert Says Oxygen Curb May Have Part in Sex Origin

Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., July 22 (A.P.).—Sex stems to originate either in a control of oxygen, of the heat production of metabolism, of a still unidentified substance or in chromosomes, according to a summary of the latest scientific studies reported to the Biological Laboratory here.

The summary is by Ezra Allen, Ph. D., associate professor of histology-embryology of the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital.

One definitely known fact about origin of sex, said Dr. Allen, is its relation to a peculiar shaped chromosome. Chromosomes are thread-like bodies in all living cells, which determine hereditary characters. They are common to all plants and animals. Man has 48 chromosomes in each cell.

But when a human life begins in the union of two cells, one male and the other female, there are only 24 chromosomes in each of the uniting cells. Their sum makes the normal 48, a number which remains constant though all the thousands of millions of cells later develop into an adult man or woman.

In the original male cell one chromosome sometimes is different in size from the other 23. Scientists know it as the Y chromosome. Just about exactly half the male cells have the odd-size Y, while the others have a twenty-fourth chromosome like the other 23.

If the Y chromosome cell unites with the female cell, the sex is male. If the other type unites, a female develops.

"It would seem fair to conclude that at the present time," said Dr. Allen, "sex is regarded as not unalterably fixed in the fertilized egg, and that most adult mammals are possibly neither wholly male nor wholly female, but each individual may have one or more touches of either sex."

19 Tour Airplanes Arrive at Omaha

Harry Russell, Michigan, Former Winner, Still Holds Lead.

Omaha, Nebr., July 22 (A.P.).—Paced by George Dickson, flying a noncontesting ship, the National Air Tour paid its visit to Omaha today, and treated 2,000 air enthusiasts to a thrilling exhibition of flying.

The nineteen planes in the tour came here from Lincoln after a last minute decision. Last night the tour heads announced the fliers would not visit Omaha, but early today the decision was reconsidered.

Harry Russell, Dearborn, Mich., winner of the 1930 tour award, and the leader thus far in the year's tour, was the fourth pilot to land here, and easily retained his commanding lead over the eight other prize contesting pilots. The fliers will hop to St. Joseph tomorrow.

"Here's why I switched —how about you?"

HIS brow is wet with honest sweat—but not his Camels. Nor will yours be, no matter how hard you work or play.

Whether you labor outdoors in the rain or indoors in the heat, whether you whip a trout-stream, or whatever you do, your cigarettes will never be stained or soggy or unwholesome—if you carry Camels.

Camels are blended of fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos, made fine and kept fine, kept always in prime smoking condition.

The new Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane seals in all the natural factory-freshness—seals it in so tightly that wet weather cannot make Camels damp, nor drought weather make them dry.

When you open your package of Camels, don't remove the Cellophane wrapper. Keep it on until you have smoked the last cigarette. It's put there for your protection.

Do your throat a favor, try Camels for just one day. Once you've compared their cool, smooth enjoyment with the brackish, stale taste of cigarettes packed the old way, leave them—if you can.

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons
Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

CAMELS

NO CIGARETTY AFTER-TASTE

Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against sweat, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until the last one has been smoked

THE words "just like Kotex" should be a danger signal to every purchaser of sanitary protection! They cannot be true.

A pad, to be like Kotex, would have to be made in the Kotex factory. Unique, patented machinery makes Kotex from start to finish. Hands never touch it. Rigid cleanliness prevails. Materials used are superior, made especially for Kotex. The only way to make a pad like Kotex is to make Kotex.

Take no chances. Specify genuine Kotex. Accept no substitute of whose makers you know nothing. You know Kotex is safe. Hospitals used more than 10,000,000 pads last year. Their choice should be yours.

Kotex is adjustable. May be worn on either side. Stays soft.

DIAL FLASHES

COLUMBIA opened its new television station W2XAB in New York City last night and the NBC will soon follow suit with a picture broadcasting station in the top of the Empire State Building.

These television stations will be essentially of benefit to those who live in New York, because the reliable service range of a television station is only about 25 miles, though frequently they are picked up at much greater distances.

This writer was told by K. A. Hathaway at Station WMAQ in Chicago recently that although as a rule their pictures hardly get farther than the Chicago metropolitan area a looker-in received one with considerable clarity in Albuquerque, N. M.

Broadcasters are wondering if they will be tied together by wire lines to get television scenes from some central headquarters as they do sound programs. The engineers have been somewhat skeptical that they can send television pictures over wires as efficiently as they do music and voice.

This has led to the belief in some quarters that the stations will be supplied television performances on films mailed to them in advance in much the same way electrical transcriptions are handled.

This would be a boon to the film industry because it would take many a reel daily to entertain the invisible audience from coast to coast.

LOWERING of production costs and improvements of quality of crops will go far toward helping the farmer solve his problems at the present time, in the opinion of L. W. Rowell, vice president of Swift & Co., Chicago, who spoke on the National Farm and Home Hour over WRC.

"The farmer must realize that his opportunity for a profit will be tremendously increased if he can materially lower his cost of production per unit and improve the quality of what he grows," Mr Rowell said.

In discussing the use of fertilizer on crops, he declared that interviews with 42,000 farmers in 35 States showed that for every dollar invested in fertilizer the farmer obtained $3.54 increase in added crop value.

The Pickard Family is back. After an absence of several months they will again be heard tonight over the WJZ network at 7:30 o'clock.

Kathryn Parsons, known as the "Girl o' Yesterday," will make her first appearance as a weekly broadcaster over a natioh-wide network in her own program of old-time songs this afternoon (WMAL, 4:30 o'clock).

The South Sea Islanders will be broadcast in transcription form tonight at 10 o'clock over Station WMAL.

Richard Bonelli, barytone, who, despite his Italian-sounding name, is a native-born American, will sing "Old Man River" over the WJZ network at 8:30 p. m. tonight in the Maxwell program.

THE only one of Beethoven's nine symphonies in which the master of classic style deviated from the traditional form—the ninth, with the choral finale—will be heard via WMAL from the Lewisohn Stadium in New York tonight at 10 o'clock.

Do you remember when Creatore, the Italian bandmaster, created such a sensation by his spectacular methods of conducting and was called the "Svengali of the Baton?" He is now in radio and will direct his orchestra in a series of six concerts, beginning tomorrow, over the WJZ network at 8 p. m.

At the age of 17 Creatore was named conductor of the Naples Municipal Band and continued to direct it for eight years. At 25 he recruited a band of 50 instrumentalists and embarked for America. A year later he took his organization to England for a brief tour, and then returned to America in 1900, where he has remained ever since

"ARE you listenin', folks, are you listenin'?" Tony Wons, the Scrapbook Philosopher, will be interviewed before the microphone by Bob Taplinger over WMAL at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon, the ninth in a series of radio views with outstanding artists of the air-waves.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has just been awarded the Columbia Broadcasting System Medal for distinguished contribution to radio. He is the first American to be so honored. The award is based on his pioneer work in linking aviation and radio and on his broadcast on August 8, 1930, over a record hook-up of stations for a private citizen.

The medal, suggested by William S. Paley, president of CBS, was designed by Gaetano Cecere, noted New York sculptor. On one side is the figure of a muse superimposed on that of Pegasus, symbol of inspiration; while on the reverse is a circular panel suggesting the world coverage and speed of radio.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, July 22.

A LOVELY LADY and her lingerie are two parts of an important midsummer problem. A lady can't be lovely, you see, unless she has lingerie of the right type—which of course means of the comfortable and beautiful type. But the lingerie makers are looking out for that, and we fashion crickets can just sit back and adore their results.

Just by way of explaining some of their results to my deah public, I'll start with what's usually the nethermost garment of all—the shirt. Well, it just isn't any more! The ladies who went without it found its omission unnoticeable because, you see, they wore a combination garment—a brassiere, fitted shirtlike section and shorts all in one! Some of them went a little further and put a petticoat-bottom on the three-in-one, thus making an underwear combination that did all possible underwear tricks in one fell swoop!

But there are large and mature ladies who until this season wept and wailed and gnashed their teeth because their slender friends could be comfortable in summer while they themselves perspired and melted within armorial corsets and voluminous slips. They, too, are getting a lucky break in this year of grace—corsetieres have found that stitching and reinforcing and darting will restrain the fullest figure just as well as bones and lots of heavy elastic. 'N' these stitches and reinforcements and darts can be taken in batiste or triple voile corsets as well exactly as in heavy brocade and coutil. And as for voluminous slips—they disappeared into the nearest closet when the women demanded petticoats which are sufficient with lots of summer clothes!

Consider the knitted suit, and consider it wisely Because knitted suits ain't what they used to be, my deahs, for which you can be thankful! Clever manufacturers have experimented until they have produced nets and weaves that sort of pull against themselves, as it were, and therefore can't stretch—because when the stretch starts the other side pulls against it, if you see what I mean.

And you really should consider the coolness of one of these very openmeshed weaves. That's the reason for the summer popularity of the knitted wool suit like the one illustrated for you today—its coolness, and the fact that knitted wool has learned how not to stretch out of shape.

What makes a French maid a French maid—at $125 a month plus room, board, uniform and all of your cast-off clothing? Well, it's all of the things she knows about how to take care of your clothes, how to make them last three times as long as they would last without her, how to make over this, that and the other thing, how, in short, to be a French maid and be worth to her mistress all this money.

How would you like to know a lot of secrets that a French maid would ordinarily guard with her life? How would you like to know all of them and be able to teach them to your maid? Or use them yourself and get along without a maid? Well, if you would like to, just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet, and the French maid is yours.

I've heard a lot of things called sweater-blouses, but I have never seen anything that I thought fitted the name quite as precisely as the little blouse-thing I've sketched for you today. For the top of it was eyelet-embroidered patiste, and the lower part of it was loosely knitted rayon thread.

Au revoir!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE give me a list of flowers suitable for planting in a rock garden. MRS. JOHN D.

Phlox sublata (creeping phlox), alyssum (laxatile compactum), columbine, aster (alpinus), delphinium (Chinese), euonymous, dianthus (hardy pinks), ebiris, mertensia, stokesia (cyanea), saxifraga (cordifolia), myosotis and trillium.

R. E. E.—Your rose is covered with mildew. Better begin at once to spray it with Massey dust. You will have to make several applications with a blower-gun or with a flour-shaker. Massey dust is composed of nine parts dusting sulphur and one part lead arsenate.

I have a large, blue-flowered hydrangea which I cut back this spring. Now, to my amazement, it has ceased to flower. In previous years it has been covered with flowers at this time. MRS. THOMAS F. R.

The large-flowered, French hybrid hydangeas bloom on wood made the previous year. You have cut this wood away, so you cannot expect any flowers until next spring.

Please tell me where to buy a Christmas rose. Also, Japanese spurge and syracuse rose. You have mentioned these varieties in your articles, but I have been unable to find them in my catalogue, which is an old one. ANNA N. M.

I am sorry, but it is impossible to publish names or addresses in this column. If you will write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you names of firms who list the above plants.

Please tell me what to do to counteract rust on hollycocks. MRS. I. R. E.

Bordeaux mixture or lime and sulphur blown up among the leaves will cure rust. Young plants grown in new locations are not apt to be troubled with rust. Old plants grown for years in one place are prone to this disease.

Please tell me of a rapid-growing creeper for trellis use. I want a variety that will not have to be planted each year. MRS. E. F.

Polygonum makes thirty-five feet of growth in one season. It bears long clusters of white flowers which turn rose with age.

There is a space on either side of my driveway which I want to decorate. It receives only a half hour's sun a day. Please tell me of a perennial which grows three feet high and bears a showy flower for this use. GLADYS M. M.

Better plant myrtle or Japanese spurge. These are both willing to exist in shade. The myrtle, while not showy, does bear a lovely blue flower. Neither plant grows tall.

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF July 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1:10 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:45 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 8 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

July 23 is, according to the astrological signs, good for sport and outdoor interests. Those athletically inclined should make new records, and all outdoor workers, and those who follow mechanical pursuits, will have stimulating influences acting in their favor, and opportunities for improvement will abound.

A child born on this July 23 will not give much encouragement to its parents during early years: Quite the reverse. On attaining adulthood, it will see the error of its ways, and apply itself with energy and intelligence to the task of making up for lost time, in which it will be exceptionally successful.

You, if born on July 23, have strongly marked characteristics. You have great ambition, and regardless of the circumstances of your birth, you do not intend to belong to the herd of "dumb, driven cattle," but to be "a hero in the strife." By your will and determination, you will achieve your ends, as Fate has destined you for a high position of authority and responsibility. You are a large-hearted and generous personality, independent, impatient of control and resentful of dictation.

You possess a magnetic personality and can inspire others to do that which, without your leadership, they would have considered impossible. You are a strong and an able executive. You bend others to your will, not by forceful methods, but by example and courage. You often make enemies by your frankness of speech, and by your contempt of anything and everything that savors of hypocrisy and subterfuge.

You are patient and, up to a point, long suffering. Once roused, however, you know no fear and never acknowledge defeat. To keep happy, you must always be at work, as idleness will only breed in you morbidity and despondency. You are an ardent lover and a constant one. Your home will be your shrine. Your family will always be your first care.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

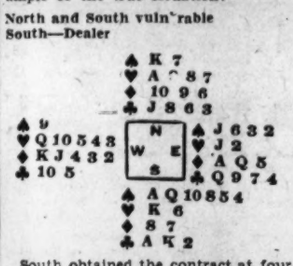
A DOUBLE COUP WITH ONE ENTRY.

THE opportunity to execute what is known as a coup in Bridge is comparatively rare and even when the opportunity occurs, most players are at a loss as to the manner in which to execute it.

The general term "coup," when applied in Bridge means a lead or play of unusual significance. The coup with which we deal today is a play which involves two elements; namely, using an end play to capture an adverse trump honor, when there are no trumps in partner's hand, usually the Dummy, to lead through the adverse honor, and secondly, reducing the trumps in the dominant trump hand to the same number as those held by the opponent so that this hand will not have to trmup prematurely at the end and thus lead up to the adverse honor. All simple coups contain these two elements. Recently in a Duplicate game I saw the following example of the true situation:

North and South vuln'rable
South—Dealer



South obtained the contract at four spades without adverse bidding. West's Opening lead was the 10 of clubs, on which the Knave, the Queen and the King were played. Trick 2 was won by the King of spades, West playing the 9. In spite of his fear that West's 9 was a singleton, South thought it best to play for the 3-2 division, and won the third trick with the Queen of spades on which West played the 4 of diamonds. The necessity for the double coup was then disclosed, but South's problem was how to execute the double coup with only one entry in Dummy, and also how to avoid being in the lead at trick 12. One ruff could be obtained on the third round of hearts, but the only way to get the second ruff was by giving the adversaries a chance to lead clubs or hearts when South could trump either of these suits that might be led. Of course, if South could set up the 8 of clubs before playing the Ace of hearts, and thus discard the losing diamond, or overtrump East, the contract could be made without the double coup, but these contingencies seemed unlikely. If West had led the 10 of clubs from 4, headed by the 10 and 9, he could not be expected to lead the last club after winning the third round with the 9, nor would he lead a heart, as that would allow the lead of the set-up 8 of clubs, and this would be the same as a trump lead through East. West could only be expected to lead a diamond when in with the 9 of clubs. The diamond lead would, of course, be returned by East, and South would be forced to trump the third round. He would then be without a card of exit, and would be forced to trump the third round of hearts, and then to lead away from the Ace and 10 of spades, thus losing a spade trick in addition to the club and two diamonds already lost.

South saw that if West held the lone 9 of clubs, the lead of the Ace would drop it, set up the 8 of clubs, and allow him to make the 8, using the Ace of hearts as his reentry. This would allow the discard of a diamond, and result in the fulfillment of the contract. Therefore, South decided to lead the Ace of clubs at once, and, if this failed to drop the 9, then to take in the King and Ace of hearts, to trump the third round of hearts, and then to lead the deuce of clubs, with the hope that the next lead of the adversaries would be a club or a heart. This plan was carried out. On the third round of hearts, East discarded the 5 of diamonds. When West failed to follow to the third club lead, the 6 of clubs was played from Dummy, and was won by East's 7. East then obligingly led the 9 of clubs, and South completed the double coup, and threw the lead at trick 10 with a diamond, and won the last two tricks with his trump tenace, thus making his contract.

Today's Pointer.

An overcall in opponent's bid suit shows a very freakish distribution of 4 or more honor tricks in hand; it also shows control of first lead of adverse suit (either the Ace, possibly accompanied by one or more small cards, or a void of the suit).

After partner has made a bid, an Overcall in opponent's bid suit indicates Slam possibilities and generally no losers in adverse suit.

EPPARD ACQUITTED OF PART IN MURDER

Virginia Jury Discredits Tale of Actual Slayer of Father of Nine.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 22.—Russell Eppard, 32 years old, Blue Ridge Mountain timberman, was acquitted of complicity in the murder of his neighbor, Robert Davis, 59, at Furnace, in northeast Rockingham last April, by a Rockingham Circuit Court jury late today after an hour and a half deliberation.

Charles Rufus Lam, 24, deserter from the United States Army, who admitted he killed Davis and received a life term at the May term of court, charged that Eppard inspired the slaying in order to get Davis out of the way because of moonshine rivalry. Lam, at the time he surrendered to officers, declared he shot Davis, widowed father of nine children, to protect the honor of his sister, whom he accused Davis of wronging.

On the stand Lam charged that Eppard made up this pretext and promised that nothing would happen to him. Eppard was with Lam in front of the Davis home a few minutes before the shooting but declared he went on home to bed. Lam testified he met Davis at the corner of the house and shot him five times at such close range the clothing was ignited. Lam then went to the home of Eppard and asked him to go with him to surrender to officers.

Charles Siye, also indicted for complicity, accompanied Lam and Eppard to the neighborhood store where Lam surrendered. The trio were together for several hours prior to the shooting. Lam charged that Eppard got him drunk and persuaded him to do the shooting.

Eppard was arrested on the opening day of the Lam trial. He had been summoned to the courthouse as a defense witness and was arrested in the corridor of the building. Eppard claimed that he was friendly with Lam and Davis. Witnesses testified that on the night of the shooting Lam declared he deserted the Army six months ago to "get his man," (Davis) and that he got him.

Truck Driver Sought After Fatal Accident

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 22.—Officers are seeking the driver of a truck whose left turning at a street intersection is said to have caused another truck to overturn and kill Forest Alkire, 19, yesterday at Buckhannon.

Alkire, son of Clarence Alkire, who was driving, was pinned between his truck and a tree and was crushed to instant death.

Tobacco Growers Worry Over Cuts

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., July 22.—Speculation is being indulged by the tobacco trade on effect of a policy of retrenchment undertaken by the Export Leaf Tobacco Co. on the bright belt markets soon to open. Paring of buying staffs is taken to mean that the company, which in the past has absorbed a large portion of the bright crop, will not be an active competitor this year.

The Export Co. is purchasing agency of the British American Tobacco Co., which is encountering trade difficulties in the Orient, because of the acute silver situation.

In India, where there is a large market for the company's products, the silver situation is aggravated by an organized boycott against British goods.

Complete Bar Located By Winchester Raiders

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 22.—Only the old-time brass rail was lacking to make a vacant house in the northeastern suburbs here look like a real barroom, police reported today after confiscating a large quantity of beer and liquor. No arrests were made, as the building was unoccupied when the police visited it.

They said they found a well-equipped barroom, with a counter, plenty of rustic chairs and tables, pretzels and mustard, and sawdust on the floor. Behind the counter were about 300 bottles of beer and an assortment of other liquors. Police said the owner of the building would be held responsible.

Church Democracy Called Vital Need

Lutheran Conference Is Told Poor Must Be Welcomed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 22.—Unless the church can open her doors to the rich and the poor alike, proclaiming a welcome that knows no distinction of class, it has forfeited the right to represent Jesus Christ, Dr. Charles P. Wiles, of Philadelphia, declared today at the Lutheran conference at Massanetta Springs.

"From the very beginning," said Dr. Wiles, "the church has been accused of showing partiality to the rich. It has been charged that Christian people, being economically dependent on the gifts of the well-to-do, have sold themselves to capitalism and are under the thumb of privileged classes. The program of the church is one of tremendous dimensions and it calls for vast sums of money for its realization. Probably it has been more from zeal for a great cause than from any intended partiality that the more prosperous have been sought out. Neither wealth nor poverty can commend us to God. These are among the accidents of life. The church must be large enough for the rich and the poor and they must sit together as equals. Democracy was the foundation of the teachings of our Lord."

Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, of Baltimore, spoke tonight on how Christ fills life. He fills life, said the speaker, by completing life and perfecting it, by awakening a spirit of expectancy that he who gives the best gets the most out of life, and by teaching the sense of destiny.

RELIEF WORK NEEDS STUDIED BY GROUP

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., July 22.—Miss Sadie James, regional director of the American Red Cross for Northern Virginia, accompanied by Mrs. W. L. Lloyd, chairman of the Prince William Chapter, met today with the Civilian Home Service Committee of the local Red Cross and later participated in a meeting of the county executive committee.

The Civilian Home Service Committee has had charge of the distribution of funds for drought relief work throughout the county. Today's discussion was to determine whether the situation was such as to require funds beyond the amount received annually by the Prince William County Chapter through the annual roll call. Another matter considered was the possibility of having a welfare worker connected with the home service work, but with the demand for assistance made on the chapter showing slight diminution it was deemed best to continue the work along present lines, until demands on the treasury should become less insistent.

Members of the home service group attending the meeting were Mrs. C. R. C. Johnson, Mrs. Mamie Lynch Delaney, Mrs. Jane Abel, Mrs. E. S. Spitler, the Rev. George Hasel, and Miss Sabina Neel, county nurse. Members of the executive committee, in addition to Mrs. W. L. Lloyd, of Greenwich, are Mrs. Carvel Hall and Mrs. O. M. Douglas, Gainesville District; Eli Swavely, G. Raymond Ratcliffe, and Maj. P. W. Patterson, Manassas District; W. L. Lloyd and the Rev. J. Royal Cook, Brentsville District; T. M. Russell, and W. Y. Ellicott, Coles District; Mrs. Jane Abel and J. F. McInteer, Dumfries District, and Mrs. Egbert Thompson and Mrs. Eva Kidwell Garner, Occoquan District.

Virginian Punished By Court-Martial

Private Cursed Officer Who Felled Alleged Drinking Sergeant.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 22.—Private William Baker, 19, member of Battery F, 111th Field Artillery, Virginia National Guard, was sentenced to two days in jail and fined $10 by a court-martial here on charges of disrespect to an officer. Sergt. Earl Way, 24, who was held in jail here for the same charge, did not appear before the military tribunal because of an attack of appendicitis, which necessitated his removal to the hospital.

Charges against the two soldiers are the outgrowth of an incident on a troop train which was bringing Battery F home from Camp Tobyhanna, Pa., after the 15-day summer training period. They were accused of cursing Maj. C. H. McCurdy, commander of the Second Headquarters Battalion, of Richmond. Refusing to obey the officer's command to cease creating a disturbance, Way, who was alleged to have been drinking, struck at Maj. McCurdy. The major avoided Way's fist and returned with a blow that felled Way and rendered him unconscious for more than an hour. Baker, also said to have been drunk, resented the striking of Way and he, too, cursed Maj. McCurdy. The superior did not prefer charges against the men but left the matter to be handled by a court-martial of Battery F officers, Capt. M. B. Rowe and First Lieut. Aubrey Daffan.

Hagerstown Bans Street Carnivals

Shows Bring Persons Who Violate Laws, Police Tell Council.

Hagerstown, Md., July 22 (A.P.).—No longer will residents of Hagerstown be entertained by the traveling carnival. Heeding protests of police officials, the city council has reached a decision to deny any further application for permits for such shows.

The Hagerstown council action followed similar moves by other towns in this vicinity, which have passed ordinances barring the traveling shows.

The police complaint to city officials carried the declaration that the carnivals bring with them many undesirables who constantly violate the law, and that sponsorship of some local charity or organization led to operation of "skin games," in which gamblers "didn't have a chance."

Awaiting Freed Woman, Fugitive Is Arrested

Charleston, W. Va., July 22 (A.P.).—Fred Reger, 31, said by Federal authorities to be wanted in Denver, Colo., in an "important" prohibition case, was placed in the Charleston City Jail today after his arrest at Montgomery.

Federal authorities here were notified Reger was to be in West Virginia to meet Miss Zoe Barlow upon her release yesterday from the Federal Institution for Women at Alderson. Officers said Reger did not meet the woman, but apparently was waiting for her in Montgomery. Miss Barlow came to Charleston and will be questioned.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 22.—Maj. Arthur E. J. Houston, jr., also was hurt in the crash.

The two officials were appraising land for the park commission when the axle of their car struck a vine-covered stump. City Manager Houston was pitched headlong through the windshield, while Maj. Wilbourn was thrown against the steering wheel, sustaining internal hurts of undetermined extent.

ACACIA LIFE ELECTS FLEMING AND KACY

Riggs National Bank Head, Well-Known Lawyer Added to Insurance Board.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank, an outstanding leader in the financial and civic life of Washington, and Howard W. Kacy, general counsel of Acacia Mutual Life Association, were elected yesterday to membership on the board of directors of that association.

Both Mr. Fleming and Mr. Kacy are widely known in financial and legal circles outside as well as within the National Capital, and their election to the directorate of Acacia serves to emphasize the strength of the governing board of the association.

Mr. Kacy, recently elected general counsel of Acacia, is one of the youngest men to hold such a post with any large life insurance company anywhere in the United States and his election to the board of directors is in recognition of outstanding services to Acacia.

Welcome Is Extended.

"We are happy to welcome Mr. Fleming and Mr. Kacy to the board," William Montgomery, president of Acacia, said yesterday in making the announcement of their election following the meeting. "We know that the special training and broad experience they bring to the board will be helpful in all our plans for the future development of the association."

During the course of yesterday's meeting, which was held at Acacia's home office building here, Mr. Montgomery revealed to the directors that a distinct improvement in general business conditions is revealed in the progress achieved by the association during the last six months.

President Montgomery submitted statistics to the board which supported his contention that a steady month-by-month betterment is taking place in the business of Acacia and he asserted that "without question this improvement reflects a fundamental improvement in business as a whole."

Lapses Grow Smaller.

Mr. Montgomery reported that lapses have been growing steadily smaller and policy loans are less; that the volume of business written is on the increase and that for the half-year period Acacia's assets have increased $3,000,000.

According to the Acacia executive's detailed statement, the association now has a total of $362,000,000 of insurance in force. Placed business for June, the last month for which complete statistics are available, was $4,000,000.

Members of the board expressed gratification at the results achieved by the association during the first half of the year, and declared that Acacia's policy of maintaining its staff without reduction was being rewarded in increased efforts in every direction.

Membership of Board.

The full membership of the board of directors, exclusive of Mr. Fleming and Mr. Kacy, whose election was confirmed yesterday, is as follows: W. L. Andrews, Charles E. Baldwin, Harry Blake, D. Rufus Cheney, C. C. Coombs, W. K. Cowden, Paul B. Cromelin, J. Harry Cunningham, L. Whiting Estes, E. C. Graham, James C. Hoyle, Thomas E. Jarrell, J. Claude Keiper, Arthur D. Marks, John T. Meany, Joseph H. Milans, William Montgomery, Dr. J. B. Nichols, Charles F. Roberts, H. L. Rust, jr., L. P. Steuart, E. E. Thompson, E. Lee Trinkle, F. D. Winston and J. P. Yort.

For the six months ended June 30, International Business Machines Corporation reports net earnings of $3,778,492 after all charges and estimated Federal tax, which are equivalent to $5.84 a share on 669,852 no par capital shares outstanding.

These earnings represent an increase of $124,182 over the total of $3,654,310, or $5.45 a share on the same number of capital shares outstanding, which was earned in the corresponding period of 1930. These figures each include earnings of the company's foreign subsidiaries.

Maryland and the District of Columbia stood first and second, respectively, on a list of States in life insurance sales for the month of June, as compared with June, 1930. Statistics made public yesterday by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn., show Maryland's percentage of gain over June last year was 6 and the District's 4. Sales in the District in June had an aggregate volume of $6,189,000 and 55 per cent of the companies doing business reported gains.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

TAGGING hard at the coattails of the original announcement that Mr. Leonard Bergman plans to regale the Capital with the premiere presentation of Myron C. Fagan's new play, "Peter Flies High," in the National Theater the week of September 14, comes the further flash from Mr. Bergman that he has engaged Glenn Hunter for the title role.

Mr. Hunter, one of the most engaging of the theater's younger players, was seen recently in "A Regular Guy," at the Hudson Theater, New York, and last season appeared in the Dillingham production of "Waterloo Bridge." One of his greatest successes was scored some seasons ago in "Young Woodley," John Van Druten's play of English school life, and few will forget his performance in the title role of Harry Leon Wilson's "Merton of the Movies."

"Peter Flies High," according to its author, Mr. Fagan, was fashioned with the particular idea and hope that Glen Hunter might be available for the leading role.

Rehearsals of the piece will begin the week of August 17.

Having long since become inured to the exigencies of purveying newsreel releases to those in high places, the Fox Theater and Movietone News managements last Tuesday night again performed a signal service in this regard.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late President, only recently returned from the ceremonies attending the unveiling of the memorial to the wartime Chief Executive in Poland, expressed the wish to view the newsreel record of the event. Tuesday's release of the Fox Movietone News contained new shots which were combined with those already on the screen to form a complete picturization of the unveiling in which Mrs. Wilson had taken part. Accompanied by a party of five, she occupied the presidential box at the 9 o'clock presentation, and after having witnessed the newsreel remained for the entire last performance of the regular bill.

It is an interesting coincidence that Charlie Plunkett, chief projectionist at tht Fox and former manager of the Strand Theater when it was operated by Tom Moore, was the projectionist assigned to the White House when Mr. Moore was commissioned to supply the screen subjects privately shown at the Executive Mansion throughout the Wilson administration—a fact which Mrs. Wilson obviously had not forgotten when Mr. Plunkett's greetings were extended her Tuesday night.

Spurred by the tremendous popular interest being displayed by New York in RKO-Pathe's production of "The Common Law," starring Constance Bennett, which opened at the RKO-Mayfair Theater there last Friday, the local RKO-Keith management is coming to bat with the same subject tomorrow morning—among the first houses in the East to present the picture.

If one were to check back over her recent Washington screen engagements he would find that "Connie" Bennett ranks as one of the box-office leaders in the National Capital. It is expected that her appearance in the Robert W. Chambers story will eclipse her every previous record both in volume of patronage and enthusiasm.

After one more day another of the acting Bennetts, her daddy, Richard, will fade quietly from the F street scene. By a last-minute decision, reached late yesterday, Marion Davies, in whose support Richard Bennett appears prominently in Fannie Hurst's "Five and Ten," will not continue a second week at the Columbia, but will be supplanted on Saturday by Jack Oakie, Stuart Erwin and June Collyer in "Dude Ranch."

You might be interested to know that following "Dude Ranch," the Columbia will present, presumably in the order named, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Politics," and Maurice Chevalier and Claudette Colbert in "The Smiling Lieutenant."

Up at the Palace, if I am not walking too fast for you, the bookings to follow "Women Love Once," next week's offering, are Nancy Carroll and Fredric March in "Night Angel," Ramon Navarro in "Son of India," and Clark Gable in "Sporting Blood."

But if it was next week's attractions in the downtown, first-run sector that you had in mind, they will be something like this: Fox, Peggy Shannon and Richard Arlen in "The Secret Call" and Fanchon & Marco's "Golden West" Idea; Earle, Phillips Holmes, Sylvia Sidney and Norman Foster in "Confessions of a Coed" and Anataole Friedland's "Twentieth Century Revue," headlining the vaudeville; Palace, Paul Lukas and Eleanor Boardman in "Women Love Once" and Loew's "Stardust" stage revue; RKO-Keith's, Constance Bennett in "The Common Law;" Columbia, Jack Oakie in "Dude Ranch."

In case you've got the water out of your ears from this week's goings-on, there will be another event of note in the Crystal Pool out at Glen Echo Park next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, when an open junior meet will be held for American Legion trophies. The legion has donated two cups as prizes.

Sorti Slams Homer, Bengough Gets 4 Singles in Row.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

LIKE one of those "one punch" boxers, who, if he puts it over and his man refuses to go down, is through as far as that particular fight is concerned, the Nationals yesterday bowed to the Browns. Their only punch was displayed in the first round, when a four-run lead was amassed, but this was not effective enough and they finally lost the decision, 8 to 4. As the Mackmen won, Johnson's team dropped to nine games behind the leaders, a margin which only a miracle will let them overcome.

The St. Louis Club, usually an enigma against the Nats, turned in its first victory in Griffith Stadium this season in taking its fourth game in the dozen played and well earned the verdict.

Gray Grants But 2 Hits After First.

Sam Gray and "General" Alvin Crowder started on the hill for their respective teams, the former being bad at the start and then settling down and performing so brilliantly that the last eight rounds netted but two hits and no advances past first, while Crowder did well for two frames and then did about as poorly as a pitcher possibly could until withdrawn in the fifth.

It looked like the Johnsons would win in the easiest kind of manner when they hopped on Gray's offerings for four runs in the opener but then he pulled himself together and pitched super-ball, the only two Nats seeing base-life being Bluege and Sam Rice, who singled in the seventh and eighth, respectively.

Meanwhile, the Browns refused to quit and packed away the verdict by scoring a total of six runs in rounds three, four and five, each of which netted them three hits, including a home run drive over the right field wall by Lin Storti with one on in round 5. They added two more in the eighth at Bobby Burke's expense, but these helped nothing but the batting averages of Messrs. Bettencourt, Bengough and Schulte.

Nats Jump Into 4-Run Lead in First.

Gray granted but six hits and four of these came in the Nats' big first. The St. Louis flinger issued his only pass to West, Nat lead-off man. He held Sam Rice to a pop to Storti, but then came Cronin's single and Harry Rice's double, which scored one and put runners on third and second. On Kuhel's roller to Burns, Cronin was killed at the plate and Gray then packed the aisles by hitting Bluege. Hargrave worked the count to three and two and lined a single to right to score two more and send Bluege to third, and the latter registered on Hayes' Texas Leaguer to left, on which the hitter was caught trying for a double.

After this start, fans sat back in their chairs expecting to see the Nats simply coast home, but Gray and the Browns had other plans and quickly put them into effect. As already stated, the pitcher turned a complete flip-flop, going from the "ridiculous to the sublime," as they say on the stage, while his mates began swinging their clubs with utter abandon and with no thought of possible injury to the Nat hirelings.

Singles by Bettencourt, Bengough and Schulte netted a run in the third, a one-baser by Storti, Burns' double, a helpful out, and Bengough's second safety were used in making two runs in the fourth, while one-shots by Schulte and Kress and Storti's four-bagger not only wiped out Washington's lead but put the Browns two up in the fifth.

Two More Runs Scored Off Burke.

Crowder was allowed to take his punishment through the fifth, but Manush hit for him in the home half and Burke finished out the string. The later was in hot water in the seventh, due to Goslin's triple with one dead, but escaped unscathed, but was touched for two unnecessary runs in the eighth. These were molded from Bettencourt's single, Bengough's double, which Harry Rice played like a shoemaker, and Schulte's one-base drive to center.

Catcher Bennie Bengough was the day's hero, getting four for four, including a double, with Fred Schulte taking runner-up honors, with three safeties. The home hits were credited to six different players, with Hargrave's, which scored two runs, being the biggest of the lot.

MACKS TAKE 9TH GAME IN ROW

Walberg Triumphs Over White Sox by 7-3 Score.

PHILADELPHIA, July 22 (A.P.).—A four-run rally that knocked Mel Harder out of the box in the seventh inning today gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 7-to-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians. It was the champions' ninth straight win, and, coupled with a Washington loss, extended their leading margin to nine games.

Averill's nineteenth home run of the season tied the score at 3 to 3 in the sixth. Dib Williams' triple with the bases filled drove in three of the four Mack runs that broke the tie in the following inning.

Rube Walberg, who went the distance for the champions, registered his fourteenth victory.

English's Hit in 11th Lets Cubs Beat Braves

Chicago, July 22 (A.P.).—Woody English's single in the eleventh inning with Hemsley on base gave the Chicago Cubs a hard-earned 5-to-4 victory today over the Boston Braves in the first of the series. The Bruins spotted the Bostonians four runs, but rallied to tie the count with two in the ninth.

Going into extra innings, Bush and Seibold took up the pitching duties after Malone and Zachary had departed. In the eleventh Hemsley doubled with one out and Hartnett, batting for Bush, walked. Jurges lined out, but English came through to win the game.

By the victory the Cubs took third place in the National League race, passing New York.

WAKE OF GAME

IT will be youth vs. old age, rookie against old master, at Griffith Stadium this afternoon in the second of the series between the Browns and Nationals, for Manager Walter Johnson plans to turn over his pitching assignment to "Sad Sam" Jones, with Wally ("Preacher") Hebert, sensational young southpaw, doing the alien flinging.

The Browns won yesterday after it looked as though the Nationals had tucked away the verdict in the opening round. Jones, who, like Crowder, used to toil in a St. Louis uniform, promises that things will be different today.

Outfielder Dave Harris was unable to show up at the park yesterday due to an attack of stomach trouble. He likely will be back on the job today.

In addition to battling a slump, Shortstop Joe Cronin also is handicapped because of a slightly injured

Mrs. Moody Enters Net Semifinals

Beats Miss Hilleary in Manchester Tourney.

Misses Weisel, Morrill, Mrs. Harper Also Advance.

By BILL KING.

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody entered the semifinal round of the Essex County Club's invitation singles tennis tournament today accompanied by the first three ranking women players of America, not one of whom appears capable of winning even a set against the former world's champion.

Mrs. Moody made the advance by blasting Virginia Hilleary, Philadelphia, off the court, 6—2, 6—0, and little Dorothy Weisel, of Sacramento, prepared to step into the great Helen's stroking range by defeating Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, 6—2, 6—4, in their all-Californian

Defending Champ Easy Winner.

The only one of the four matches that was keenly contested saw Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, of Oakland, Calif., outdrive and outchop Mary Greef, of Kansas City, for a 9—7, 6—3 victory. Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, the defending champion, fairly breezed into the second last round, losing only a game to Sarah Palfrey, Brookline, who refused to default, despite a painfully strained back.

It was a determined Miss Hilleary who faced off against the tennis marvel, who has not lost a set since 1926. Miss Hilleary battled stubbornly during the opener and, although she held only two of her four service games, managed to collect 24 points against Mrs. Moody's 31.

In the second set slaughter, Mrs. Moody mixed soft chops with her sizzling long drives and ran Miss Hilleary weary chasing them to back corners, up to the net and then over to the side lines. Miss Hilleary managed to collect only seven points, including one earned placement to 24 for the former head of the women's tennis list.

Mrs. Moody Steadier Than Previously.

Mrs. Moody played steadier tennis than in any of her other matches this week, making only 23 errors, 11 outs, as many nets and a single double-fault, during the fourteen games. Her hard service was generally well under control and there were few occasions when her first ball did not land fair.

Miss Weisel displayed inspiring steadiness against Miss Cruickshank, who usually employs that tennis asset, and during their duel, Miss Weisel pulled up from one-four to take the second set and match. However, she did not show a single stroke that appeared capable of bothering the former Miss Wills in their clash tomorrow.

The other semifinal, an East-West affair, between Mrs. Harper and Miss Morrill, has been put over until Friday to maintain the gallery's interest at high pitch for the entire week.

HOMERS AID YANKS IN SPLIT

Two by Ruth, One by Gehrig Win 2d; Tigers Cop 1st.

NEW YORK, July 22 (A.P.).—A pair of homers by Ruth, his 24th and 25th of the season, and Gehrig's 29th circuit drive gave the New York Yankees an even break in today's double-header with the Detroit Tigers. The three homers won the second game 9-5 after the Tigers had taken the opener 3-2.

Ben Chapman stole his 37th base and Lazzeri tripled with the bases loaded to help the Ruth-Gehrig act. The Tigers took the first game behind the six-hit pitching of George Uhle and with the aid of John Stone's hitting and Gordon Rhodes' wildness.

Draw Verdict Pleasing to Walker

Sharkey, Unscarred in Battle, Disappointed Fighter.

Result Is Damaging to Prestige of Boston Heavy.

ropes. For a moment it appeared that he might put over a knockout, but he failed to follow up the advantage, backing away and giving Mickey an opportunity to escape.

Sharkey continued to force the action throughout the thirteenth and fourteenth and had Walker bleeding badly and apparently badly tired.

Walker Stages Rally.

Walker staged a great rally in the final round and gave as good as he took. He waded in, making little effort to avoid Sharkey's blows, and slugged away at the head and body with jolting left hooks to earn an even break in the round—and in the fight.

Sharkey had no alibi, although he was convinced that he deserved the decision.

"I thought the only rounds I lost were the ninth, tenth and eleventh," said Sharkey. "I thought I took the fifteenth, although Mickey made a courageous rally. He never did hurt me, but don't let any one tell you he can't hit. It will be a long time before a man his size whips him.

"I made a mistake in that I thought I could go out and wear Mickey down, but my long absence from the ring took its toll. I simply didn't have the strength. I'd like to have another chance at him and I know that the fifteen rounds of ring work was just what I needed to put me in condition to beat Carnera, Loughran, Schmeling or any one else I can get."

Walker was enthusiastic and regarded the draw as almost as good as a victory.

"Every one said I didn't have a chance," Mickey Walker said, "but I knew I could hold by own with any one. Sharkey was gamer and better than I thought. I have no kick about the decision, but I still think I can whip him."

The failure to win was a terrific blow to Sharkey's prestige and to his hopes of a return bout with Max Schmeling for the world title. Sharkey had been expected to stop Walker long before the bout reached the halfway mark and his failure to do so practically eliminates him from consideration as an outstanding heavyweight.

Harvard-Yale Stars Win in German Meet

Cologne, Germany, July 22 (U.P.).—The combined Harvard and Yale and Harvard Track Team, which defeated a group of Oxford and Cambridge stars last week, won two first places today in an international track and field meet here.

The outstanding performance of the meet was that of Cobb, of Harvard, who won the 880-meter run in 1:52:8.

The other first place taken by the United States athletes was in the discus throw, which Crowley, of Yale, won with a toss of 45.95 meters.

Hoyt and Dugan Are Flayed As Latter Is Sued by Wife

NEW YORK, July 22 (A.P.).—Joseph Anthony Dugan, former third baseman for the New York Yankees, and Waite Hoyt, Philadelphia Athletics pitcher, are in agreement but neither agrees with the point of view of his wife.

Affidavits filed by the wives in Mrs Dugan's suit for separation revealed today that the husbands felt differently about the Dugans' matrimonial troubles from what the wives felt. Mrs. Dugan was awarded $25 weekly alimony and $250 counsel fees by Justice William T. Collins in supreme court today.

Mrs. Hoyt Supports Mrs. Dugan.

Mrs. Dugan, supported by an affidavit by Mrs. Hoyt, said in her petition she had lived with her baseball-playing husband happily for five years. During that period, Dugan gave her a $27,000 house in Scarsdale, an automobile and a mink coat, and in addition spent $400 weekly for their living expenses and gave other signs of affection.

But in the past three years, things have been different. She charges her husband with gambling, drinking and associating with other women and said he had refused to pay her hospital bills when his conduct made her ill, and had refused to tell her where he had been when she inquired.

On top of that, she declared, Dugan sold her home, furniture and automobile and refused to account for the proceeds.

The erstwhile Tiger third baseman had become a "buddy" of Hoyt's and together they went places neither she nor Mrs. Hoyt knew about.

Dugan Says Wife Is To Blame.

Dugan and Hoyt both filed affidavit's in reply. Dugan said it was his wife who did the drinking and gambling. He said she made loans of $500 and $1,000 from his friends and then lost the money betting on race horses, a fondness for which his wife had declared was entirely his.

And, he added, the only reason Mrs. Hoyt made her affidavit supporting Mrs. Dugan was that the Hoyts had disagreed slightly.

Hoyt, in his document supporting Dugan, said Mrs. Dugan started a quarrel with a stranger in a Montreal hotel elevator four years ago and, when Dugan sought to calm her, began a fight with her husband.

Mrs. Dugan, in her suit for separation, charges cruelty.

Former Gob Centers Methodical Attack On Mickey's Injured Eye After Trailing Smaller Opponent in Early Part of Bout

MICKEY WALKER

Walker Jumps to His Feet After Only Knockdown.

Boston Fighter, With 29-Pound Advantage, Forced Back.

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., Jly 22 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey, the erratic sailor man from Boston, adopted war-like measures a trifle too late tonight and was held to a draw by his under-sized but highly courageous opponent, Mickey Walker, in fifteen indecisive rounds of rough-house battling.

Outfought for the first ten rounds by an opponent he figured to beat decisively, with every physical advantage in his favor, Sharkey was forced to put on a two-fisted drive in the last four rounds to get so much as an even break.

The outcome was distinctly an upset, for Sharkey crawled into the ring a three-to-one favorite to whip the chunky, barrel-chested New Jersey Irishman.

Walker Spots Sharkey 29 Pounds.

Walker spotted Sharkey exactly 29 pounds, plus big margins in height, reach and strength, but Mickey lashed and harrassed his bigger foe with a courageous determination that frequently had the sympathetic crowd of 35,000 fans in an uproar.

Sharkey's stronger finish, however, appeared sufficient to balance the scales that were tipping strongly against him and saved what little prestige there was left for the big Bostonian.

None of the three officials voted alike. Referee Arthur Donovan, who repeatedly warned Sharkey for hitting low blows and for otherwise using questionable tactics, cast his ballot for Walker. Of the two judges, George Kelley voted for Sharkey and Charles F. Mathison voted a draw.

On the Associated Press score sheet, seven rounds were scored for each of the fighters, with the remaining round registered as even, thereby offering further evidence of the closeness of the bout.

Walker, mainly on the strength of his bulldog aggressiveness, was conceded margins in the third, fourth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh rounds. Sharkey was credited with taking the first, fifth, sixth, twelfth, fourteenth and fifteenth. The second was scored even.

Walker Surprises by Aggressiveness.

Walker surprised even his most enthusiastic backers by the effectiveness with which he carried the fight to Sharkey throughout most of the first ten rounds. Except for a bad time in the fifth, when Mickey was clipped while off balance and bounced to the floor, then suffered a nasty gash over his left eye, the Irishman swarmed over Sharkey and scored repeatedly with short blows until he began to tire in the last few rounds.

Walker leaped inside Sharkey's leads, cuffed and clouted the Bostonian. Jack handled his smaller foe with comparative ease in the clinches, but he was wild, especially with his right.

Not until the start of the twelfth round did Sharkey show anything like a sustained attack. Apparently realizing, for the first time, that he was in danger of taking a licking from a fighter he seemed to regard disdainfully at the outset, Sharkey finally cut loose with a show of punching power.

Throughout the last four rounds, Walker's left eye was a target for Sharkey's overhand rights and left jabs. The optic bled such a stream that Mickey's face was a crimson mask in the last two rounds, in addition to which his appearance was made more grotesque by a purple smear over his legs, due to the color dropping from his tights. Partially blinded though he was, Walker continued to fight back gamely, frequently driving Sharkey to the ropes with the fury of his rushes, while

THE FIGHT ROUND BY ROUND

(Associated Press.)

ROUND ONE—Sharkey jumped across the ring and drove a left hook to Walker's shoulder and then hugged the little fellow like a big mother bear squeezing a cub to her breast. He drove another left hook to Walker's head and barely missed a terrific right before jumping into another clinch. Walker flew at the big fellow, whaling both hands to the body and crossed his right to the chin. Sharkey grabbed him, stepped back, then drove a short sharp right to the head as Mickey stormed in again. The little fellow bullied Sharkey into a neutral corner and whaled at him with both hands. Sharkey jarred Walker into position and whipped his right hush to Walker's chin. Walker took it gamely and the bell stopped him from charging back.

ROUND TWO—Sharkey whipped two right hooks to the head and Walker weathered. He danced back and then hurled himself on the Boston heavyweight, flinging both hands. The crowd roared at Mickey's courage as he crowded Sharkey, whipping a neat left hook to the head, driving in under the defense. Mickey sunk a left hook into Sharkey's body, but Jack caught him coming in again with a sharp right uppercut to the head. Sharkey missed a straight right to the chin and again Walker dug lefts and rights into the body. Jack drove two hard rights to the ribs as Mickey sailed in again and they clinched. Sharkey chased Walker into the ropes with two left hooks to the head, but Walker refused to be pushed around and he whipped his left into Jack's body as the gong rang.

RISQUE LANDS $14,000 MATRON HANDICAP AT ARLINGTON

Hertz Stable Repeats '30 Victory

Valenciennes Coupled With Winner, Won Last Year.

Manta Is Second, a Length Back, With Cousin Jo Third.

ARLINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, Ill., July 22 (A.P.).—For the second straight year the colors of Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago, wife of the multimillionaire sportsman, flashed to victory in the $14,000 Arlington Matron Handicap today when Risque, coupled with Valenciennes as an entry, won the rich prize, defeating eight of the outstanding fillies and mares in the country.

Risque, 3-year-old daughter of Stimulus-Risky, galloped the mile over a heavy track in 1:42 1-5 to win by a length over Manta, the entry of Brownell Combs, of Lexington, Ky. Cousin Jo, another Kentucky filly, finished a staggering third. Risque paid $8.96 to win, $4.00 to place and $2.88 to show.

Race Worth $10,850
To Mrs. Hertz.

The winner earned $10,850 for Mrs. Hertz, while Manta received $2,000 for running second, and $1,000 went to Cousin Jo for third prize. The race was the richest prize for fillies and mares decided in America in recent years. Mrs. Hertz won the event a year ago with Valenciennes, which finished sixth today.

Risque, running in her best form and favored by the heavy condition of the track, shot into the lead at the start, with Jockey Earl Steffen having a snug hold on her while rating her along in front. Martha Jones raced alongside of her to the first turn, where Risque began to draw away. Manta, away a bit slowly, moved into second place at this stage, and from then on it was virtually a two-horse race. Jimmy Smith, riding Manta, made a challeng at the head of the stretch, but Risque had more in reserve and continued on to finish with a length to spare.

Of the ten fillies and mares named for the stake, Lassie was the only one scratched.

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

ARLINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, Chicago, July 22.—An allowance affair will serve as the feature of a rather ordinary program, which has been carded for the Arlington Park patrons tomorrow. The fourth event, for 4-year-olds and upward, has attracted a list of eight top-notch sprinters which will contest the $1,800 purse.

Of those named to start in the headliner, CHEERS, a speedy gelding in the C. E. Davison string, has a slight edge over his seven rivals. The son of the Finn finished second last start in front of some highly regarded sprinters and off that effort should annex the feature. GOLDEN PRINCE showed a return to his best form with a clever victory recently and is the one to fear. SISTER ZOE did not favor the soft footing last start but figures to save the minor award.

FIRST RACE—SOPHIST appears best of the twenty juveniles in the opener. The C. C. Van Meter colt stepped this distance in 1:06 2-5 and running back to that effort will be hard to beat. RARA AVIS has been training well. FLYING will favor the slow going and may get into the money.

SECOND RACE—THUNWIN should carry his speed to victory. The J. Lowe racer has shown consistent form and figures to enter the winner's circle. ANNIMESSIC has shown improvement and may furnish the opposition. DUSKY BOY appears best of the others.

THIRD RACE—OUTBOUND, from the Mrs. J. D. Hertz string, displayed a high turn of speed to finish behind Sun Memory and French Kiss last start and figures to improve off that effort. VOLTAGREEN weakened in his last start but should last to gain the place. HOPEFIELD has shown steady form in recent performances and rates the show call.

FIFTH RACE—JIM ORMONT is favored to show the way here. This colt from the M. J. Whalen barn raced Hold Hard to a nose in his last effort and is ready to battle it out with DACITE. The latter showed vast improvement last outing and with several speedy trials to his credit should furnish the opposition. GUIDE RIGHT may prove dangerous in this class.

SIXTH RACE—PLEASE should last to gain the major award. In his last, the J. W. May color bearer opened up a long lead but tired at the mile and an eighth route. At the shorter distance he figures to annex the purse. MONTANARO has not shown any speed over a slow track, but has enough class to make him a formidable contender. GONE AWAY has only JEM to beat for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—TRAUMEL has shown the most consistent form of this group and is favored to score. LANSQUENET raced well over a muddy track and will furnish stern opposition, with CHANCELLOR selected over the others for the show prize.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAD WIND, $5.34, $2.56, $2.64; MEXICO, $2.70, $2.62; PREDICT, $11.40.

MAD WIND began well and, after dropping back slightly in the early running, came gamely to pass MEXICO in the stretch and win easily. MEXICO set the pace and, after meeting with some stretch interference from winner, tired and barely lasted to save second place. PREDICT closed with a rush and was gaining rapidly. NICK D. had early speed and held on fairly well. JAMBALAYA tired after reaching contention on far turn.

SECOND RACE—About two miles (short course). Purse, $2,000; claiming. Springbrook Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:47. Off at 2:50. Winner, Fox Chapel Stud's b. g. (5), by Clulo—Nice Time. Trained by M. Henderson. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $350; third, $175; fourth, $75. Time, 4:07 (13 jumps).

†Fox Chapel Stud entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ACROBATE II, $4.40, $2.54, $3.04; TOD SLOAN, $3.24, $3.34; FICHET, $3.04.

ACROBATE II was held under restraint to permit his stablemate FICHET to set the early pace, came strongly to take command when the latter began to tire and opened up a wide lead in the final half mile to win eased up. TOD SLOAN fenced fairly well, but met with interference from the riderless FAIR BOB in the closing stages of the race and did not threaten winner. FICHET opened up a long lead in the first mile, but tired badly. SPORTY M'GEE lacked speed, but finished the course far back of the first three. HILLOCK refused at the twelfth fence when racing far back. FAIR BOB was in a contending position when he lost his rider at the tenth jump.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,500; allowances. San Atnonio Purse For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:20½. Off at 3:21. Winner, G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALA FLIGHT, $6.04, $3.10, $2.98; ALL ROWES, $4.14, $4.10; STIMALA, $13.28.

GALA FLIGHT, cleared up from the start, got through a narrow opening on the inside approaching the stretch turn to take command and drew out in the run home. ALL ROWES came gamely through the final furlong and was going well at the finish. STIMALA had the most early speed, but tired. FRENCH DUCHESS appeared to dislike the going and stopped badly in the stretch. LADY TEDDY broke slowly and was never dangerous.

FOURTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:52½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STONE MARTIN, $36.00, $10.86, $7.86; MOUTHPIECE, $3.90, $3.76; WRIGLEY FIELD, $6.44.

STONE MARTIN assumed a promenent position soon after the start and, taking command when WRIGLEY FIELD tired at the stretch turn, drew out to a long lead in the last furlong. MOUTHPIECE was in close quarters the entire stretch, but made up ground in the final run. WRIGLEY FIELD tired after racing MORE POWER into defeat. TRY IT was badly outrun early and made up some ground in stretch.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $10,000 added. Arlington Matron Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward; fillies and mares. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:27½. Winner, Mrs. J. D. Hertz's b. f. (3), by Stimulus—Risky. Trained by W. Knapp. Value to winner, $10,850; second, $2,000; third, $1,000; fourth, $500. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RISQUE, $8.96, $4.00, $2.88; MANTA, $4.42, $3.48; COUSIN JO, $3.98.

RISQUE, showing much early speed, raced MARTHA JONES into submission and had enough left to withstand the challenge of MANTA in the final quarter and win under mild urging. MANTA saved ground where possible and loomed up dangerously at the stretch turn but, although racing gamely to the finish, could not catch the winner. COUSIN JO went fairly well and made up ground in the stretch. CON AMORE could not extend himself and was never a serious threat. MARTHA JONES and SWEET SCENT tired badly. HER GRACE was far back all the way.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course, out of chute). Purse, $2,000. Green Bay Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:57½. Off at 4:57½. Winner, K. E. Hitt's br. g. (5), by Sun Briar—Miss Virginia. Trained by T. Rodrick. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $350. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:51 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNVIR, $4.06, out; SPINACH, out.

SUNVIR broke in front and, under a well-judged ride, led all the way, but was doing his best at the end to hold SPINACH. Latter was never far from the leader and, gaining under punishment in the stretch run, would have won in a few more strides.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:30. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ED LARK, $28.06, $8.22, $3.62; FAIR BETH, $3.34, $2.46; CABILDO, $2.78.

ED LARK, headed PRICKLY HEAT when straightened out for the back stretch run and, taking a long lead, lasted to hold FAIR BETH, but was under a drive at the finish. FAIR BETH was allowed to drop too far out of it when under restraint in the early stages and did not have enough closing speed to catch the winner. CABILDO could not keep up in the early stages, but held the others.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:01. Off at 6:03. Winner, E. Kane's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUB M'FARLAND, $10.28, $5.72, $4.04; PAULA L., $8.52, $5.56; SPANFLOW, $4.20.

BUB M'FARLAND moved up fast in the last quarter and, coming around the outside at the stretch turn, wore down PAULA L. and won easily. PAULA L., showing much improvement over her recent efforts, easily went to the front when called upon on the back stretch, but weakened in the final furlong.

NATS BEATEN BY BROWNS, 8 TO 4

muscle. "The San Francisco Keed" will not give up, though.

When Hargrave came up with the bases loaded with Nationals and two dead in the first, Gray's first two offerings were strikes. Then came three balls, a "fat" one, and a liner single to right which scored two.

Jim Levey, former Quantico Marine star, is so weak at the tee that he is watching St. Louis games from the bench these days, with Ralph Kress, who has been shifted all over the field this season, holding down the berth.

Another former National came to town with the Browns yesterday, Pitcher Garland Braxton, the southpaw screw-ball artist, now sporting St. Louis livery. He was obtained on waivers from the White Sox.

Burns' double in the fourth was a grounder which shot past Cronin so fast that he was unable to even get his glove down in his effort to stop it.

Bettencourt hardly had to move for Hargrave's liner in the home fourth.

A missed double-play by the Nats enabled the Browns to score their three runs in the fifth. After Schulte singled and Melillo flied out, Hayes made a fine stop of Goslin's badbounding grounder. Melillo was forced at second, but Cronin pegged badly trying to double-up the Goose at first. The round would have ended had this play gone through and the blows which drove the runs home never would have been made.

Bettencourt sent West back to the stands in deep center for his looper opening the sixth.

Bengough's double in the eighth was his fourth successive hit of the game.

BURROWS AND CONNELLY IN TIE FOR PUBLIC LINKS TITLE

Rivals Meet Today in Play-Off

Shoot 315 in 72-Hole Test at East Potomac Course.

65 Capital Golfers Compete in Maryland Tourney.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE contest for the public links golf championship of the District of Columbia ended yesterday afternoon on the East Potomac Park course in a tie between Bradley H. Burrows, the defending champion, and John J. Connelly, each finishing the 72-hole medal round with 315 strokes. The tie will be played off at 1 o'clock this afternoon, eighteen holes.

At the beginning of the final round of 36 holes yesterday morning Burrows and Connelly were tied at 158. When the first nine on Course A had been played, Burrows, out in 39, had gained a stroke over his opponent, whose card totaled 80. Both played the second nine, course C, in 38, so that Burrows retained his narrow lead. However, in the afternoon, Burrows negotiated the first nine in 37, while Connelly expended 40 strokes, so that the later was four strokes in the rear. At that point it was predicted that all was over but the shouting, for no other contestant was within striking distance of the leader.

Burrows Pursued By Jinx.

The uncertainty of golf was never better illustrated than the happenings on the last nine of the medal round. Burrows seemed pursued by a jinx. The first two holes are par 5s, but Burrows on each hole took three strokes from off the green for 6s, and then on the fourth hole, a par 3, he overdrove the green beneath some hanging tree branches, and his next shot did not move his ball 10 feet. Then he played over the green and was fortunate to get a 5. Then he had another 6 on the seventh—too many 6s for any player who is trying to keep down his score and win a championship medal. He finished with 43 for a total of 80.

Meanwhile Connelly was steadily gaining—in fact with a birdie on the first hole, followed by pars, he soon was even with Burrows and although he was one over par on the fifth and sixth holes, he scored another birdie on the seventh, finishing with 39 for a total of 79 for the round and ending the competition with a tie. The cards:

John M. Downey, who was only 2 strokes behind Connelly at the beginning of the last nine, having played the first nine of the afternoon round in 36, seemed a possible second in the race; but he took 40 for the second nine and finished with 318, the closest score to the two leaders. Harlan Will had a total of 319 and Everett R. Johnson had 320. All the other players were some distance down the line. The final scores:

347—James Thornton, 90, 88, 89, 80; Maynard Hamma, 99, 88, 81, 89.

The four members of the public links team which will represent Washington in the national public links championship will play on the Chevy Chase course next Tuesday afternoon, with Burrows and Connelly paired against Robert Burton and Harlan Will.

Fred McLeod, professional at the Columbia Club, is at the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, recovering from an operation for the removal of his tonsils.

The names of 65 Washington golfers appear on the entry list of the Maryland Country Club invitation Golf Tournament, which began yesterday. A few of these players competed yesterday in the first day of qualification, but the bulk of the Washington visitors are on the program for today. Blue Day, 4-1, Wins Feature at Empire

Empire City Race Track, N. Y., July 22 (A.P.).—Jockey Laverne Fator gave the Newtondale Stable's Blue Day a perfect ride to win the Hardy Purse, a dash of about six furlongs, which headed a scratch-riddled program here this afternoon. Four horses competed in the feature event, with William M. Moore, jr.'s, Billour the 3 to 5 choice. That colt was beaten a head for the lion's share of the spoils, while the Howe Stable's Lullaby 2d was third, another half-length back and two lengths in advance of Quorum.

Blue Day paid 4 to 1 and he ran the distance over a slow track in 1:10 1-5.

Insco May Race Again Despite Broken Leg

Chicago, July 22 (A.P.).—Just when it appeared that his injuries were hopeless, Insco, sturdy thoroughbred, owned by Griffith Watkins, has made what appears to be a winning comeback in his fight for life.

Dr. Joseph M. Kaiser, veterinarian, who has been treating the fleet son of Sir Gallahad III, today said the latest X-Rays of his leg fractures showed surprising recovery and that it now was planned to ship the horse to the Kentucky farm to recuperate.

"If he continues his progress, we have every reason to expect that he will be back racing again," said Dr. Kaiser.

Naval Hospital Tackles Celtics at Alex. Sunday

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 22.—One of Uncle Sam's fastest service teams will parade its wares before local diamond fans for the third time this season when the Naval Hospital tossers, of Washington, come here Sunday afternoon for a game with the St. Mary's Celtics at 3 o'clock at Baggett's Park.

The Capital club, strengthened by several of the foremost sandlot stars of that city, has developed into a greatly feared organization after a slow start and lately has been wrecking the title hopes of many of this section's outstanding combinations.

Celtics and Gobs Split Two Games.

Included in the Gobs' list of triumphs is one victory over the Celtics. The two clubs have disposed of two of the five games scheduled between them in a series that is due to have great bearing on the semipro championship of this section. Each nine boasts one win.

Lem Owens, who defeated the old-time Dreadnaught A. A. here on many occasions while twirling for the Rex and Silver Spring teams years back, will face the youthful Celtic sluggers, it has been announced. Owens is pitching on the sandlots again after enjoying a number of successful campaigns in professional circles as a member of the Hartford Eastern League Club.

The Celtics will be shooting for their eighteenth victory of the season in the Naval Hospital contest and are anxious to score over Owens in doing so.

The "Saints" have victimized the following clubs this season: Fort Humphreys (2), Takoma Tigers (2), Virginia White Sox (2), Washington Red Sox (2), Naval Hospital, Culpeper, Hisers All-Stars, Fredericksburg Elks, H. A. French Co., Columbia Heights, Rockville and Washington Terminal. Against those triumphs are only two defeats, those at the hands of the Naval Hospital and Red Sox outfits.

Coach Ludlow Batting Above .640.

The roster of the club that piled up this impressive record for the Green and Gold includes Art Ludlow, slugging coach, who is batting above the .640 mark; "Doc" Dreifus, first baseman and pitcher, who has yet to be defeated on the hill; "Lefty" McIntire, undefeated in two years on the mound for the Celtics; "Coopy" Goodwin, 19-year-old outfielder, who is second to Ludlow in batting with a .500 mark, and Pat Murphy, rookie outfielder, who is topping the .400 mark with the willow.

Five of the team's stars have been with the club since its organization in 1926 and also played with the St. Mary's Juniors when that club won the junior title of Alexandria in 1925.

They are Capt. Bill Langford, second baseman who is hitting .385 and fielding the flashiest of any one on the team; "Bussy" Brenner, heavy-hitting lead-off man and a brainy, defensive performer; Russell Kidwell, peppy backstopper; Joe Hamilton, brilliant center fielder, and Rip Hicks, who is close up on the leaders at bat and who leads the fielders with only 1 error in 132 chances.

The St. Mary's Juniors skipped the senior class in their move upward in 1926 and won the city unlimited title in a series with the Cardinals, No. 5 Engine Company and Virginia Grays, taking six straight games. In 1927 and 1928 the team defended its title successfully and then moved into Baggett's Park in 1929, annexing at the same time the northern Virginia semipro crown.

In 1930 the club won the title in the Washington Independent League, composed of the fastest semipro teams in northern Virginia, the District of Columbia and Maryland.

FRONT ROYALS BOW.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., July 22.—The All-Stars were defeated here this afternoon by the Fredericksburg, Va., team, the score being 7 to 4. Fainclout, pitching for the visitors, allowed but four hits, while Pulliam, pitching for the locals, allowed eight.

BOXING REPRESENTATIVE.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 22.—Ward Lanham, Fairmont attorney, will represent the West Virginia State Boxing Commission at all bouts staged in Fairmont, it was announced here today by Frank J. Maxwell, Clarksburg member of the commission, just returned from a tour of the State on organization business for the commission.

Diamond Dust

WITH the Stewart Pharmacy Juniors standing on the threshold of the championship of section A, junior division of The Post's Capital City League, the time is ripe to give some credit to George McNally, who has been the guiding hand behind the Druggists' successful campaign.

Mr. McNally has not been mentioned before as manager of the team simply because we were under the impression that "Stump" Warring held that position. But "Stump," it appears, has been handling the business affairs of the team and had no part in directing the boys on the field. And now let us hope that the 15 members of the Stewart team will stop telephoning at 2 a. m. with the admonition, "Hey, ain't you never gonna discover that Mr. McNally's running this team?"

The Franc Jewelers, who jolted the powerful Miller-Roamers in an 11-inning battle Sunday, will drill today at 5 p. m. on Diamond No. 4 of the Monument Grounds.

The Holy Rosary Seniors will go through their paces today at 5 p. m. on Diamond No. 1 of the Monument Grounds. All players are requested to report promptly.

The K. of C. Insects tackle the Cliff Boltons today at 3 p. m. on the South Ellipse. Members of both teams are urged to report promptly.

The Griffith-Blue Coals will drill Friday at 5 p. m. on the Phoenix diamond in preparation for Sunday's game with the Skinker Eagles. Manager Glascoe expects all members to report promptly.

The Ross Jewelry Co. Juniors will entertain the Stewart A. C. of Baltimore, Sunday at 3 p. m. on the Monument grounds. The game will immediately follow the Ross team's Capital City League fray with the Fussell-Young nine.

The Sterling A. C. will journey to Middleburg Va., Sunday for a game with the Middleburg A. C. at 3 p. m. All members of the Sterlings are requested to report at the clubhouse at noon before leaving for the game.

The Kanawha A. C. will stack up against Bill McCrea's Auth A. C. today at 5 p. m. on Diamond No. 1 of the Monument Grounds. Members of both teams are requested to report promptly.

The Congress Heights A. C. will drill today at 5 p. m. in preparation for Sunday's contest with the Kanawha A. C. All players are requested to attend today's session.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

APPLES.

THE saying, "An apple a day will keep the doctor away," has in it some basis of truth, although not enough to decrease its popularity.

The chief medicinal value of this fruit lies in its vitamin content and especially in that principle which protects against scurvy and even cures that disease. It also protects against pyorrhea, gumboils, spongy gums, and decay of teeth. Apples vary in the amount of antiscorbutic vitamin they carry. The difference is a matter of variety more than of climate, soil, or season. According to a report of the Medical Research Council, certain members of the apple family have but little antiscorbutic vitamin. They found cooking apples to have rather more than other varieties. Roasting apples in their skins does not reduce the vitamin materially. This holds true of other methods of cooking. Cold storage apples retain their antiscorbutic vitamin. On the other hand, drying apples in the sun was destructive to the protective principle. Canned apples and apples dried by quick processes were better supplied with it.

Anemia is usually present in scurvy. In fact, it is one of its most frequent symptoms. Apples and other fruits are good for the anemia as well as the basic trouble.

Apple juice and apple cider have the antiscorbutic properties of the fruit from which they are made. Apples, apple juice and apple cider have some virtues as mild laxatives, particularly if they are taken immediately on arising. Kellogg claims that apples and apple juice are intestinal antiseptics, though most authorities do not accept that point as having been made.

This is about all the evidence there is for the medicinal qualities of apples.

On the other hand, they sometimes invite the doctor in, as many small boys can testify. Eating green apples is a prominent cause of diarrhea among boys. A green apple is composed of fiber, starch and malic acid, and the combination may irritate the digestive tract of children. Careless people sometimes fail to wash the insecticide from apples and thus they occasionally get a dose of poison that is sufficient to cause diarrhea. The worms and eggs at times found in apples do not infest human beings.

SOMETIMES SERIOUS.

Miss W. J. writes:

1. Is pyelitis serious? I have had it for over a year and have been clear only once.
2. What causes it?
3. Does it ever cause kidney stones?

GALLSTONES.

Mrs. J. W. writes: Is it possible to get rid of gallstones by any other means than an operation? I have tried dieting, but I get only slight results.

REPLY.

It is not. Gallstones are a condition and not a theory, and they can not be wished out. The symptoms of gallstones may be another matter. It is the shifting of gallstones that causes most of the symptoms. When the stones come to rest symptoms are likely to disappear. Thus, any one of a thousand circumstances, remedies and what not may be credited with curing gallstones. Ninety per cent of such cures are coincidents rather than cures, even in the loose sense.

Tiny Locomotive Runs; Believed World Littlest

Mullens, W. Va., July 22 (U.P.).—Vernon Musser, a machinist, has built what he believes to be the smallest steam locomotive capable of operation. It is 22 inches long, with a boiler 13 inches long, withstanding a pressure of 75 pounds. Alcohol is used for fuel. The boiler has 21 flues with a throttle in the dome.

STOCK PRICES REACT DESPITE DEBT NEWS

Steel Is Market's Leader With Loss at Close; Other Issues Join Decline.

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—The security markets reacted today despite the reassuring official statements on the London conference. Stocks, which had been creeping higher for nearly a week, turned heavy in a volume of only 995,430 shares. Weakness of sterling exchange stood out among the day's developments. Grain quotations were about steady, but cotton took a tumble.

Some disturbance may have been caused by Wall street reports that the German political situation was becoming more trying, presumably as a result of a belief that the best to be hoped from the London meeting was an extension of existing credits and a decision in favor of leaving such accommodations undisturbed.

Talk of a huge international loan for the Reich, an operation which met with frank disfavor among many prominent bankers here, has died down, although not long ago the Germans were understood to hold that such help was necessary.

News Is Unfavorable.

Wall street's inability to guess what dividend action will be taken at next Tuesday's steel corporation meeting, a drop in steel operations to a new low for the depression, reports of lessened activity by the can manufacturers and a loss in electric power output, as compared with a year ago, contributed to the debit side of the news ledger.

With the automobile industry promising to touch its year's low next month and rail requirements temporarily satisfied, improvement in steel making is hardly expected before September, although a substantial autumn rise, perhaps to 50 per cent, is looked for.

U. S. Steel was clearly the market leader. At its low, 93⅜, the issue was down 3⅜, and it barely managed to close above the bottom for a net loss of 3⅛. American Can and Auburn Auto retreated 4 points each, while Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, American Telephone, International Telephone, Consolidated Gas, American & Foreign Power, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Case were down to 2 to 3⅝. General Motors, whose report was published after the close, lost nearly a point. The $1.82 per share for the second quarter was closely in line with earlier estimates.

England's Gold Losses.

The Bank of England's gold losses to continental Europe were in the neighborhood of $15,000,000, bringing the total drain of the past week to not far from $100,000,000. This again brings up the question of whether the bank will act to stop the flow by raising the discount rate, but London dispatches did not seem to think this step would be taken tomorrow. Such action would, of course, tend to hold back British industry.

Although the pound here was well below the gold point, there were no indications that any metal would be shipped to New York. Apparently local banks are reluctant to aggravate the situation. Sterling cables here closed at 4.84 1-16, a net loss of three-quarters of a cent. The French franc, on the other hand, was strong.

Wheat traded narrowly, influenced in part by a bullish weather report and unfavorable crop advices from North Dakota. Final quotations represented a net loss of one-eighth of a cent on all months. Corn was mixed, with July five-eighths higher and September and December half a cent lower. Selling of cotton was in sympathy with the stock market decline and favorable reports on the crop.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, July 22 (A.P.).—Offsets to disconcerting reports of developments at the International Financial Conference rallied wheat prices late today, and overcame early downturns. The offsets included bullish crop news from spring wheat sections both sides of the Canadian line, South Dakota in particular. Moreover, indications pointed to larger export business in United States wheat than had been acknowledged, and the total receipts of new winter wheat dropped to 2,166 cars, about one-third of what they were at the peak of the harvest movement.

Wheat closed steady at the same as yesterday's finish or ¼-cent off, corn varying from ½ decline to ¼ advance, oats ¼ to ½ down, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents setback.

A leading unofficial crop authority reported serious damage to South Dakota wheat, probably cutting the prospect a third. He said the injury to recent exceptionally high temperatures that reached 114 degrees in some cases. Other reports were sensationally bullish as to North Dakota wheat, much of the State having a promise of fresh rain need only. Of the season, were received at Minneapolis, and millers there indicated that arrivals would find ready sale.

Tending to give late firmness to wheat prices were spread transactions that involved purchases of wheat against simultaneous equal sales of corn. Some buying of wheat was based on belief that prevailing prices were so low as to preclude likelihood of any important profits from speculative selling. Export wheat quotations at the Gulf of Mexico were relatively the lowest thus far on the 1931 crop.

Scarcity of July offerings was a feature in the corn pit, where a large operator was buying July and selling deferred deliveries. Forecasts of cooler, unsettled weather over parts of the West tended to relieve anxiety as to likelihood of a new hot wave. Acute need of moisture in many corn areas, however, was noted. Oats eased with corn, despite Illinois reports of hot weather damage to oats. Provisions lacked aggressive support.

FOREIGN BONDS LEAD MARKET IN DECLINE

Second Class Rails Develop Easier Tone; Latin Issues Record Wide Drops.

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—Sharp reactions in many foreign issues, and an easier tone to second grade domestic rails pulled the bond market lower today.

German loans were soft, although turnovers were moderate in most instances, and there were also some sizable declines in numerous Latin Americans, particularly the Argentines. German government 7s slumped 5½ points to 85 and closed at the bottom, while the Young plan 5½s dropped 4¾, also finished at their day's minimum, 60¼. Agricultural bank obligations were down 4½ to nearly 10 points, although trading in these listings was light. Obligations floated by German states and cities followed the trend of the governments.

Argentine loans were rather active, yielding 1 to 5 points. Chileans were slightly heavy. British 5½s turned over rather briskly, rising ¼ net to 107¾.

In the domestic list attention was centered largely on the rails, where gains recorded yesterday were generally lost. The softer spots embraced the Erie, the St. Paul 5s, Rock Island convertible 4½s, Missouri Pacific, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5½s, Frisco 4½s, Wabash 4½s and New York Central 4½s of 2013.

Oil bonds led the generally steady industrials. Phillips Petroleum 5¼s rallied more than 2 points but closed under the top. Pure Oil 5½s of 1937, Humble 5s, Standard of New Jersey 5s and Sinclair 6½s scored fractional gains. Miscellaneous issues showing some heaviness included International Match 5s and convertible 5s, International Cement 5s and Armour 5½s.

Utilities were mostly firm, although a few issues sagged moderately. The United States Government group was very dull and about unchanged.

WARRANTLESS RAID UPHELD BY JUDGE

Existence of Barred Door Is Held Justification for Investigation.

Warrantless raiding in gambling cases received support from a new quarter yesterday, when Judge John P. McMahon overruled a motion to strike out evidence against two men arrested without warrants in a raid at 915 Ninth street northwest.

Judge McMahon ruled that the presence of a reinforced door, equipped with a peephole, might lead police to believe a misdemeanor was being committed behind it, and should justify entrance, provided the raiding party made a legal approach to the portal.

The ruling was made in the case against Steve John Nichols and Thomas Simon, arrested in a raid made May 26. Trial of the men was continued until tomorrow.

Meanwhile Judge Ralph Given reserved decision on a similar motion entered in the case of William Baroni and Louis Palumbo, taken in a warrantless raid on 408 Ninth street. He probably will hand down a ruling this morning.

In the Nichols and Simon trial it was testified that police were allowed to pass through an outer door into an areaway, where entrance was barred by a second door. The first door, it was said, opened from a fruit store conducted by Nichols. Police said a man named Voorhees accompanied them into the areaway, and knocked on the second door. They said some one came to a slot in the door and refused to admit them.

Judge McMahon ruled that this action was sufficient to lead the raiding party to suspect that business of an illegal nature was being conducted behind the portal.

According to the police version, Voorhees left them, saying he would phone and the door would be opened for them. After he left, they said, the door was opened. The defense claims one of the policemen forced entrance.

A second motion that the jury be instructed to return a verdict of not guilty, because there was no evidence of gambling when the police entered the inner chamber, was overruled by Judge McMahon. He made a similar ruling on a motion to dismiss the case against Nichols, because he conducted only the fruit store.

The establishment was entered during the police drive to locate "a couple of fellows" believed to be implicated in the attempt to steal liquor from the El Salvadorean Legation, and in a murder.

Judge McMahon ruled this alone was not sufficient to permit them to enter, but once having been admitted they were justified in conducting a raid if they saw the gaming laws were being violated.

Mishaps Fewer in States Requiring Driver Tests

Sixteen States and the District of Columbia now require an examination as a prerequisite to securing a license to drive, and in these States the accident situation is improving, as compared with those where no demonstration of driving ability is required, according to the District Division of the American Automobile Association.

States requiring licenses were given as Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and West Virginia. Nine States have license laws with an examination either optional or not required, leaving 23 States in the nonlicensing group.

Hoover to Lay Wreath at Base of Monument as Crowd Sings.

Plans for a dramatic opening of national radio programs inaugurating the George Washington Bicentennial celebration next February 22, to include an address by President Hoover and a concert under leadership of John Philip Sousa and Dr. Walter Damrosch, were announced yesterday by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, chairman of the District commission.

While the Nation listens over nation-wide hook-ups, President Hoover will lead in honoring the "Father of His Country," and thousands of persons gathered on the Washington Monument Grounds will sing the National anthem.

The President is to deposit an offering of flowers at the base of the Monument, and representatives from foreign countries, delegates from American possessions, Indian tribes, and fraternal and political organizations are expected to follow his example. More detailed plans will be made later.

Midsummer Job Drive Is Praised Over Radio

Through the midsummer job campaign, now under way, the people of Washington have an opportunity to benefit themselves above every one else, Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer declared in a radio address over Station WRC last night.

"Every day's work given to a man or woman in Washington during the campaign will apply another ounce of buying power to the wheel of the American business machine," Dr. Reichelderfer said. "The campaign is designed to stimulate business in the Capital as much as it is intended to relieve unemployment."

Girl's Alleged Assailant Is Placed on Probation

Warning that "another drop of liquor" will send him to jail for a year and a half, Judge Robert E. Mattingly yesterday suspended sentences of 360 days and 180 days against William Parker Barnes, after his conviction on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and assault.

Barnes, who gave his address as the Capitol Yacht Club, was accused of striking Margaret Daniels, 437 Tenth street northeast, during a dispute. He admitted he had been drinking. Police said they found a knife in his shirt front when they arrested him. He was placed on probation for a year by Judge Mattingly.

Rotary Hears History Of Carbonated Water

Soda water does not contain soda and never did, said L. J. Goode yesterday, speaking at a luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Willard Hotel. Of the history of today's soft drink, he said that Joseph Priestly in 1772 invented a process for artificially carbonating water.

Townsen Speakman, a Philadelphia druggist, 35 years later perfected a carbonating process based upon the ideas of Priestly. It was Speakman who conceived the idea of flavoring the water, thus setting up groundwork for an industry which in America alone has 8,000 bottling plants and produces annually more than 14,000,000,000 half-pint bottles of carbonated beverages, he said.

Preparations Made For Big Paving Job

New York Avenue Extension Will Relieve Traffic Jam.

Final touching up, preparatory to paving, was started yesterday on the New York avenue extension, from Florida avenue to Bladensburg road northeast, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, chief engineer of the highway department, said.

The roadway, which constitutes one of the largest single paving jobs ever let by the District government; is to be 50 feet wide. It will shorten the route from the heart of the city to Defense Highway by seven-eighths of a mile and will relieve much of the congestion of traffic between nearby Maryland and the District.

Paving of Bladensburg road, from New York avenue to the District line, is progressing rapidly, Capt. Whitehurst said, and should be completed in about a month and a half. It is a 60-foot thoroughfare.

Through Attorney W. R. Lichtenberg, he told the court he was only 18 years old and the girl 15 when they obtained a license and were married without the consent of the parents of either. He claims such marriages are illegal in the State of Maryland.

Slow Demand Brings Dog License Warning

Demand for dog license tags has been slow since they went on sale a week ago, Tax Collector Chatham Towers said yesterday.

So far only 3,348 have been issued, whereas there are estimated to be 19,000 dogs in the District. The Commissioners have instructed police to leave untagged dogs alone until the end of the month, but after that the round-up will begin, it was indicated.

Viola Lomax, colored, has been "taking trouble" from Aaron Lomax during all thirteen years of their married life, she told Judge Robert E. Mattingly in Police Court yesterday.

The thirteenth year spelled trouble for Aaron. He was sentenced to 360 days in jail and a fine of $500 or an additional 360 days on charges of stabbing Viola in the back, breast, arm and neck in a dispute in Clarks court.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE LION'S TONGUE.

"Livingstone, Rhodesia. — Attacked by a wounded lion which had set upon him in the jungle, a rancher named Gleimann seized the beast's tongue and held on until a friend shot the animal."—Newspaper dispatch.

* * * *

"DESPITE the tendency in some quarters to discredit this exploit," declared Elmer Twitchell, himself an old lion-tongue clutcher, "I am in a position to state that the story is quite plausible. Boy and man, I have been attacked by hundreds of lions, and I owe my survival to the fact I always went for the tongue immediately."

"How do you explain it?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"Well," replied Elmer, fingering a watch charm made from four teeth once yanked from a maneater in the Rhodesian district, "how would you feel if somebody reached in and got a firm hold on your tongue?"

"Terrible," was the reply.

"So does the lion," declared Elmer. "Nothing makes a man or beast so submissive."

* * * *

"BUT isn't it difficult to grab a lion by the tongue?" asked the interviewer.

"It's a little difficult at first," admitted Mr. Twitchell, "but after a while you get the hang of it. I guess I had been attacked by my seventh or eighth lion before I acquired real dexterity. Like everything else, practice makes perfect. The best training is to practice with a few old lions first."

* * * *

"But how do you get hold of a lion's tongue," pressed the interviewer. "Does the king of beasts attack with its tongue out?"

"I've seen 'em do it in extremely hot weather, but it is unusual," replied Elmer. "Of course, if a lion is thirsty and panting when it attacks you, it is child's play to grab its tongue. Ordinarily, though, the tongue is in its mouth and it is up to you to go in and get it!"

"But how?"

"I can't exactly explain it," said Elmer. "It's all done in the flash of an eye. You keep your eye on the mouth and the instant it opens, you thrust in your hand."

"Which hand?"

"Either," snapped Elmer. "In an encounter with two lions at a time in the Narobi district in the summer of 1898 I had to use both. It's entirely a wrist motion."

"Do you mean to say that you were once attacked by two lions at the same time and grabbed each by the tongue?" demanded the interviewer.

"There was nothing else to do," explained Elmer, simply. "There is no sense hanging on to one lion by the tongue and letting the other alone. It was a wonderful experience. I nearly lost my life that time, due to the fact the second lion had an unusually short tongue."

"Go on!"

"I had clutched the first lion by the tongue and rendered it helpless, but the short tongue of the other nearly undid me. My hold was a weak one and I could feel it slipping. In a moment all would be lost. Then a bright thought flashed into my mind. I gave the tongue several sharp yanks and then cowed the beast by a remark I have never forgotten."

"'Consider your Adam's Apple!'" concluded Elmer, walking to the wall and adjusting an enormous lion skin hung there.

GOLFER'S PLEA.

"Give me the old ball back!
Restore it speedily
So when I miss a whack
I won't be all at sea.

"Give me the old ball; this
Is my request and plea,
So when I swing and miss
I'll place the blame on me!"

UTILITY BODY ACTION LOOMS IN TAXI WAR

950 Cabs Involved as Second Firm Meets Reduction to 20 Cents.

With a rate war on among independent taxicab companies, there is speculation as to whether the Public Utilities Commission will take a hand in an effort to stabilize prices.

The Diamond Taxicab Co., largest of the zone operators, notified the commission that its rates would be cut to 20, 40, and 60 cents for the three city zones, last night.

This drastic reduction followed a cut to the same level by the Protex-U Cab Co., the day before. This latter company's officials stated when their new rates went into effect yesterday morning that they were prepared to make even further reductions if competing lines met their scale.

Counsel Approves Meters.

Meanwhile, the utilities body is watching developments and declining to comment in spite of efforts of some tax operators to induce the commission to establish a uniform rate.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, would not say yesterday whether the commission would take a hand in the battle.

Several months ago the utilities body asked an opinion of its special assistant counsel, William A. Roberts, as to whether it could compel all taxicabs to use meters under the new traffic act. The opinion stated that the act granted such authority, but so far nothing has come of the inquiry.

Insurance Order Invalidated.

Once before, under the old traffic law, the commission made an effort to place all taxicab operation in the District on a meter basis along with a requirement that all operators carry liability insurance. When the insurance order was invalidated by court, the meter provision was shelved and never enforced.

Should the commission attempt to require all taxicabs to use meters it would undoubtedly meet opposition from People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, who has been one of the ardent supporters of the zone system.

Boundaries of the three city zones are the same as before, Harry C. Davis, manager of the Diamond Co., said yesterday. There are 750 Diamond cabs in operation, while the Protex-U Co. has about 200 on the streets.

Policeman Is Injured Capturing 3 Youths

While chasing four colored youths who allegedly had assaulted another boy and smashed his ukelele yesterday, Policeman Guy L. Carder slipped in an alley and strained his right side. He continued the chase, however, and with the assistance of Policeman George W. Absher captured three of the boys, who are being held for investigation.

The Tenth Precinct patrolmen heard the yellows of 14-year-old William Young, 11 R street northwest, and running up to where he was standing at First and Bryant streets, learned that the gang had taken his watch and smashed his ukulele after beating him up.

Woman's Head Is Cut When Wagon Hits Her

Seven stitches were required to close the scalp of Minnie L. Parker after she was struck by a coal wagon yesterday morning while on her way to work in the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The accident occurred on F street, near Tenth street northwest.

According to police, the two-horses wagon was driven by Gesway Miles, 50, colored, of 321 Missouri avenue northwest. The victim is 40 and lives at 200 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Boy Hooks 77-Pound Fish With Aid of 12-Cent Line

Arthur Ellis, Post Staff Photographer.

What's in a name? Above is Clayton Fish, 17 years old, with a 77-pound drum fish caught on his line yesterday afternoon which he landed with the aid of friends off Solomans Island.

Companions Help to Land Largest Hand Catch Yet Taken From Potomac.

Even if this is a fish story—it's a good one.

It was a great day yesterday for Clayton Fish, 17 years old, of 2425 Third street northeast, when, with a party of friends he went to Soloman's Island, in the Patuxent River, on a fishing trip.

All day they cruised about the island catching fish of various shapes and sizes. Clayton, with a fish line which cost him exactly 12 cents, had perched himself on the stern of the boat. Watching the others haul in their catches, he was bemoaning his luck, when the line was suddenly jerked from his hand.

Unable at first to realize that at last his patience was to be rewarded, the boy clung to the line and attempted to bring in his catch. For several minutes he struggled, but to no avail. Finally he decided that whatever was on his line, was no common-place fish, and called to his companions for aid.

The battle was on! They decided that this was one fish that wasn't going to get away. For more than an hour Clayton and his friends, seven of them, struggled to land the huge creature, which, when finally hauled into the boat, proved to be a 77-pound drumfish. It was said to be the largest fish ever caught in the Patuxent with a hand line.

Victorious, the party returned to the island. Old-time fishermen gazed in awe at young Fish and his catch. They vowed that never before, in these parts, had they seen a fish that size.

On exhibition at the Fish home last night the creature was the center of attraction. Neighbors throughout the community gathered to view the fish and congratulate Fish.

Others in the party, who made the catch possible, were Francis Cole, W. C. Payne, Charles R. Ryan and Vincent Langley, all of Northeast Washington and B. J. Hasson, of 5417 Nevada avenue northwest.

Inquest Is Scheduled In Fiery Crossing Crash

An inquest was to have been held last night into the deaths Tuesday of two engineers, killed when the Columbia, Baltimore & Ohio flier, westbound from New York, struck an automobile stalled on a Berwyn, Md., grade crossing. The victims were J. A. Ward, 53, of Baltimore, and L. R. Walter, of Reistertown. Francis A. Shipley, justice of the peace of Berwyn, was to have conducted the inquest.

J. W. Lundy, the fireman, is in Emergency Hospital with serious burns. Ward and Walter jumped from the cab when the automobile's gas tank exploded after the collision, showering them with flaming gasoline. The fireman remained at his post and brought the train under control. Miss Ethel Thomas, of St. Ann's Orphanage, abandoned the car just before the crash.

CUNNINGHAM WIDOW BALKS POLICE TRIAL

Middleton Case Postponed; Ousting of Two Privates Recommended.

The trial of Private Wallace Middleton, Twelfth Precinct policeman, on charges of conduct prejudicial to the good order of the force, yesterday was postponed until next Wednesday because several important witnesses failed to put in an appearance before the Police Trial Board. Dismissal of two Fourth Precinct policemen was recommended by the police tribunal after hearing testimony on charges brought against them.

The men recommended for dismissal were Privates E. A. Mumper and J. W. Casey, of the Fourth Precinct. Mumper was recently suspended when he was arrested near Baltimore after his automobile turned over and a quantity of alleged alcohol was found in it. Casey was charged with leaving the scene of an automobile accident without revealing his identity. The accident occurred at Seventh street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, and no one was injured.

The widow of Jack Cunningham—who was "put on the spot" in a downtown alley some weeks ago—had been summoned as a witness in the Middleton case. She refused, however, to answer any of the questions addressed to her. After she left the witness chair, the board recessed for lunch, indicating the continuance of the case until next week.

Middleton was suspended after the Cunningham shooting after developments which indicated he may have been connected with "racketeering" activities here.

Drink Habits Alter, College Head Says

Finds Imbibing Emerges From Alley to Home in Seattle.

Seattle, July 22 (U.P.).—The main difference between college men's drinking habits today and those of the first few years after prohibition became effective lies in the fact that drinking is done in the home instead of in the alley, in the opinion of William Taylor, jr., men's personnel officer at the University of Washington. Taylor has been in constant touch with social conditions on the campus for the last 8 or 10 years.

"For the first three or four years after passage of the prohibition law," Taylor declared, "collegians took their liquor to the back alleys to drink it. But now their drinking is gentlemanly. They have liquor in their homes and most of them confine their drinking to a few cocktails after dinner."

He expressed the belief that drinking is no more prevalent at the university than it was in former days.

Municipal Center Razing Contract Is Awarded

Bids for razing property on three lots in the Municipal Center area, when opened yesterday afternoon by Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the Engineer Department, ranged from $183 to $1,000. The low estimate was submitted by the Hechinger Engineering Corporation.

The successful bidder on razing the first section, a much larger tract, paid the District government more than $2,000 for the privilege. This wrecking just got under way this week.
